CASTLE BURNS; WINDSORS FACE NEW HOUSE HUNT

Spoils Plan to Live in Old Austria.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 29.—Married a little more than a year, the duke of Windsor and his American born duchess again face the problem of finding a home.

The twelfth century Mittersill castle in Zell-am-See, former Austria, which they had leased and were preparing to occupy in September, burned to the ground today. Workmen were renovating the old structure to the taste of the former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain when the fire started from an undetermined cause.

The news was sent at once to the duke and his duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, in their present home, the Château de la Croe, in Antibes, France, on the Riviera. The former king made no announcement of his future plans, but friends declared the new house hunting job will not baffle or discourage him. These friends said his new life agrees with him. Both he and the duchess, they report, look younger and happier than a year ago.

Friends Forget Him.

The passing months, however, have not softened their enemies in England. Worse than that, the second year of his marriage finds the duke's supporters gradually forgetting him. The duke has been relegated to history in the minds of most of them. If asked, they are still behind him, but in between times they forget the whole matter of his abdication and subsequent marriage and the political tempest surrounding them.

The old guard of court society still detests the Windsors for defying old guard opinion to marry and for giving the British throne the worst shaking it has had in years.

The vast bulk of the public on this, as on most other questions, however, does as it is told and thinks as it is told. Since court society and politicians are opposed to Edward, so are they.

The average Englishman does not aspire to rise out of his own class, but he does aspire to act so that those of his own class will think he really belongs a notch above them.

So when the nation's leaders let it be known that the former king really acted rather badly and is much better out of the country, few of those among the nation's millions ever stop to ask what the duke did that was so reprehensible. They hasten to agree in the hope that every one will understand they would never act so badly themselves.

No Prospect of Return.

The net result is that most of the nation still thinks the duke did something pretty reprehensible in marrying the woman he loved instead of knuckling under to the nation's politicians, both in public and private life.

The few who still believe Edward showed admirable force of character in marrying the woman he wanted to marry are submerged in the vastly superior numbers of the other side.

There is no immediate prospect of the duke and his duchess returning to England. He has said flatly he will not return until her right to the title of "her royal highness" is recognized. That title always is used by those around him in France.

On the other hand, the desire of Edward's brother and successor, King George VI., to grant the duchess the title of "royal highness" last winter was frustrated, it was learned on good authority, by the women of the royal family. There is no sign of an end to the enmity of certain circles toward the duchess, and the duke has not indicated he will relent in his determination to return home only if full honors are accorded the duchess.

No Secret Meetings.

Tales of secret meetings between the duke and Queen Mary, his mother, are nonsense, an informant in close touch with the royal family said. Queen Mary, he asserted, would never consider taking part in a clandestine meeting however much she might wish to see her son. She is made of stern stuff and if he will not bend he may not see her.

Conversations with people of London reveal the gains the "anti-Edward" faction has made in a year. Those who were doubtful before, or

SENATORS PUT ON THE SPOT ON 3D TERM ISSUE

Resolution to Force a Showdown.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—A congressional battle over the third term issue was assured today when Senator Rush D. Holt [D., W. Va.] announced that he would introduce a resolution in the senate next January expressing opposition to more than two terms for any President.

Political observers of both parties are now convinced President Roosevelt is nursing an ambition to be the first President of the United States to serve a third term. Adoption of a congressional resolution would not be binding on the Democratic party nor on the President, but it is conceded it would have much influence.

Recall 1928 Resolution.

Twenty-three senators now in office voted for a resolution in 1928, which was adopted, 56 to 26, and which condemned as "unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions" any departure from the two term precedent set by George Washington. Introduced by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], it was aimed at President Coolidge, even though he already had made his famous "I do not choose to run" statement.

At least nine of those senators will be squarely on the spot when the Holt resolution comes up for a vote. They are stanch administration supporters and they will be called upon to decide whether they believe a third term was perilous in Mr. Coolidge's case but a happy idea in the case of Mr. Roosevelt.

"I am sure that those who supported the La Follette anti-third term resolution during the Coolidge administration will be very glad to support a similar resolution now," said Holt, with a wicked gleam in his eye.

Wonders at Consistency.

"They no doubt want the same rule to apply for all. How could they feel it a bad policy for a President to accept a third term in 1928 and feel it to be a good public policy in 1939? At least they will have an opportunity to express themselves."

The nine senators noted for their unquestioning obedience to President Roosevelt's orders who voted for the La Follette resolutions ten years ago are Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.], Henry F. Ashurst [D., Ariz.], Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.], Carl Hayden [D., Ariz.], Matthew M. Neely [D., W. Va.], Key Pittman [D., Nev.], Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.], Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], and Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.].

Other Democrats, still in the senate, who supported the La Follette resolution, might be expected to support the Holt resolution. They are Peter G. Gerry [D., R. I.], Carter Glass [D., Va.], Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], William H. King [D., Utah], Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.], and Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.].

Other Supporters Listed.

Other supporters of the La Follette resolution, still in the senate, are William E. Borah [R., Idaho], Arthur Capper [R., Kas.], Hiram W. Johnson [R., Cal.], Lynn J. Frazier [Rad., N. D.], Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.], George W. Norris [Rad., Neb.], Henrik Shipstead [F.-L., Minn.], and La Follette.

Senator Holt's resolution probably will follow the La Follette resolution word for word in order that there may be no excuse for a senator who voted for the first resolution and who wishes to vote against the second.

The only present Democratic senator who voted against the La Follette resolution in 1928 is Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

Walsh Explains Position.

"I voted against the resolution then because President Coolidge had already stated that he was not a candidate," Senator Walsh said. "The resolution was a reflection upon his good faith." He was said to have told his friends that he would support an anti-third term resolution at present.

Debate on the third term issue would, of course, be effectually prevented by a firm statement from the President before the next session of congress that he will not be a candidate. The probability of such a statement is regarded remote.

Anybody Here Seen Partners of Mr. Kelly?

It's an old story to investigators for the sales tax division of the state finance department that certain concerns change their names to avoid paying taxes. Yesterday, however, T. J. Kelly, owner of the Chicago Motor Finance company, 4452 Madison street, gave the old yarn a brand new twist.

The investigators became interested in the company, and in the defunct Illinois Motor Discount and General Auto Motor companies, both of which preceded the Chicago Motor Finance company at the Madison street address, when Kelly brought the books of the Illinois Motor company to the state offices for inspection recently.

Possible Shortage of $5,000.

The books showed a possible shortage of about $5,000 in sales tax returns, according to Thomas J. Bugan, special attorney for the state finance department.

So yesterday Investigator Gus Bartels and Sergt. Joseph Healy went to the Madison street address to see Kelly. They also wanted a few words with J. T. O'Connor, former owner of the Illinois Motor Discount company, and John M. Senate, head of the Chicago Motor Finance company. They knew that Kelly had owned the General Auto Motor company.

They found Mr. Kelly sitting in the company offices. But they could not find Mr. O'Connor or Mr. Senate anywhere. Had Mr. Kelly seen these men lately? Mr. Kelly had not. Did Mr. Kelly know these men? Mr. Kelly did not.

Nobody Else Knows Them.

A search through the neighborhood uncovered no one who knew either Senate or O'Connor. So the two investigators decided to take Kelly in to chat with Attorney Bugan. Mr. Kelly went along, pleasantly enough. He and Attorney Bugan had their chat, and Mr. Kelly was released, presumably to return to his home at 4533 Maypole avenue. He was told to return for further questioning tomorrow.

The books of all three firms will be audited, tax officials said. However, the original scheme of charging Mr. Kelly, Mr. O'Connor, and Mr. Senate with conspiracy to defraud the state has been dropped. You see, Mr. Kelly is Mr. O'Connor. And Mr. O'Connor is Mr. Senate.

IT'S A DRY JULY 29 THAT DOESN'T BRING BYRON A NEW HAT

Waynesburg, Pa., July 29.—(AP)—It always rains in Waynesburg on July 29 and it did today, for the 62d time in 65 years. Byron Daily—who has won ten hats and lost a shirt in eleven years of betting on rain for the day—added two more hats to his collection. He now has more hats than he can use and he wishes he had bet a suit of clothes or something.

80 CENT SPUDS SHIPPED BY FSCC TO 50 CENT AREA

Gibbon, Neb., July 29.—[Special.]—Farmers and business men here are aroused over a shipment of relief potatoes which came in last week from Kansas.

The potatoes were shipped to Grand Island by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation and distributed to relief clients at Gibbon and other Platte valley towns in the heart of the potato belt. It was reported they were purchased from Kaw valley growers at 80 cents a hundred pounds.

On the day the potatoes arrived, local growers were accepting 50 cents a hundred, with buyers scarce. Yesterday's best bid was 45 cents a hundred, in carload lots.

MUSSOLINI'S 55TH BIRTHDAY ROLLS BY UNHERALDED

ROME, July 29.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini had something today that he didn't like—his 55th birthday.

Italian newspapers, usually lyric about any occasion involving the Duce, were silent. In the Mussolinian concept, Fascist Italy personifies youth; Mussolini personifies Fascism; hence any notice of his advancing age is taboo.

Identical Twins, 6, Have Same Aches—Tonsils Out

Litchfield, Ill., July 29.—[Special.]—Rita Mae and Mary Ann Meinecke, identical twins who are 6 years old, nursed twin sore throats at St. Francis hospital tonight. Both had their tonsils removed today.

Inspector Kills Self; 71st N.Y. Police Suicide

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Police Inspector Louis Rosenfeld shot and killed himself today in his country home—named Journey's End—at Madison, Conn. He was the second inspector and seventy-first member of the police force to kill himself since Sept. 25, 1934, when Lewis J. Valentine became police commissioner.

Valentine is known as a rigid taskmaster. Policemen who often are importuned for favors by machine politicians are continually running afoul of the commissioner and frequently are in tight spots. The commissioner is intolerant of violators of department regulations, especially those covering drinking. Since he took office 224 men have been dismissed, most of them for drunkenness.

Youngest Inspector on Force.

Inspector Rosenfeld was only 46 years old, the youngest inspector on the force. He was regarded as one of the ablest officers in the department. Several months ago he was stricken with pneumonia.

During the last eight weeks he had been unable to sleep, because he feared he was failing in his police duties. Commissioner Valentine ordered him to take a long leave and tried to reassure him so he would quit worrying.

Valentine Usually Reticent.

Commissioner Valentine was openly affected by news of Inspector Rosenfeld's suicide. The two were personal friends. He issued a long statement lauding the inspector.

This was one of the rare occasions in which Valentine issued a public utterance. He is noted for his reticence.

The other inspector who committed suicide under the Valentine régime was Charles L. Neidig, who shot and killed himself on July 4, twenty-four hours after he had been transferred as a result of gambling raids by Valentine's men.

Volunteer Fireman Dashes Home to Fire and Collects

Bradenton, Fla., July 29.—(AP)—Volunteer Fireman Gordon Smith heard sirens screeching and sped after the fire truck in his car. The apparatus pulled up in front of Smith's home. An oil stove had overturned but there wasn't any damage. Smith benefited by $2, his pay as a volunteer for answering the alarm.

Planes, Ships Search Ocean for Lost Plane

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, July 30 (Saturday).—Army bombers, after searching 72,000 square miles of the Pacific ocean without finding any trace of the missing Hawaiian Clipper, today headed back to their base. Four amphibian planes also reported a futile search.

MANILA, July 30 [Saturday].—(AP)—United States air and surface craft scanned the sea in vain today for traces of the 26-ton $450,000 Hawaii Clipper, which vanished yesterday with 15 persons in the ocean stretches about 565 miles east of here.

Army and navy searching forces coursed back and forth over the water where the huge flying boat mysteriously disappeared, paused briefly to report no success, and then doggedly resumed the hunt.

The army transport Meigs, which was but 87 miles from the Clipper's last reported position, spent all night zigzagging across the plane's course, splitting the night blackness with searchlights and sending up signal flares. She continued the search by daylight.

Planes Fly Over Area.

Six heavy army bombers soared out over the area in excellent weather conditions, but after hours of flying they messaged:

"Found nothing."

The Pan American trans-Pacific plane last reported at 11:09 p. m. [Chicago time] Thursday saying she was 565 miles east of Manila on a regular flight here from Guam.

[In San Francisco airways officials were notified a Philippine Long Distance Telephone company employé heard a plane three hours later over Luhuy Island, in the San Bernardino straits, at the southern tip of Luzon Island. The plane, which was not discernable above the clouds, was proceeding west on the course flown by the clippers, airways officials declared. Luhuy Island is about 250 miles southeast of Manila.]

The army bombers expected to cover an area extending 160 miles north and south and 600 miles east and west in the region where the Clipper last reported her position.

15 Men Aboard Plane.

With six passengers and nine crew members the Clipper left Guam at 2:39 p. m., Chicago time, Thursday for a 1,580 mile jump to Manila, terminus of her regular 8,200 mile route from California.

Radio listeners spread the alarm when four hours passed without a routine report from the plane, which usually gave its position and flying conditions every thirty minutes.

RUSSIANS DRIVE BACK INVADERS; TROOPS KILLED

Moscow Sends Sharp Protest to Tokio.

MOSCOW, July 29.—(AP)—Detachments of Japanese-Manchukuan border forces were repulsed by soviet Russian troops today in a new Siberian frontier incident which prompted Moscow to protest to Tokio. A communique describing the incident said there were dead and wounded on both sides, but did not give the extent of casualties.

The skirmish was said to have taken place when Japanese-Manchukuan troops attempted to occupy a hill near the junction of Siberia, Manchukuo, and Corea, not far from Possiet bay.

The communique, which asserted the hill in question was in soviet territory, said the Japanese-Manchukuan detachments were "decisively driven from soviet territory."

Envoy Ordered to Protest.

"Immediately after the news was received in Moscow," the communique said, "the [soviet] charge d'affairs in Tokio was instructed to lodge a vigorous protest with the Japanese government against these new provocations by Japanese-Manchurian militarists, to demand exemplary punishment of the guilty, and to warn the Japanese government that the soviet government is placing the entire responsibility for the consequences of these actions on organs of the Japanese government in Manchuria [Manchukuo]."

Tass [Russian official news agency] said of the clash: "Two Japanese-Manchukuan detachments crossed the soviet frontier north of a hill near Lake Khasan, regarding which the Japanese government recently presented unfounded claims, and attempted to seize a hill situated two kilometers [one and one-quarter miles] to the north. As a result of measures taken by soviet frontier guards the Japanese-Manchukuans were thrown back from soviet territory. There were killed and wounded on both sides."

[A dispatch from Tokio quoted a Domei (Japanese news agency) report as saying a new incident took place between Japanese and Russian border guards at Changkufeng, also near the soviet-Manchukuo-Corea border intersection. It said, however, that ten Russians invaded Manchukuan territory and battled with a Japanese patrol, but retired after an hour's skirmish. Casualties were not reported.]

Near Site of Previous Row.

Today's clash was in the vicinity of Changkufeng, where the Japanese charged last week, soviet troops on July 11 invaded Manchukuan territory.

The Japanese at that time demanded the immediate withdrawal of the soviet forces, and asserted: "Japan is ready and has every right to take all necessary steps" to back up its protest. This attitude renewed the tension which has flared frequently in the border friction betwen the two nations.

When, however, soviet authorities immediately and sharply rejected the Japanese demands, Tokio adopted a less positive stand. The Russian government, in its reply, said that threats might be good diplomacy elsewhere, but "such methods will not succeed in Moscow."

Russia regards the disputed territory as rightfully belonging to it, the government told Japan at that time, adding that the Japanese demand for withdrawal of Russian troops was "unjustified and unacceptable."

Scene of Many Clashes.

Numerous clashes have taken place between Japan and Russia over the poorly defined far eastern boundary. Both sides have had men killed and wounded in flareups dating back to 1931-'33 when Japan's conquest of China's Manchurian provinces brought the Rising Sun forces face to face with those of Russia.

Each side has its own version of where the border line runs, backed by maps and treaties which, however, vary as much as five miles apart in some sections of the heavily wooded, rugged country which has no natural markers. Boundary markers set up 75 or more years ago by Russo-Chinese agreement have in most cases been mislaid.

War tension developed last year when the two powers disputed ownership of two islands in the Amur river. An agreement was reached after five days of negotiations, and armed forces were withdrawn from the disputed area.

In that dispute the right of Japanese and Manchukuan ships to navigate the Amur's deepest channel were at stake. Japan contended the channel was the real boundary and Russia insisted the Russo-Chinese treaties of 1858 and 1860 established the line and that it did not necessarily follow the deepest channel.

Battle at Susung.

SHANGHAI, July 29.—(AP)—A fierce struggle between Chinese troops and a Japanese force at Susung was reported tonight as Hankow's defenders sought to check the right wing of Japan's Yangtze valley offensive.

Susung is in Anhwei province, about twenty-five miles northeast of Kiukiang, the river port which fell to Japanese marine assault on Tuesday. It lies near the border of Hupeh province.

The Japanese force threaded its way through mountain passes to reach the town which must be taken if the invaders are to execute a flanking movement for a rear guard attack on the northern extreme of the Chinese Yangtze valley line.

The principal target of this column was Wusueh to the southwest, site of a submerged river barrier and center of the Chinese defenses on the north bank.

Blame U. S. Gunboat.

A Japanese naval spokesman reported that warships trying to shell retreating Chinese in the battle of Kiukiang had been handicapped by the presence of the American gunboat Monocacy and the British gunboat Cockchafer, standing by to assist foreign refugees.

The spokesman said the Chinese used the two gunboats as shields until they were out of range. Japanese military authorities estimated Chinese casualties in the Kiukiang fighting at 20,000.

GREEK DICTATOR SMASHES REVOLT BY ANTI-FASCISTS

ATHENS, July 29.—(AP)—Greece's plump little Prussian trained dictator, Gen. John Metaxas, was reported to have smashed with lightning speed today an anti-Fascist revolt on the fabled Island of Crete.

Within four hours after announcing the insurgents had seized Crete's capital city of Canea, the Fascist government in Athens said it was all over.

"The Cretan revolt has been suppressed and all government property seized has now been recaptured," said a message to Premier Metaxas from the governor of Crete.

The revolt, which broke out last night, was headed by M. Mitsotaki, a nephew of Greece's one time premier, the late Eleutherios Venizelos, who in 1935 led and lost one of the fiercest revolts in the modern history of Greece, seizing several warships. Mitsotaki and other leaders were arrested.

HITLER TO GIVE CZECH NAZIS NEW HOPE—GOEBBELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 29.—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, spoke at a "roll call of Germans living abroad" in Breslau today. His listeners included 30,000 Sudeten Germans and their leader, Konrad Henlein, who are attending a festival of gymnasts.

Goebbels announced Reichsfuehrer Hitler would speak in Breslau on Sunday. He said the Sudeten Germans, "who are in need of hope more than any other people, now would be able to derive new hope and take it with them across the frontier."

Speaking at the same meeting, Henlein declared the Sudeten Germans are an "indissoluble part of the German nation." His speech was punctuated with cries of "one reich, one nation, one Fuehrer," and was cheered by the crowd.

THOMAS BLOCKS TULSA PAPER'S BID FOR RADIO

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—The communications commission turned down today a request by the World Publishing company for permission to build a new radio station at Tulsa, Okla.

Senator Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.] was opposed to the proposed station. He said the Tulsa World "didn't act very nice" during the recent campaign in which he won renomination.

"The paper said I was a nonentity up here," Thomas told a reporter before the commission announced its decision. "It is not going to have any radio station while I am United States senator, if I can prevent it." The commission said the publishing company's application was denied because the station would "not serve public interest, convenience, and necessity."

New Clash in Far East

The indefinitly marked soviet-Manchukuan border near Corea was the scene yesterday of another fatal battle between Russian and Japanese forces. The area, not far from Changkufeng (see arrow), is claimed by both Moscow and the Tokio controled Manchukuan government.

NAZI TROOPERS WRECK HOME OF CATHOLIC BISHOP

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MUNICH, July 29.—Rottenburg, seat of one of the smallest Catholic bishoprics in Germany, is in a state of anxiety awaiting further reprisals on Bishop Ludwig Sproll, who incurred Nazi displeasure by refusing to vote in the April plebiscite on anschluss. The town, which is on the Neckar river, south of Stuttgart, has a population of 9,000, of which 90 per cent are Catholic.

Arrow indicates scent of Nazi attack on bishop.

Last Sunday several hundred vehicles, mostly "strength through joy" buses, unexpectedly brought some 1,000 uniformed Storm Troopers, who went forthwith to the bishop's residence and demanded he come out. The bishop refused. The Nazis then forced the main door, broke all the windows, fired the bishop's bedrooms, and threw his prayer books into the street.

Eighty policemen arrived from Stuttgart after the damage was done and compelled evacuation of the residence. There were no arrests.

On Tuesday the uniformed mob returned and demanded the bishop's resignation, otherwise threatening to "get him." They dispersed after an hour.

CONSCIENCE SOON TO BE GUIDE ON YOUR SWIM SUIT

The matter of swimming suits soon will be placed squarely up to each Chicagoan and his conscience. Members of the city council judiciary committee yesterday recommended passage of a proposed ordinance which provides merely that beach costumes be suitable for wear in public.

This measure was drafted to replace the present regulations, which require that trunks shall not be higher than four inches above the knee, that bloomers be of full cut, and that the tops have tight arm holes or one-quarter sleeves.

JAP PLANES DROP FOOD TO YANKS, CUT OFF IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, July 29.—(AP)—Japanese war planes were reported today to be dropping food supplies by parachute to 150 foreigners marooned at Kuling, a mountain top resort. The group included more than fifty Americans.

Kuling is 14 miles from Kiukiang, the Yangtze river port which fell to the Japanese Tuesday.

A Japanese army spokesman who told of the aerial supply work asserted the Chinese, in their retreat from Kiukiang, Kuling's normal source of food, destroyed or took away all provisions.

Little Boy Badly Injured; Run Over by Milk Wagon

Frederick Smith, 4 years old, was seriously injured yesterday when he was run over by the rear wheel of a milk wagon in front of his home at 5037 South Ada street. His right leg, right hand, and left ankle were broken. Clemens Kasprzyk, 1310 West 52d street, the driver, said he did not see the boy.

POPE DEPLORES BARRIERS RAISED BETWEEN RACES

Blasts Italy for Trying to Imitate Germany.

ROME, July 29.—(AP)—A reply by Pope Pius XI. to the new doctrin of Italian Fascism which holds that Jews "do not belong to the Italian race" was published today by the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano.

The pope did not mention Jews by name, but he listed charity toward others as an article of the Catholic faith and said: "We do not want to separate anything in the human family."

Pope Pius linked the new Italian doctrin with German racial policy when he said it might be asked: "Why in the world Italy unfortunately felt the need to imitate Germany?"

Recalls Old Italian Words.

"The Latins did not speak of race nor of things of that sort," said the pope. "Our old Italians had other more beautiful, more pleasing words: Gens. Italica, Italica Stirps, Japaeti Gens. These seem more civilized, less barbaric words.

"It is necessary to call things by name if one does not wish to run into grave dangers, among them that of losing actually the name and even the idea of things."

The pope said these things yesterday when he addressed missionary students of thirty-seven nationalities who visited him at his summer residence, Castel Gandolfo.

Not since his encyclical of June 29, 1931, on Fascist education of youth had the pope so directly taken issue with Premier Mussolini.

Gives Church's View on Mankind.

His remarks as embodied in L'Osservatore Romano's résumé, stressed the difference between the church's conception of mankind as "one single, great, universal human family" and conceptions which "mean barriers erected between men and other men, between folk and other folk."

Fascism's new racial doctrin, promulgated July 14 by a group of professors under the auspices of Mussolini's ministry of popular culture, proclaimed the "Aryanism" of the Italian people.

In asserting that Jews could not be fused with Aryan Italians without altering the character of Italians, the pronouncement caused considerable disquiet among Italy's 47,000 Jews.

The pontiff, at the same time, raised his voice against attacks on Catholic Action, a lay organization which in the past has been a center of friction between Fascism and the church and which had been attacked by a section of the Fascist press since announcement of the new racialism.

"Who Injure, Dies," Says Pope.

"Who injures Catholic Action, injures the pope, and who injures the pope, dies," the pontiff was quoted in concluding his remarks. The word "dies" was interpreted to mean "dies spiritually."

Catholics, who regard conciliation between the church and the Italian state—the Lateran treaties of Feb. 11, 1929—as one of Fascism's greatest achievements, were greatly concerned lest present trends might lead to a new break.

The concordat of 1929 provided that activities of Italian Catholic Action were to be "outside any political party and under direct control of the hierarchy of the church" and that Catholic Action should confine itself to religious activities.

The concordat also provided that, in case of any difference between the church and state in interpreting its terms, an effort should be made to reach agreement by friendly terms.

Thrusts at Catholic Action.

The newspaper Régimé Fascista recently made several sharp thrusts at Catholic Action. In one article it raised the question of the compatibility of membership in Catholic Action and the Fascist party. The newspaper is published by Robert Farinacci, former Fascist party secretary and anti-Semitic leader.

A controversy between the church and the Régimé in 1931 over what Fascists termed Catholic Action's interference in politics, threatened to disrupt the Lateran accord. At the height of the conflict, Fascists were raiding Catholic Action headquarters almost daily. Furnishings were destroyed and portraits of the pope were thrown into the streets.

BLAST MEXICAN TRAIN; 2 KILLED; REBELS BLAMED

MEXICO CITY, July 29.—(AP)—Two persons were killed today in a San Luis Potosi state train explosion railway officials blamed on Cedillo rebels. A number of persons suffered slight injuries in the blast, which wrecked a second class coach of a Mexican National Railways train on the San Luis Potosi-Tampico division.

The explosion occurred within a mile of the spot where followers of Gen. Saturnino Cedillo, who launched an unsuccessful revolt May 20, had dynamited another train two months ago. Government forces thus far have failed to capture the rebel chieftain.

Raul Nevarez, chief clerk of the railways, said "Cedillo rebels were responsible beyond doubt." The train was near El Gato, about 210 miles west of Tampico. A Mexican army lieutenant and an infant were said by railway officials to have been the victims.

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO QUIT HANKOW FOR NEW CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—Nelson T. Johnson, United States ambassador to China, who has been in Hankow since the central government was transferred there, will proceed Monday or Tuesday to the new temporary capital in Chungking. He so informed the state department today, when the Chinese foreign office was transferred to Chungking.

Ambassador Johnson will make the trip on the United States river gunboat Tutuila and will be accompanied by members of his staf. The exact number to accompany him was not known in Washington.

Paul Josselyn, United States consul general in Hankow, will remain there with several members of his staf to attend to commercial matters.

CORRIGAN BIDS DUBLIN GOOD-BY; SAILS FOR HOME

DUBLIN, July 29.—(AP)—Douglas G. [East is West] Corrigan bade a railway station farewell to thousands of his Irish admirers tonight and took a train for Cobh where he will board the New York-bound U. S. liner Manhattan.

"Good bye and don't take the wrong turn," Lord Mayor "Alfie" Byrne sang out to the young American aviator who landed here July 18 after a surprise flight from New York.

"You can take a wrong turn and still get to the right place," Corrigan yelled to the big crowd which assembled to see him off.

WINDSORS FACE NEW HOUSE HUNT; CASTLE BURNS

Spoils Plans to Live in Former Austria.

who favored Edward, have been swung around by the pressure of the ruling clique, supported by nearly all newspapers. Questions put to patrons of the pubs—the poor man's clubs of England—show that.

At the time of the abdication most were behind Edward. They were not ready to offer any form of violent protest against his ousting; they had no idea of the political moves that were the real cause of it; but they liked their king and they felt closer to him than the British public has felt to a king in a long while.

"Something Must Be Done."

Today most of them still do not know that the cry against the woman who became his wife was merely an excuse for getting rid of a king who showed too strong a desire to use his power and to force reluctant ministers to do more for the people than the upper classes thought should be done. Edward's famous remark, "Something must be done" when he saw the abject poverty of the miners of South Wales, did much to unseat him from the throne.

But the British public was never allowed to realize that, and it is less likely to believe it now than when the abdication took place. Now the general view is that Edward was lured from his throne by a modern Circe, and that he probably realizes by this time no woman is worth a throne.

Edward Looks Happy.

Reports from those who have come into close contact with the duke and duchess since their marriage give a different view, however. One Briton who has had casual contact with Edward for ten years said he had never seen him look genuinly happy until after his marriage.

Just before the abdication he looked haggard and worn. Now, said this informant, he appears happy and at least ten years younger than when he arrived in Vienna, an exile.

He is said, though, to be lonely in his villa on the Riviera. There is no more ridiculously snobbish society than the British colony there. Whether the people making up this group would be of any importance in England is another matter, but on the Riviera they feel that British tradition is in their hands and that they must uphold the social prestige of the British.

Windsor Is Snubbed.

Windsor has been subjected to snubs—not very direct, but very deliberate — from people who could never have met him in England. All indications, however, are that he has taken none of these to heart, however much certain classes of Britons may hope that he has, and that he is leading a happy life in his present home.

Compton Mackenzie, novelist, always has been among the duke's stanch supporters, and months ago said he was going to publish a biography, with the duke's approval. That approval was withdrawn, presumably by request from higher up, but Mackenzie proceeded with a book.

Recently the Sunday Pictorial, a weekly tabloid newspaper, devoted its entire front page and one inside to a criticism of Mackenzie's volume, "The Windsor Tapestry." Extracts from the book took up most of the space. The Pictorial printed a facsimile of a $25,000 check sent to Mackenzie for rights to the book, and announced it would never publish such a book.

A few weeks later, however, a sister paper, the Sunday Dispatch, under affiliated ownership, began publication of the book, and the Dispatch's sales jumped 100,000 the week the first instalment appeared.

The passages objected to by the Pictorial were merely bits of history, tales of the houses of the Stuarts and Hanover which any one may find in history books.

Efforts to pave the way for the duke's return have fallen off, though interest in him still remains below the surface.

"Octavians" Meet on Birthday.

Politicians are afraid the duke's return might cause a dangerous wave of pro-Edward sentiment, and they will see to it he does not return in the near future.

A year ago a young Londoner, George Whish, founded the "Society of Octavians" to drum up enthusiasm among Windsor's supporters. This year, on the duke's forty-fourth birthday, June 22, 150 members and their guests held a dinner and sent the duke a telegram. Mackenzie, as guest of honor, demanded that all work for the duke's speedy return to England.

But to the newspapers it was merely a bit of light news, and that was that. The duke and duchess may continue their peaceful, happy life on the Riviera without interference, for the fickle public already looks on him as history.

Virginia Woman Identifies $10,000 Mystery Auto Victim

La Porte, Ind., July 29.—[Special.]—The body of a man with $10,000 in his pockets, killed last Aug. 16 by an automobile near here, was exhumed today for the third time in the last two months and was identified by Mrs. O. L. Baker of Farmville, Va., as that of her brother, Richard Thaxton, who disappeared in 1935. The $10,000 held by County Treasurer Otto Meyer will be turned into the county school fund unless heirs are found. Mrs. Baker's next move will be to file suit to establish positive identification and to ask the Circuit court to order the money turned over to her.

SPANISH REBELS LOOSE FLOOD TO HALT LOYALISTS

Seek to Cut Supply Lines Across Ebro River.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], July 29.—(AP)—Troops of the Spanish government "peoples' army" clung close to Gandesa tonight despite counterattacks by land and air and a man made flood in the Ebro river valley designed to sever supply lines and cut off retreat.

Government forces withstood a rain of air bombs and consolidated the earlier gains of their five day offensive in southern Catalonia. They concentrated all available anti-aircraft guns along the river to protect pontoon bridges, cables, and ferries from rebel bombers.

Insurgent reports acknowledged that the government had crossed the Ebro river westward, but said the insurgent troops had obtained a new line and were preparing to strike "a smashing blow at the enemy who are at the serious disadvantage of having a wide river at their backs."

Rebel Bridges Washed Out.

Barcelona dispatches belittled the strategy of the insurgents in opening all dams of the Noguera Pallaresa and Segre rivers, northern tributaries of the Ebro. They insisted that the flood harmed Gen. Francisco Franco's forces more than the government's.

These reports said the Ebro rose from three to five feet, but that pontoon bridges carrying reinforcements and supplies merely rose with the river.

On the other hand, government aerial scouts reported the flood had washed out many of the insurgents' own wooden bridges for miles south of the dams in the Pyrenees foothills.

Four divisions of government troops under Col. Enrique Lister, a former stonemason, were reported to have turned Gandesa, formerly Gen. Franco's divisional headquarters in southern Catalonia, into a sort of no man's land.

Gandesa Under Gunfire.

Government advices said the attackers pushed so close to Gandesa during last night—when Franco's planes were grounded—that they forced insurgent troops to evacuate. Today Gandesa was reported under artillery fire from both sides.

One of the fiercest battles of the night took place when the government drove on Calvario Hermitage, a monastery one mile south of Gandesa. Several thousand insurgents who had fortified the hermitage blocked the way.

After several hours of fighting most of the insurgents withdrew to avoid encirclement, it was reported, leaving fifty of their number to hold the monastery. It was captured before dawn.

The insurgents hurriedly were building a new defense line north from Prat de Compte to Batea, about six miles northwest of Gandesa.

BRITISH M. P.'S CHEER U. S. FOR REFUGEE AID; CLASH ON SPAIN'S WAR

LONDON, July 29.—(AP)—The house of commons today cheered the United States loudly for its coöperation on the Jewish refugee problem. The cheering greeted Earl Winterton, British delegate to the Evian-les-Bains refugee conference instigated by President Roosevelt, when he asserted:

"I think we should recognize the intense interest not merely by the President of the government, but also the people of the United States in this matter."

The commons adjourned for a three month vacation after a turbulent session in which angry clashes resulted from renewed labor criticism of Britain's policy on the Spanish civil war.

The Laborite attacks were aroused by the government's disclosure that the British destroyer Hero stood by without retaliating when insurgent planes sank the steamer Dellwyn Wednesday in the British operated port of Gandia, Spain. Col. John Llewellyn, civil lord of the admiralty, explained the navy "gives protection to British ships outside territorial waters, but not within them."

THOUSANDS HAIL HUGHES; HE LAUDS CITY AS AIR HUB

Howard Hughes and his fellow world flyers wound up a day of enthusiastic welcomes and receptions in Chicago as guests of honor at a colorful banquet in the Palmer house last night. The dinner, attended by 1,000 men and women, including Mayor Kelly, almost overwhelmed the shy Hughes.

The gathering was a formal conclusion to a wild day, one of spontaneous greetings for the five men who circled the top of the globe in record time. The loop was turned over to the flyers.

Hughes and three of his men, Engineer Edward Lund, Radio Operator Richard Stoddart, and Co-Navigator Harry Connor, arrived at the Chicago airport shortly before 1 p. m. The fifth, Lieut. Thomas Thurlow, flew in earlier in an army plane. A. I. Lodwick, Hughes' flight manager, was also in the party.

Thousand Rise and Cheer.

The banquet was held in the Grand ballroom. Hughes, tall and slim, and wearing a wrinkled dark suit, entered the banquet hall inconspicuously. Every one stood up and cheered.

The principal speakers were Hughes, Mayor Kelly and Merrill Meigs, chairman of the Chicago Aero commission. The mayor and Meigs lauded the Hughes achievement of skimming around the top of the world in less than four days.

"My flight," said Hughes, "was merely an extension around the world of the science of the air lines. When you step into an airliner in the United States, you may be sure you are riding in the best airliner made, and that your pilot is the most thoroughly trained. I myself would have to serve a long apprenticeship as a second pilot to qualify as an airliner pilot.

"Chicago is the hub of the airline system of America. More lines serve Chicago than any other city in the United States. Chicago's new airport, when completed, will be second to none."

Leaves for Houston Today.

Hughes planned to leave for Houston, Tex., at 8 a. m. today. From there he will fly to Los Angeles, Cal.

Several thousand admirers were at the Chicago airport yesterday when Hughes landed. The crush broke police lines. Everybody wanted to get as near the famous flyer and his famous Lockheed plane as possible. After several minutes' delay, the flyers were safely escorted to waiting automobile, and paraded through the city.

The loop was waiting expectantly. Thousands of persons lined the streets. La Salle street showered him with ticker tape and bits of paper until it looked as if it was snowing. The party then visited the mayor's office in the city hall, where Hughes and his crew were given certificates as ambassadors of good will by Mayor Kelly's New Century committee.

600 of C. I. O. Union Quit Racine Farm Tractor Plant

Racine, Wis., July 29.—[Special.]—The Harris-Massey company, manufacturers of tractors and farm machinery, had its first overt labor trouble today since it bought out the Wallace plant here. About 600 members of the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. union, walked out in what their leaders insisted was not a strike. These leaders, who have an unexpired contract, predicted a return to work Monday. While neither the company nor the union would discuss the difficulty, it was understood to have arisen from the demotion of a few men from jobs as foremen. The union was said to be demanding their reinstatement.

Bandits Escape

Huron Walters and Floyd Hamilton, bank robbers, were hunted throughout the state last night by police and federal agents. They are wanted for the robbery last June 7 of a federally insured bank at Bradley, Ark. Hamilton is a brother of Ray Hamilton, gangster, who was electrocuted in Texas three years ago for killing a guard in a prison break.

Search for the two followed the escape of Walters after an automobile chase in the southern part of the county by Summit police. He stopped the car and fled on foot. In the car police arrested two women, Lorraine Wilson and Neal Hearn of Shreveport, La., companions of the gunmen, and two men who identified themselves as Theodore Lee and Robert Warren of Coal City, Ill.

Walters, police surmised, forced a motorist to drive him to a tourist camp near Joliet. There he joined Hamilton and both fled south. The girls said they met the two gunmen in the south and agreed to accompany them to Chicago. They had stopped at the tourist camp where they met the other two men. Walters and the others had been returning to the camp after a visit to several taverns when the chase started.

CIGARET FLIPPED FROM A WINDOW; WORKER BURNED

LABOR SLUGGING VICTIM GUARDED IN LOMBARD HOME

Horner Calls on Sherif to End Terror.

An armed guard in his home last night protected Warren B. Bolton, a realty dealer and trucking contractor, from further attacks by labor sluggers who have terrorized a Lombard home building project for six weeks. Still weak from a savage gang assault Wednesday, Bolton yesterday left the hospital.

His employer, William Wallace, a La Grange contractor, provided the guard when Bolton's family became terrified by threatening telephone calls and mysterious carloads of men passing their secluded home at frequent intervals.

The Day's Developments.

The guard, a retired Chicago policeman, was installed after a day which brought these other developments:

1. Gov. Horner called on Sherif Arthur Bennett of Du Page county to curb the terrorists responsible for a chain of sluggings, beatings, and other violence.

2. Faced with a demand by Wallace that the village deputize fifteen ex-Chicago policemen he intended to hire as guards, Lombard officials and Sherif Bennett promised full protection when work is resumed next week.

Afraid They'll Invade Home.

"Bolton's family is afraid that the sluggers will kidnap him, lure him out on a fake call, or even invade his home," declared Wallace who visited the Bolton home last night.

"He has five children, an elderly mother, a wife, a sister, and a younger brother to support. All day they have received telephone calls threatening harm to Bolton for bucking the picket line at my project. Some of the calls were obviously fake, trying to get him out on a job where he could be beaten again."

Bolton had contracted with Wallace to deliver material to the project at Ash and Martha streets. Since June 14 a picket line of the powerful Du Page County Building Trades council prevented any work, other than a start at excavation.

Ambushed, Left for Dead.

Bolton delivered one load of gravel Wednesday, despite picket threats, while Chief of Police Richard Groote watched complacently. Later in the day, just outside the village, three car loads of hoodlums ambushed him, beat him with crow bars and a blackjack, and left him for dead.

Warants have been issued for four of the men who slugged Bolton. One of those named was arrested Thursday and released on bond. He is Roy Leverenz, a business agent of the trades council.

Wallace and Charles P. Peirce, executive vice president of the Landis Award Employers' association, sent Gov. Horner a telegram, calling attention to the attack as further evidence of the breakdown of law and order in the county. Wallace, as a Landis employer, started his project on an open shop basis.

Through his administrative assistant, Alexander Wilson, Gov. Horner replied yesterday by addressing a wire to Sherif Bennett. The governor referred to Wallace's communication, and then said:

"I am sending you this telegram in order that you may take the necessary steps to enforce the laws of your county."

Last night the sherif attended a meeting of the village board of Lombard, called by President J. C. Alderman at the request of Chief Groote. Groote, who heads a three man police force, had been asked by Wallace to give his private guards authority.

"For more than six weeks my building project has been tied up by pickets who have slugged my employés, dumped trucks, and prevented any work from being done," Wallace told the board.

Calls Sherif and Police Afraid.

"It is obvious that there is no adequate police protection. It looks like the sherif and the village police are afraid to do anything about it. They even cater to this gang which has them bluffed. I propose to hire fifteen guards and pay them at my own expense. Will you deputize them?"

After lengthy discussion, President Alderman said the village would give the guards authority as policemen, providing they were men of good character. Wallace said they would be former Chicago policemen with honorable discharges. Such a man, he said, is the Bolton guard, John Mullen, 4209 Congress street.

"You can't do that," interrupted Sherif Bennett. "I've looked up the law and no man can be appointed a deputy of any kind who has not resided in the county for a year.

Promises Regular Deputies.

"And Mr. Wallace, you don't need to bring in any strangers or guards of any sort. As I've always told you, I will give you all the protection you need with my own men and as many more as are necessary.

"I told you to call me for help when you brought in material. If you had done that Bolton would not have been slugged. You tell me that you forgot to call.

"Yesterday you said you were bringing fifty men to start work. This morning I hired some extra deputies and had a force of eighteen there. No one showed up. You tell me now you changed your mind."

After further discussion it was decided to leave the situation as it stands. Wallace said he would not attempt to do any more work at the project until after an injunction hearing Tuesday.

On that day Circuit Judge William J. Fulton at Wheaton is to hear his plea for an injunction against building trade pickets interfering with his workmen.

Should the injunction be granted, Sherif Bennett promised to supply twenty-four hour protection at the project with armed guards on all material trucks.

If the injunction is denied Alderman said the village board and the sherif will meet Tuesday night to decide what further protection to supply. The sherif insisted that in any event his deputies will respond if Wallace ever asks for guards to protect workmen or truckers.

"If the injunction is granted," Sherif Bennett said, "I will assume full responsibility for protecting workmen at the project at all times and will see that material is moved to and from the project without molestation."

Time to Do Something.

"Here is a man trying to build some houses in our community," commented P. R. Dieterich, a board member, "and some one dumps his trucks and slugs his workmen. It's about time the village did something. I'm against disorder."

During the session, Harvey B. Lucas, chairman of the police committee, asked Wallace if he had not received $3,000 from the Landis association to finance his fight. Wallace denied this emphatically, and insisted he had received no financial aid from any one.

State's Attorney Russell W. Keeney was unable to attend the meeting. Earlier he had declared: "I am opposed to violence of any sort in this county and will do my best to prevent it. But the Ladis award people have given very little coöperation."

Because of the union sentiment in the county, particularly among elected officials, the council seldom has been called on to demonstrate its strength. But when it did, it was always successful.

Attacked on Federal Job.

Last winter the federal government started to erect a $68,200 postoffice in Downers Grove. Earl Rieck, secretary and treasurer of the trades council, approached the contractor, E. J. Biggs, and said:

"You'll have to have our men on the job or there will be a strike."

Biggs, a former carpenter, had employed twenty-nine men on the project. All were union, but two did not live in the county. Biggs went ahead as he planned.

In March several Du Page union men appeared. One attacked Biggs. In the ensuing fight, Biggs, his brother, Frank, and several of the union men were injured. One of those said to have been among the sluggers is Charles Crider, now on picket duty in Lombard.

Rieck called a strike and Biggs filed charges against the terrorists in the federal court. The complaint later was dismissed after negotiations were begun.

Wheaton Case in 1933.

Then there was the case in 1933 of the new Wheaton postoffice. Valentine Asquini, a Chicago contractor, started the job. On Jan. 4 a mob of 200 men, armed with stones and shovels, drove four stone masons and several laborers away.

Wheaton officials admitted the mob was composed of members of the trades council who resented the use of outside workmen on the project. Town officials described the disorder as a "demonstration for Wheaton labor." No action was taken, although the foreman, E. H. Jeschke, was kicked and beaten severely. Asquini later acceded to the council demands and work progressed quietly.

A year ago in April, Rieck was the target of a mysterious bomb. It tore a hole in the concrete driveway of his home at 44 3d avenue, Lombard, and shattered windows in the garage. Rieck merely shrugged when asked for an explanation and said the council had had no trouble.

CURB CAR; TAKE $10,000 IN MILK DRIVERS' FUNDS

R. G. Fitchie, president of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, local 753, was forced from his car by gunmen and robbed of $10,000 in union funds yesterday afternoon.

He was taking the money to a loop bank accompanied by Joseph L. Patterson of the union when three men in a dark sedan forced their car to the curb in Adams street just east of Racine avenue. Two of the men left their car, pointed guns at the union men, and ordered them from their auto.

The union office is at 220 South Ashland avenue. The funds included $9,000 in non-negotiable checks and $1,000 in cash. Fitchie lives at 642 North Lotus avenue.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

TOMORROW BECKONS

By CALEB

MANY WEEKS ago we chose from among several designs the one that will appear on each gift box from Field's next Christmas. For months our people have been scheming, planning for fall—for winter. Blue prints are complete, lumber and materials are on hand, workmen are ready to carry out new floor plans, new themes in decoration.

The window displays you will see on State Street this fall are ready—or rapidly taking shape in our upstairs workrooms. Interior displays and decorations even now are being designed and built. All this is because in our work, today must always yield a part of the stage to tomorrow.

It is not easy to let one's mental viewpoint grow old here because tomorrow beckons—always. Challenging, exciting, new, absorbing—we live in a fabulous, kaleidoscopic set that changes and improves endlessly. The buyer who returns from a brief absence in Europe finds things here he never saw before. His own division or his neighbors' may have been changed almost overnight.

Each floor, each division, each section has its own personality which is expressed with adroit enthusiasm. Certain departments expand with increasing demands for their items; entirely new quarters mushroom into being as need for them arises. Decorations, displays, signs—all must change and develop with them. There is never a dull moment.

All this is possible only because those in charge stand continually on mental tiptoe. Tomorrow beckons with insistent urgency—and they answer. Long weeks of preparation bear fruit in a concerted plan, carried out with effective precision.

Result is a stage setting of enormous proportions, and those who are responsible for the results take an artist's pride in it all. From the buyer who finds and chooses the merchandise to the carpenter who builds a new wall, there is a sense of proprietorship and personal triumph.

And when the day comes to present each new achievement, the keen enjoyment and thorough appreciation of a discriminating audience furnish the reward we strive for and value above all else. But even in the midst of a splendid opening of a vivid today, our minds move on again—for tomorrow beckons.

PACIFIC HIDES FATE OF CLIPPER AND 15 ABOARD

Ships and Plane Scan Ocean in Vain.

The plane's radio silence carried forebodings to the searchers. She was equipped to send and receive messages from the ocean surface, and, barring the possibility of a high dive into the Pacific, was considered as seaworthy as any small yacht.

From her log as made public by Pan American Airways, operators of the trans-Pacific airline, there also was an inkling that the big Clipper was heading into unfavorable weather. The last message mentioned rain. For several hundred miles she had been speeding through a moderately rough wind.

Despite the negative result from the initial searching, Pan American Airways officials remained optimistic.

The Clipper was in charge of Leo Terletzky, ace Pan American pilot, and K. A. Kennedy, a division trafic manager of the company, was among the passengers.

Others on Big Ship.

The other passengers were Maj. Howard C. French of Portland, Ore.; Dr. Earle B. McKinley, noted authority on leprosy, and Dr. Fred C. Meier, principal pathologist of the department of agriculture, both of Washington, D. C.; E. E. Wyman, Curtiss-Wright aircraft official of New York City, and Wah Sung Choy, Chinese restaurateur of Jersey City, N. J.

In Terletzky's crew were First Officer M. A. Walker, Second Officer G. M. Davis, Third Officer J. M. Sauceda, Fourth Officer J. W. Jewett, Engineer H. L. Cox, Assistant Engineer T. B. Tatum, Radio Officer W. McCarty, and Steward I. Parker.

Pacific Challenges Airmen.

The Pacific has been a stern and lethal challenger to her aerial conquerors, having taken the lives of sixty-one flyers since Naval Commander John Rodgers made the first but not very successful flight from California to Hawaii in 1925.

But Pan American Airways, in nearly two years of trans-Pacific operations on a scientific basis, pointed to its record of 1,900,000 miles without a passenger fatality and only one major crash—the explosion of the Samoan Clipper off Pago Pago last Jan. 11 in which the noted pilot, Capt. Edwin C. Musick, perished with his crew of six.

The disappearance of the Hawaii Clipper also did not affect the scheduled departure of her sister ship, the China Clipper, from Alameda, Cal.

First aspects of the Hawaii Clipper hunt indicated it might approach the proportions of the epic search for Amelia Earhart and her pilot, Frederick J. Noonan, who vanished July 2, 1937, while flying 2,500 miles across the South Pacific from Lae, New Guinea, to lonely Howland Island, American outpost in the south seas.

Largest of the overseas planes now in regular trans-oceanic passenger service, the Hawaii Clipper and its two sisters, the China Clipper and the Philippine Clipper, were built to stand off the sea, and equipped to care for their occupants in emergencies.

They have watertight bulkheads, making them relatively buoyant in case of leaks in violent landings. Each has a cruising range of 3,000 miles, nearly twice as far as the hop from Guam to Manila. In ordinary conditions they fly with half their potential motive power.

Carries Life Boats, Life Belts.

In the hold were collapsible lifeboats and individual life belts. There were rations aboard to last several days. The plane also was equipped with "breather cups," fitting over the mouth of the wearer, to collect moisture he ordinarily loses through respiration. This moisture condenses into water, which in an emergency may be used again and again.

The Hawaii Clipper also carried a kitetype antenna to maintain wireless communication in the event of a forced landing. She was fully equipped to send and receive while afloat.

Her crew had three methods of navigation—dead reckoning, celestial observation, and by radio direction finder. There are no radio beams on the eastern end of the trans-Pacific route, but the direction finder, operated from all Pan-American intermediate points, usually gives a plane instant and accurate information on bearings.

Honeymoon Keeps Clipper Officer Off Missing Plane

HONOLULU, July 29.—(AP)—Junior Flight Officer Lloyd Osborne's honeymoon saved him from being aboard the Hawaii Clipper, which disappeared last night en route from Guam to Manila. Osborne, on a month's leave of absence, was married Tuesday to Joan Dowsett of Honolulu. Osborne, whose home is in West Newton, Mass., was captain of the Yale university swimming team in 1930.

TEN CANDIDATES FOR SENATE WARNED TO LIST CAMPAIGN FUND

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—The senate campaign expenditures committee warned ten senatorial candidates in four states today that they must file reports of contributions to their campaign funds before the primaries next week.

Chairman Sheppard [D., Tex.] said the "reminders" were going to these men:

Senators Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the senate majority leader; Senator George L. Berry [D., Tenn.], Gerald Winrod, Jess Fisher and Dallas W. Knapp, Republicans, and Joe Dohner, Democrat, all of Kansas, and Senators Bennett C. Clark, Joseph Davis and Robert Young, Missouri Democrats.

ILLINOIS GUARD DIVISION MOVES ON CAMP GRANT

Troops of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, began moving toward Camp Grant by truck and train shortly after midnight this morning. They will be at the camp for two weeks of intensive training and military maneuvers. Every unit of the division, including about 9,400 men, will be represented.

The last unit to leave the Chicago area will be the 108th Engineers. They will leave the armory at 34th street and Wentworth avenue shortly before 9 a. m. and take the street cars to Van Buren and State streets. From that point they will parade to Adams street and then west to the Union depot at Canal street.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the division, said the coast artillery at Camp Logan and Fort Sheridan will participate in the final week of training drills.

HUNT MERCHANT MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING 4 DAYS

The strange disappearance of George N. Sandberg, 68 years old, owner of the Sandberg Furniture company, 6614 South Halsted street, was reported to police last night.

He went motoring with his wife, Mabel, Monday night. Shortly after their return to their home at 2420 Geneva terrace some one rang the front door bell. Mrs. Sandberg went to the door, but found nobody there. At that moment her husband disappeared, presumably going out a back door.

CHARGE OF THEFT AGAINST REFORM LEADER DROPPED

An embezzlement charge against Claude Warner, volunteer leader of Lake county's gambling raids, was withdrawn yesterday by his former employer, C. J. Yeager. At the same time Warner and Special Prosecutor Charles E. Jack announced that raids in the resort region of the county will continue. A Fox lake club was raided early yesterday and four slot machines were seized.

The embezzlement case against Warner was brought before Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt, Waukegan. Yeager had charged that when Warner worked for a collection agency connected with his Physicians Service bureau, he took $321. Warner maintained he borrowed the money and said he had paid back some of it. He said he had a promissory note on the balance.

Yeager would not admit the money had been loaned but said he wanted to withdraw the charge because he didn't want to imply that it was connected with politics or the gambling raids.

USES DEATH HOOD TO KILL HIMSELF IN PALMER HOUSE

Henry Kenyon Pope of 807 Forest avenue, Wilmette, was found dead yesterday in a room in the Palmer house. He had ended his life by inhaling chloroform soaked into an elaborate death hood.

Pope, a salesman, 45 years old, had suffered business reverses in 1929 and again recently, police were told. Shortly after registering at the hotel on Thursday he phoned his wife, Marcella, and told her he would be detained at a business conference. He gave her the number of his room. When she was unsuccessful in reaching him, she insisted that a house detective enter her husband's room.

Northern Lights Flash Over Chicago Territory

Night owl Chicagoans were treated early today to a flashing display of the northern lights. The electrical disturbance brightly illuminated the sky at times. Some interference with telegraph wires was reported. The most trouble occurred north and northwest, and particularly in the St. Paul area. Several months ago a severe aurora borealis crippled wire service over half the nation.

PHOSPHATE LAND DEAL STUDIED BY TVA COMMITTEE

Half Million Profit to N.Y. Corporation Examined.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., July 29.—[Special.]—Phosphate land purchases by the Tennessee Valley authority that yielded a net profit of $527,185 to the International Agricultural corporation of New York were considered by the congressional investigating committee in today's hearing.

The investigators recessed until Monday, and the phosphate subject is expected to be taken up again next week when Dr. Harry A. Curtis, TVA chief chemical engineer, takes the stand.

John B. Blandford Jr., TVA general manager, described in detail the organization of the hydro-electric-social experiment, the ultimate cost of which is set at half a billion dollars. At the end of his testimony, Representative Charles Woiverton [R., N. J.] asked Blandford about the phosphate land deal.

Poses Question on Profit.

"I've been impressed with this comprehensive description of the organization and activities of TVA," said Wolverton. "But it has created in my mind this thought: With all that comprehensive force of competent men, why was it not possible for some one among the experts to find out that land purchased by TVA would yield a profit of more than half a million dollars to the seller?"

Blandford said he was confident that the authority got value received and added that a complete answer would be given next week when Dr. Curtis takes the stand.

The tract is composed of some 553 acres of phosphate deposits in Williamson county and was acquired last year by the TVA. The purchase price was given as $678,459. The land had been bought by the International Agricultural corporation for approximately $140,000. Early this year the corporation announced it had cleared a profit of $527,185 through the sale.

Navigation Report Asked.

Wolverton asked Blandford to bring a report on navigation on the Tennessee river when he appears next week.

"I ask for this," he said, "because last night I met a man, Frank Putnam of Houston, Tex., who told me he finished a river trip last week. He had traveled on the Golden Eagle steamer from St. Louis, down the Mississippi, up the Ohio and Tennessee to Sheffield at Muscle Shoals. He said about the only trafic they passed on that trip was a raft of logs with seven boys on it."

ARMY AIRPLANE CROSSES U. S. IN LESS THAN 10 HRS.

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Piloting an army pursuit plane without special equipment, Lieut. H. L. Neely made a secret flight from San Francisco to Mitchel field, Long Island, yesterday in 9 hours and 55 minutes flying time, air corps officers announced today. The elapsed time was eleven hours.

Lieut. Neely landed at Mitchel field at 8:05 o'clock last night and at 11:18 a. m. today left here in his Seversky P-35 plane for Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich., where he is stationed.

Although no official statement could be obtained at the field, yesterday's flight was said to be the fastest west-east tronscontinental crossing in an army pursuit plane.

CHICAGOAN, SERGEANT IN MARINES, IS KILLED AS HIS PLANE CRASHES

Raleigh, N. C., July 29.—[Special.]—Ernest S. Bowker, a sergeant of the Marine corps, was killed today in a plane crash near Varina, N. C. Jens C. Aggerbeck, an aviation cadet who was piloting the ship, saved himself in a parachute leap. Bowker's parachute apparently became entangled when he tried to jump.

Sergt. Bowker.

The plane was one of a squadron of twelve, all attached to the Marine corps, making a flight from Quantico to Paris Island, S. C. Other members of the squadron landed at the Raleigh airport. Bowker's home address is 9227 Clyde avenue, Chicago.

Two Navy Flyers Killed.

San Diego, Cal., July 29.—(AP)—Two navy flyers were killed today in the crash of a torpedo plane in San Diego bay. A third landed uninjured in a parachute jump. The dead were Radioman J. R. Pyffer, 22 years old, of Cumberland, Pa., and Pilot J. O. Rose, 27 years old. Cadet J. A. Porter was the flyer who escaped.

BAR BEGINS NEW FIGHT TO GUARD CITIZENS' RIGHTS

Quick Action Needed, Delegates Told.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 29.—[Special.]—Frank J. Hogan, newly elected president of the American Bar association, today was authorized to create a committee of nine members for the militant protection of citizens against violation of their constitutional rights.

This was one of the concluding activities of delegates at the sixty-first annual convention of the association. Hogan said he would name the committee members in ten days. Bar association delegates also approved the expansion of legal aid bureaus throughout the country to assure competent counsel for poor persons.

In accepting the presidency, Hogan declared that the creation of the civil liberties committee and increased legal aid work were his two foremost aims.

Immediate Action Urged.

"It is important," he declared, "that the association take immediate and practical steps to assure the American citizen, be he rich or poor, that if rights and immunities given to him by the bill of rghts are anywhere denied him, impartial and speedy investigation will be made.

"It should be considered that any violations of the bill of rights are intolerable. It does not matter whom they affect, whether they be committed by the mayor of an American city [listeners said this was a reference to the tactics used by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City] or by a committee of the senate. It does not matter whether these violations be committed by an administrative tribunal, a governmental department, or an official drunk with temporary power, contemptuous of constitutional limitations and reckless of the rights of others."

300,000 Assisted Each Year.

Hogan emphasized that the vigilance of the committee must extend to all classes. This country will not remain free for any unless it remains free for all, he said.

He said that there are now eighty legal aid offices in the United States, assisting 300,000 persons a year.

"I shall recommend an increase of our legal aid activities and support," he said. "The ultimate end is that every person shall be assured that his own legal problems shall be effectively met."

Hogan is 61 years old and lives in Washington, D. C. He has been a practicing attorney for thirty-six years, engaging in many celebrated trials.

REVEALS REASON HE GAVE ESTATE TO HARLEM CULT

Neighbor of Roosevelt Discusses Theories.

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Howland Spencer explained today why he had made a gift of his share of Crum Elbow, a 500 acre estate, to Father Divine of Harlem and sold the rest for his relatives. The estate is opposite that of President Roosevelt's mother.

Howland Spencer. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Spencer declared that he is going to help the followers of the colored "Messiah" prove that their economic ideals are superior to those of the President, and he predicted that Father Divine's economic views will triumph over Roosevelt's.

Finds Workers Corrupted.

"Roosevelt has so corrupted the American workers that they won't work," said Spencer. "I have found it impossible to get men to work on my estate. So I gave my share of it to Father Divine, who is doing what Roosevelt pretended to do. His followers all work and they share the fruits of their labors. They live off the fat of the land."

Mrs. Mary Tree, white, of Los Angeles, Cal., initiated negotiations with Father Divine, Spencer said. He explained that she is a follower of Divine.

Spencer was a friend of the Roosevelts until the President decided his Hyde Park estate should have the name Crum Elbow. Spencer pointed to old records to show that the Spencer estate, on the west side of the Hudson, originally was named Krum Elbow by Henry Hudson and others.

The spelling was later changed to Crum Elbow. He said the estate belonging to the President's mother on the east side of the river should be properly called "Crook's Delight," after an old Dutch farmer named Crooks. But the committee of geographical names of the department of the interior transferred the name Crum Elbow across the river.

Down Payment Is $20,000.

The selling price was $51,600. Of that amount Father Divine's followers paid $20,000 and assumed mortgages for the balance. The property was owned by the Crum Elbow Holding corporation of which Spencer was the head. His share of the property was estimated to be worth $23,000.

The deed was made out in the names of twenty-one "angels" of Father Divine's colony. Twenty Negro followers of Father Divine arrived at the estate today. They set to work cleaning up the grounds, painting the three residences and the boathouse, and preparing the hallowed acres of Crum Elbow as a "heaven."

The "angels" addressed one another by their "heavenly" names and sang as they worked. Upward of 200 other "angels" are expected within the next week, it was announced.

M'ADOO ASKS SENATE QUIZ OF CALIFORNIA VOTE CONTRIBUTIONS

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—Senator William G. McAdoo [D., Cal.] asked the senate campaign expenditures committee today to investigate contributions received by all senatorial candidates in California.

At the same time, he asserted in a telegram that charges by a political opponent that federal job holders were being forced to contribute to his campaign fund came from "desperate men who do not hesitate to resort to slander and libel to gain their ends."

The charges were made by James W. Mellen of Los Angeles, one of the candidates opposing McAdoo for the Democratic nomination.

TAX INVALIDATION TO HAVE LITTLE EFFECT ON CITY

Ruling Outlaws '38 Budget; Appeal Planned.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

A ruling yesterday of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki voiding the entire 1938 corporate appropriations of the city government will have no immediate effect on city pay rolls or other expenditures.

This conclusion was reached by city officials as they began a study of the informal ruling. Mayor Kelly said the city will appeal to the Illinois Supreme court when the order is signed. If necessary, he added, the city will ask for a writ to stay the effect of the order pending a high court ruling.

Continue on Present Basis.

"In the meantime, we will continue to operate under the 1938 budget," he said. "There is nothing else to do under the circumstances and we have not been ordered to do otherwise."

Judge Jarecki at a hearing on the city's 1938 tax levy, sustained objections which, the court said, automatically throw out the 1938 appropriations and require the city to operate under 1937 appropriation figures.

The 1938 appropriations were $57,830,977, or $4,149,483 greater than in 1937. If the city fails to win a reversal of the ruling, it may result in pay roll reductions and elimination of other items late in 1938, tax experts said. In no event would the effect of the order extend beyond next Jan. 1, as the city will then begin operating under a new budget.

Ruling Not Yet Effective.

Judge Jarecki's ruling is not yet effective. He will not sign a formal order until after Sept. 1, he said last night.

"My ruling is not final and will not become effective until it has been passed on by the Supreme court," he continued. "I am entering my order early in September to give the city adequate time to prepare its appeal."

Judge Jarecki said it is not likely that a high court ruling will be given before December. Assuming a Dec. 1 ruling sustains him, a 1938 appropriation like that of $800,000 for the airport enlargement would be affected for only one month. If the city has not spent the airport money by Dec. 1, it could put the item back in the 1939 budget and make the expenditure in January next year.

May Have No Influence.

If the effect of the Jarecki order is stayed and the high court does not rule until after Dec. 31, the ruling will have no influence on expenditures this year, the experts said.

Voiding of the 1938 budget resulted when Judge Jarecki upheld taxpayers' objections filed by Attorney Robert S. Cushman to two items of estimated revenue as illegally included in the measure. The items were $1,000,000 estimated income from the contested handbook ordinance and $2,550,000 of judgments against the county which are still before the courts.

There was no prospect that the city would get this money in 1938 and this should have been recognized when the budget was made, Judge Jarecki said.

Whole Budget Made Invalid.

In invalidating these two items it was necessary to void the whole budget, he said. A section of the state revenue laws provides that when a city makes appropriations in excess of valid revenues, the government must operate on the scale of appropriations of the previous year.

Chief city expenditure which would be effected if Judge Jarecki's ruling is upheld is the pay roll of 18,000 city employés. City workers received pay restorations this year which brought 1938 salary and wage appropriations to $45,477,000, or $4,772,000 larger than in 1937.

Two Supreme court rulings will be required before the Jarecki finding is finally adjudicated, tax experts said.

Law Now Before Court.

Now pending before the court is a test case on the constitutionality of the so-called pre-adjudication act, under which Judge Jarecki is conducting the current tax levy hearings.

If the court holds the act invalid, the Jarecki rulings in the 1938 levy hearings would be erased and count for nothing. If the court upholds the act it would still be required to decide on the present ruling on an appeal by the city.

The pre-adjudication act requires that the lower court rule on tax levies of Chicago governments before tax bills are sent out. Up to this time the procedure has been to hold hearings on tax objections after tax bills are sent out.

The new law benefits small taxpayers as they will have deducted from their bills the amounts of the levies held invalid. Heretofore only taxpayers who carry on formal court objections received reductions because of illegal levies.

Cuts City's Pegged Levy.

Judge Jarecki's ruling not only affects city expenditures but revenues as well. It would cut the city's 1938 pegged levy of 37 million dollars to approximately $34,200,000. This amount of property taxes, along with miscellaneous revenues, Judge Jarecki held, would be all that would be required to operate under the 1937 appropriation rate. In addition to other items the court decided that the 1938 levy was excessive by $800,000 due to improperly including tax warant interest as a budget item.

Including the $2,800,000 cut in the city 1938 tax levy, Judge Jarecki so far has knocked out nearly 6 million dollars of 1938 levies of Chicago governments.

He has sustained objections to $2,276,000 of the school board levy, $348,000 of the park district, and $250,000 each of the county and sanitary district. Hearing on the forest preserve district levy is scheduled for Monday.

CAFE FAN CALLED NUISANCE.

Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday set a hearing for Aug. 17 on charges that Daniel Conway created a nuisance by allowing an exhaust fan in the restaurant of his building at 6625 South Peoria street to waft cooking odors into neighboring windows.

Shooting Victims

Walter Burton.

A painter who had seen his divorced wife and their daughter only once since the child was born 14 years ago shot them both in a drunken frenzy yesterday. Then he turned the gun on himself.

The shooting took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Cannon, 14724 Center street, Harvey. The mother and daughter had been visiting there. Harvey police took the three to the Ingalls Memorial hospital.

Walter Burton, 38 years old, of 2647 Lincoln street, Highland, Ind., who did the shooting, and the daughter, Jeanne, were expected to die. The other victim, Mrs. Lillian Pearl Willis, was given a good chance to recover.

KANSAS SENATOR ASPIRANT DENIES NAZI CONNECTION

Charges Plunge Primary Race in Uproar.

Topeka, Kas., July 29.—[Special.]—The Republican party of Kansas is in uproar. The Rev. Gerald B. Winrod, who denies accusations that he is a jayhawker Nazi, is the cause. There are indications that a party split is almost certain if he is nominated for the senate in next Tuesday's primary.

Prominent Republicans have expressed opposition to Winrod, a fundamentalist minister who publishes two magazines, Defender and Revealer. A committee of Kansas Protestant pastors has denounced him as a Fascist and demanded that a congressional inquiry be made into the sources of his campaign funds.

On Fascist Honor Roll.

It has been pointed out that Winrod is on the "roll of honor" of the American Vigilante, a pro-Nazi, anti-Semitic publication in New York. His magazines, before he developed political aspirations, were filled with articles attacking Jews and Negroes and defending the persecution of Catholic and Protestant ministers in Germany.

William Allen White, newspaper publisher, has personally paid for many advertisments asserting that to nominate Winrod would be to defend a peddler of religious intolerance. White also contends that the Republican cause in Kansas, "with the Nazi stain upon it," would be hopeless.

John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, warned against Winrod's nomination. The result, he said, might be disastrous to the whole party ticket this fall.

There is no way to get an accurate line on Winrod's chances. Ordinarily the professional politicians would regard him as a freak and forget him. But the success of W. Lee O'Daniel in the primary race for governor of Texas [Democratic] has brought the feeling that votes this year are unpredictable. Kansas, it is recalled, once came near to making the goat gland doctor, John R. Brinkley, governor.

Like O'Daniel and Brinkley, Winrod makes effective use of the radio. He is an able, well educated speaker. He is 38 years old, bald, stout, and forthright. He travels with a sound truck. His audiences are large and seem to favor his candidacy. His denials of Naziism are direct.

"I don't get money from Germany," he said recently. "I am not anti-Catholic. I am not against the Jews as a race or religion. I oppose the international Jew and international communism. The insinuation that I have Fascist or Nazi sympathies is absurd. It is not made sincerely."

Discusses Source of Funds.

Winrod asserted that the sound truck was borrowed. His campaign funds, he said, were derived from sales of books in his Wichita publishing house, from the profits of his magazines, and from small contributions.

Winrod evaded responsibility for the Jew baiting, anti-Catholic articles in Defender [their tone has been softened recently]. Many articles, he said, were written by other persons and were not even read by him before publication. However, he admitted responsibility for basic policies and did not specifically disavow any of the more extreme articles.

Affirmatively, he argues for rigid observance of state's rights, absolute neutrality in foreign matters, establishment of a "noncollapsible money system," and the repeal of legislation purposely written to attack business interests.

Opposed to Winrod in the primary are Clyde M. Reed, former governor; Dallas Knapp, former state senator, and the Rev. Jesse C. Fisher, a Methodist minister. Reed has a considerable following, but he is regarded by many as having a leaning toward New Deal measures.

Republicans who dislike Reed's attitude have turned to Winrod as the one with prospects of beating him. There is a belief that if they succeed the case of the Democratic incumbent, Senator George McGill would be helped. McGill is a subservient Roosevelt supporter, but so many Kansans dislike Winrod's imputed connections that they might choose the Democrat if the choice were narrowed. McGill's only opposition is Joe Dohner, but he is not expected to poll many votes.

Republican prospects appear good, no matter who is nominated. The Democratic Governor Walter A. Huxman is unopposed, but he will have to contend in the election with an independent, Jonahtan M. Davis.

GENERAL F. R. M'COY GIVES UP COMMAND; PREPARES TO RETIRE

New York, July 29.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, known as the "American soldier-diplomat" for much of his 45 year army career, relinquished his last command today preparatory to retiring Nov. 1 after reaching the statutory age of 64. Gen. McCoy formerly commanded the Sixth Corps area in Chicago. Brig. Gen. Evan H. Humphrey succeeded him in command of the Second Corps area here.

Gen. F. R. McCoy.

A veteran of the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection and the world war, Gen. McCoy also had many peacetime duties. He was chief of staf of the military mission to Armenia, was in command of the American relief mission to Japan after the 1923 earthquake, was chairman of the Inter-American commission of conciliation and arbitration between Bolivia and Paraguay in 1929-'30 and served on the league of nations commission of inquiry in Manchuria in 1932.

SENATE PASSES BILLS TO BLOCK PENN GRAFT QUIZ

Democrats Act to Tie Grand Jury Inquiry.

BULLETIN.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 30 [Saturday].—(AP)—The state senate early today passed the principal bill in the Democratic administration's program that would enable the legislature to begin investigating charges against Gov. George H. Earle and 13 associates before a grand jury convenes. The other three bills were passed shortly afterward.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 29.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's Democratic administration set itself tonight to give the final legislative push to bills that would prevent a grand jury investigation of charges against Gov. George H. Earle and thirteen other state officials and party executives.

Senate leaders were confident they had the votes to approve the measures finally in a session after midnight tonight.

Decry Unseemly Haste.

The normal political division is thirty-three Democrats to sixteen Republicans, but in the second reading vote on the bills late today four Democrats lined up with the solid Republican opposition. The dissenters decried the administration's unseemly haste.

The after-midnight session begins a new legislative day and, with final senate approval, the bills can be sent immediately to the predominantly Democratic house for sanction of minor amendments. Then the measures would be ready for the governor's signature in record time. The legislature convened last Monday night.

Inquiry Set for Aug. 8.

The grand jury's inquiry into the charges of blackmail, extortion and coercion of state employés for political purposes is scheduled to begin Aug. 8.

The principal bill in the administration program to checkmate it would change the state's law to give only the legislature the power to investigate impeachable officials.

5 YOUNG ROBBERS ADMIT DUMPING LOOT IN THE LAKE

Homewood county highway police yesterday rounded up a band of five young robbers who told how they dumped their excess loot in Lake Michigan. Watches, guns, and other articles were heaved into the water when they couldn't sell them.

One time, members of the gang said, they pawned a diamond ring, worth $800, for $11.

The prisoners, police said, confessed 15 burglaries in Beverly Hills homes and two south side holdups. A police squad caught two of the gang after a chase of two stolen automobiles in Halsted street, west of Riverdale. The three others were arrested in their homes.

Those in custody are Fred Werp, 19 years old, 10843 Vincennes avenue; Mike Burke, 17, of 8423 Kerfoot avenue; Jay Munson, 18, of 7624 South Union avenue; Robert Toosley, 20, of 2744 West 98th street, and Robert Graettinger, 18, of 9772 Vanderpoel avenue.

THE DELUGE OF MONEY AND CORRUPTION.

The evidences of corruption in communist-Democratic politics are piling up all over the country but need not give occasion for any surprise. Corrupt politicians attached themselves at once to the New Deal because it offered them two advantages in unprecedented measure: one, appropriations of public money unequaled in any previous period of the country's history, and, second, a protective coloration of pretentious and singular righteousness. In such a combination the corrupt politicians saw the opportunities for an ultimate profit taking which in normal times would have been beyond their expectations.

It is within the calculations of the corrupt and profiteering politicians that the big pay day will fall within the next year and a half or two years. Beyond that there is uncertainty. Already the persons who profit and the people who pay for it are coming into conflict with their eyes open. A reckoning could be deferred for a number of years; as long, in fact, as the pretensions of great good will on the part of the dominating cliques could stand up under attack. As long as the people had their eyes taken off the profligacy of expenditures and were attracted only by the promises, the operations were under the cover of the more abundant life and the accounting could be deferred.

One development was politically inevitable when the politicians began to compute the months remaining to the rain of golden coin. In the scramble for preferred places they were bound to fall out, and as they fell out the evidences of their misdeeds would be revealed. Prudence and discretion must be weakened, if not cast aside entirely, when men know that in a political fight brought on by the richness of the harvest the profits will go to the survivors.

Congress, with a premonition of what was about to happen and with a desire to hold the scandal within bounds, created a committee to keep an eye on the congressional primaries and elections and investigate current charges of corruption, misuse of federal and state pay rolls, coercion of WPA employés, and the abuse of government appropriations in corrupt elections. Already this committee is as busy as a fire department on the Fourth of July in a community of tinder houses. The investigators sent into the various states, as a preliminary, have called for help and need it. New investigators are being added every day, and the committee, which probably intended in the beginning to be a moral waxworks show, has found that the spontaneous combustion of all the latent corruptibility will force it at least to simulate the greatest activity.

Already members of the committee have stated publicly that conditions in Tennessee, where Senator Berry of TVA marble land notoriety is fighting for renomination, are so preposterously bad that any election, by whomever carried, will have to go to the senate before the winner can possibly qualify for a seat by clearing himself of the turpitude which will be charged against him.

In Pennsylvania Gov. Earle has just put through his controled legislature a number of bills intended to stop a grand jury investigation of charges of corruption in the state primaries in which he defeated the C. I. O. candidate for governor, Thomas Kennedy. Similar charges involve his opposition. Such tactics are the last resort of a man who finds himself backed up against a wall which may possibly be that of a penitentiary.

The profiteering politicians who have been taking their percentages off the billions of dollars the New Deal has taken out of the treasury to promote its political campaigns and carry its elections are desperately engaged in keeping the receiving end of these expenditures in their own hands for the next two years and beating off the attempts of other men to push them aside and take over the swag. Consequently, complaints are coming in to this congressional committee from nearly every state, each complaint alleging some corrupt act or abuse of governmental office, patronage, or emergency appropriations, whether for public works, for the relief of destitution, or the subsidy of entire voting communities.

The debauchery of the voters is quite candid at its source. Such phrases as "He never went away empty handed," "You got 8 million dollars," "I am happy to reward a distinguished citizen," fall from the lips of the chief of the party. Mr. Farley has little books in which are the figures of benefits received by every section of the country, and he, campaigning, finds the book, page, and line which will interest any audience he addresses. Mr. Hopkins and his assistants freely speak to the army of WPA workers, telling them to vote for their friends, and Democratic candidates who find these labor conscripts used against them are seeking the aid of the congressional committee to expose the scandal and stop the injustice.

On the eve of many of the southern primaries in which blacklisted senators and representatives will be up before their voters, Mr. Hopkins said that the southern WPA lists would be increased by 200,000 and the pay raised. Political and private profit taking in Washington has engaged the activities of persons most closely attached by family and other ties to the administration.

It was inevitable, as the politicians whose mouths have been full of the phrases of the New Deal and their pockets full of its money came into what they thought was the last stretch of this golden era, that they should fall to fighting among themselves for survival and for a last whack at the stream of money which they know must soon be reduced, either by a change of administration or by the drying up of the sources from which it is obtained. They know that these squandering eras have their automatic limitations. They are stopped either by prostration or by rebellion. They can't last forever and only the strongest will survive to get the last dollar.

Such being the incentives, it is unescapable that the present campaign should be the most scandalous of recent years. The corruptionists pin their hopes on the possibility that the illusions regarding the better purposes of the planned society still prevail as a protection for rescality and plain stealing.

SABER RATTLING AND AN ALLIANCE.

For the second time in a generation German saber rattling has forced an Anglo-French military alliance. The recent visit of the king and queen of Great Britain to France was intended to make a ceremonious announcement to the world that the French and the English had again pooled their resources and, as it was expressed, would be found under one command with the union jack and the flag of France twined together. The British have not excluded a German understanding. They seek it. But the alternative has been presented in the Campus Martius fashion which Europe best understands.

Years before the world war Germany, under the kaiser and probably because of the kaiser, forced the same thing. The British then were seeking to come to an understanding which they thought was natural. Their ties with Germany were numerous and they thought that their points of conflict—commercial and imperial—could be softened and made harmless. The kaiser's genius for giving unnecessary offense, as in the Boer war, and of being disagreeable to the royal family, from which he was descended, only ornamented the naval policy of building against the British fleet, a competition which Great Britain never has tolerated in a great continental military power.

The British tried to persuade their German cousins that a rival fleet was not required by German necessities and that the greatest army in the world should satisfy German imperial needs. They were unsuccessful and this real threat to their sense of security, coupled with the bluster of the kaiser in international diplomacy, drove them to the secret understanding which Earl Grey told the ministry must be honored when France was in danger in July, 1914.

The naval problem which forced the French and British military alliance effective for the world war was not a stumbling block this year. The British and the Germans reached an agreement on naval ratios and eliminated that controversy, but Hitler, succeeding to the kaiser's realm, made himself such a menace to the peace of Europe that again the British have been driven away from what Hitler himself really understands to be the best policy and into another complete and tight military alliance with France. The evil genius of the kaiser has been inherited by the Austrian successor to the control of Germany. His own common sense has counseled him against what he has done, and he has conceded that Germany's best paths were those that did not encounter British obstacles. The spirit of the neurotic bravo has prevailed over common sense and if he does reach an agreement with the British it will now be subordinate to the first claims of France upon British resources and military coöperation.

A LESSON TO THE LAWLESS.

Judge Dady of Lake county has refused to modify the ten sentences for contempt of court which he imposed in connection with the disorderly strike at the Chicago Hardware Foundry company's plant in North Chicago. When the illegal blockade of the factory was finally broken and those employés who all along had wanted to return to work were enabled to do so without fear of bodily injury, the rioting ceased and the strike ended.

Thereupon all parties to the controversy agreed to ask Judge Dady to grant clemency to the offenders. The situation in which he was placed was a difficult one, but the decision reached was unquestionably sound. The orders which had been defied by the rioters were not his personal requests but the mandate of the court over which he presides. To permit impassioned partisans to disobey the orders of the courts, engage in acts of violence and remain unpunished is to destroy every one's faith in an orderly society and the power of government to maintain it.

Conflicting interests, opposing views, and rival ambitions are a continual threat to peace and order in every society. The primary duty of the state is to see that these conflicts when they arise do not result in violence. It was for that purpose that Judge Dady issued his injunction in the North Chicago strike. When the order of the court was flouted, the headstrong men who were responsible for the acts of the mob had to be punished. To have let them go scot free would have invited the next group of angry men to take the law into their own hands.

WATERMELON NOTE.

[Providence Bulletin.]

It rejoiceth the heart to learn that four southeastern states—Georgia, Florida, and the Carolinas—have established a marketing agreement to ship this year only the cream of their watermelon crops. The melons will have to meet the test of "U. S. No. 1," and that means grade A, which is generally understood as "the very best."

No longer will there be need of exercising melon omniscience in marketing. All housewives may maintain a mental serenity, for the melons will be passed on by government experts before being shipped. So it will be possible to forget the traditional test which is not invariably dependable—"You thump 'em and if they goes 'plink' they's green; if they goes 'plunk' they's ripe." Now, because of this interstate agreement there will be what amounts to a federal guarantee, and if you get a melon that is not up to scratch probably you should inform the nearest G-man.

Another bit of melon news is to the effect that the Minnesota agricultural experiment station has developed an undersized melon which is calculated to fit neatly into a modern refrigerator for a small family. The forecast throughout is for a very nice watermelon summer. And that is cheering, although it does not promise much sustenance. The food value of a watermelon is an infinitesimal fraction above zero. About all you get is water, color and an exceedingly mild flavor, although the melon is said to be a fair source of vitamin C, and that is probably worth something.

FORTNIGHT FOR HAPPINESS.

Vacation time is here again
And I shall start pretending
(Beat gently, eager heart!) that my
Two weeks will be unending.

I'll lock away all stinging cares;
A mountain view's a token
That far from asphalt streets are ways
To keep a heart unbroken.

The peace of trees will gladden me
And maybe softly walking
Within the woods at dusk I'll hear
The forest creatures talking.

I'll have no cramped apartment but
Fanned by the stately plumes
Of cedared hills for fourteen days
I'll own a thousand rooms.

A conundrum that cropped up during a discussion of another new historical novel, And Tell of Time, by Laura Krey, which will be out next month:

Why is a historical novel like an old fashioned novel? Answer: Each is a fictitious tale based on a stern reality.

From the pleasing foreword of And Tell of Time:

The men who rode across Kentucky with clanking spurs a century ago are dead now; and the men who brought their slaves, and their wives, and their children out of Georgia and Carolina and Louisiana into Texas are all dead, too. But thirty-five years ago some of them were still living, sitting quietly under the warm sun, ready to talk and die.

One of my own family, for instance, could describe every turn of the road from Carolina to Texas. All that the wise and learned have ever read in musty documents about the opening of the southwest he knew first hand. Night after night on his long front gallery, as the dark came on and the hoot-owls flew out of the chinaberry tree, he would tell me what he remembered. Like that I learned history . . . and even yet it seems strange to me to read it cold and dead shut up in books.

Today's Grandmother Speaks.

Maybe the grandmother of today has resorted to short skirts and permanent waves to compensate for the love she is not allowed to give her grandchildren. They are reared so systematically that they have to scream their little lungs out without getting the loving pat that would comfort them. Grandmother is told point blank that her presence will be tolerated between 3 and 4—Sammy's playtime—if she agrees not to touch him or tell him what a darling boy he is because it would spoil him. He actually grows up not knowing the meaning of the word grandmother. The stories you refer to are frowned upon and the cookies she used to provide are not allowed on Sammy's diet.

So please don't blame grandmother for the passing of herself. She is still there, in spite of the short skirts and cocktails she must go in for if she wants any recognition at all—and she's ready to come back when the little folks need her.

A Grandmother.

Dear June Provines:

Where has the proverbial grandmother gone? She's gone to work to support her children and her grandchildren. She does not blazon it forth in neon signs, but somebody has to work, and she has sat, figuratively only, in the rocking chair for so many years that she feels that now it is her turn to get into action.

One of the species could have been heard on a southbound bus last night, courteously refusing a proffered seat by, "You see, I've been sitting all my life, so it would not be fair to take your seat!"

LOOK TO THE DIET IN VERTIGO.

MANY of us have had a momentary sensation of things going round and round; for example, on rising quickly after lying down—changing one's position suddenly. Mild attacks of dizziness—even those that persist for a few hours—may be due to some circulatory disturbance originating in the digestive tract. Often characterized by what is known as biliousness, such incidents may be relieved by Epsom salts or some other saline laxative. Food should be restricted temporarily, with a light diet for a few days thereafter.

But should the manifestation recur frequently, or grow in intensity, more heed will have to be paid to it. Quite often it will be associated with some ear trouble. Wax in the external canal, a foreign body such as an insect, middle ear disease, or plugging of the duct which leads from the throat to this space [Eustachian tube]—one or all may be responsible.

Ménière's disease accounts for a large number of cases and in migraine every object in the room may be on a tear—dancing and weaving about.

But the primary purpose of this discussion is to call attention to the fact that swelling [edema] within the inner ear may be due to an allergic reaction [sensitivity to some irritant]. As a result, vertigo may become the dominant complaint—the first to appear, the last to leave.

Several recently reported cases point the finger directly to food sensitivity. The victims exhibited dizziness, ringing in the ears, nausea, and vomiting. Each was helped through the administration of adrenal extract, while further recurrence was prevented by the omission of edibles found to be disturbers.

As many of us know, the onset of a rather sharp and severe digestive upset may be accompanied by giddiness. This brings up the question, "Can a toxin be the source or does the body react to something on the bill of fare—to the presence of irritation within the large bowel?"

The case is reported of a man, aged 52, who for several years had suffered from spells which were so incapacitating that finally hospital care was required. Careful examination disclosed that he had been entirely free from ailments. All the organs were found to be normal.

Inasmuch as the "everything-is-whirling" episodes occurred on the average at least once a week it was felt that the keeping of a food diary might lead to the elimination of the inciting factor. Milk was the pièce de résistance for forty-eight hours, whereupon eggs, bread, and potatoes were added one at time on succeeding days. All went well until a dish of raspberries was included in the full diet which he had reached after about two weeks. Within three or four hours his headache began and, a short time thereafter, dizziness. This increased until he had a typical attack. Raspberries were then labeled as impossible from his point of view. Again all went well until one of the meals contained fish, whereupon the same series of uncomfortable symptoms ensued.

It was found that there was nothing in his diet, other than these two edibles, to cause his trouble; in fact, as long as both were omitted there were no further attacks. Later the ingestion of raspberries and loganberries was followed by a mild recurrence—nothing comparable to his earlier discomfort. He found no handicap in giving up the offending fruits, because he was able to take strawberries, blueberries, cantaloupe, peaches, plums, etc., without the slightest effect.

Unfortunately, every one may not respond to so simple a program—which again emphasizes the necessity of individual study of every victim, particularly where numerous causes are suspected.

IRON IN THE DIET.

Mrs. H. P. writes:

I am slightly anemic.

1. Is it possible to obtain enough iron through diet alone?

2. If so, what foods are rich in this mineral?

REPLY.

1. Yes.

2. There is a long list of foods high in iron. The following are easily available: Beef juice, parsley, apple butter, beef liver, molasses, egg yolk, watercress, raisins, apricots [dried], dried beef, dandelion greens, black walnuts, beef kidney, calves' liver, dates, beef heart, breakfast wheat, lean beef, almonds, spinach, dried figs, brazil nuts, prunes [dried], lean chicken, oatmeal, corn, roast veal, cooked barley, turnip greens, sauerkraut, oysters, mushrooms, maple syrup, bacon [cooked crisp], Boston brown bread, and cooked beet greens.

DIET AND FISTULA.

F. B. writes: Would a peptic ulcer diet be suitable in a case of fistula? I have had two operations, but the trouble recurs.

REPLY.

Any diet that is conducive to soft stools will be helpful.

Many rectal fistulae are due to tuberculosis. In the hands of a skilled physician you should be able to obtain a complete cure.

RIGHT TO PROPERTY.

Joliet, Ill., July 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister and I were willed a lot in Illinois in 1930. The will, however, was [1] not recorded and was [2] not signed by a lawyer. I have the deed to the lot in my hands and also the papers to show that all taxes were paid up to the year 1930.

3. Do we have full right of ownership now or will we have to take the will to court?

4. How much would this cost?

5. How much would it cost to have an abstract made on the lot the original purchase of which dates back about forty years? P. J. M.

1 and 2. These are not required by the Illinois statute.

3. If you mean that the testator died in 1930, then the limitation period established by court decision has expired as to claims against the estate and it seems possible that you might persuade a purchaser to accept the title in reliance on affidavits as to heirship. Except for this point, probate proceedings in general would be necessary in order to produce a salable title.

4. The cost of probate proceedings would depend on the attorney whom you employ.

5. Depends on the number of transactions in the chain of title and on other facts that are not before us. You could ask the title company for an estimate.

FROM A MAYTAG WORKER.

Newton, Ia., July 27.—If there is a governor of any state in the Union who allows the C. I. O. to tell him what to do, it is Kraschel of Iowa. He's using the state militia in order to assist in violation of the laws instead of enforcing or trying to enforce them. Sure a queer situation when a Bowery tough from New York can come to Iowa and close a factory, throwing 700 men out of work and get the governor to work right along with him. Newton, Ia., is losing $300,000 in pay rolls every month.

ONE OF THE WORKERS.

HOPE IN TRUE BLUE DEMOCRATS.

Peoria, Ill., July 26.—I prophesy that Roosevelt will be a candidate for a third term. I have believed this from the first year of his incumbency. I am a lifelong Democrat, but I never considered Roosevelt a real Democrat. I was sorely disappointed when he was nominated the first time, and I voted for him with deep misgivings. The last time I did not vote for him at all.

Roosevelt will not only demand a third term but a life term, with Jimmy as the heir apparent. Now we must halt him, but in the country's dire need the Republicans are broken reeds. The only honest and efficient opposition to the rotten deal lies in true blue Democrats, such as Bailey, Glass, Byrd, Burke, and the like. They are our only hope of ridding the country of the Roosevelt incubus.

MAP OF WORLD ON HER SCALP.

Chicago, July 26.—May I voice through you a grievance toward hair dressers, at least all who have ever dressed my hair or given me a shampoo. Operators seem to love their long, sharp finger nails above the customers' comfort. They scratch the entire map of the world on my scalp, including the newest geographic changes. When I am nicely etched they take a wicked, sharp toothed comb to finish the design and, boy, O boy, do they bear down. Come on, girls, be light fingered, or can you?

Another grievance is to enter a crowded "L" and find all the men seated V-shaped. Can't they put their knees together instead of spreadeagling all over the car? Could the conductor, when he sees a V man, whack him? I'd like to.

B. C. J.

SURFACE LINE FARES.

Chicago, July 26.—Are you, the citizens of Chicago, going to let the surface lines raise the rate of the fare for the privilege of riding on their rickety 1908 rolling stock? Also the privilege of having to wait at each line and crossline from ten to twenty and sometimes thirty minutes for a street car, only to have the conductor frantically howling at the passengers, "Hurry up! All aboard," when the car finally does come?

The surface lines in Chicago have been rendering poor service for lo, these many years. Let's put a stop to it. They haven't paid for a franchise to run on the streets of Chicago for about ten years and now that the city wants to put a 3 per cent tax on them they want the fare raised.

W. E. A.

SHE PREFERS THE APOSTROPHE.

Chicago, July 27.—I thank you for writing it Soldiers' field. Surely it is dedicated to all of our soldiers, is it not? Soldier field sounds clumsy and inane. It is like saying boy dormitory, girl section, etc. LILLIAN CRASKE LEAVITT.

YOU HAVE RIGHT OF APPEAL.

Chicago, July 25.—Driving from Cubs' park, my brother-in-law, his two friends, and I were stopped by a police squad and questioned. In the course of the quiz one of the officers found under the front seat a pillow case full of rags used to clean the car, amongst which were the shreds of a pair of bloomers and slip [my wife's].

Spreading these out on the rear seat he asked, "What's this lady's lingerie doing here?" and I replied, "What about it? My wife gave me those rags to clean the car with." "Smart guy," he retorted. "Get in the car!"

We were locked up, finger-printed, and would probably have still been sitting if it hadn't been for a lad who was visiting some one in the next cell. Having been notified, my wife promptly arranged for the $25 bail each and, booked on a disorderly conduct charge, we were released after being incarcerated for twelve and one-half hours.

Appearing before Judge Eugene Holland the following day, the officer said the lady's lingerie appeared suspicious and if I hadn't been smart with him he wouldn't have locked us up. The judge asked if the other three gave him any trouble and, receiving a negative answer, promptly discharged them. Then turning to me, he said, "I'm putting you under supervision for one year!"

One is required under supervision to go to confession and communion once a month, be obedient to your parents, keep out of trouble, be home at 9:30 p. m. every day, and report once a week to a designated citizen of your locality. Violation of any of the above requirements means forfeiture of a $500 bond which must then be paid or served out in a penal institution designated by the court.

Twenty-eight years of age, married, having a baby girl 3½ years old, never arrested before, or even stopped by an officer, to say the least I have been branded a criminal for merely asserting my rights as a decent citizen.

ADVOCATE OF MIDDLE WEST.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 26.—Being a consistent reader of your paper, I have become deeply interested in your advocacy of a middle west association. The need of such an association, I believe, is recognized by all people sincerely interested in the middle west, but the urgency of the need is realized by few.

Any information which you might give me concerning organizational lines and what is planned would be appreciated; also, if there is any activity planned in various places in the middle west during the coming year, that information would also be appreciated.

LAKE AND DU PAGE COUNTIES.

Chicago, July 29.—I have been looking for a suburban home. In particular I have been investigating neighborhoods in Lake and Du Page counties. My decision has been controled by others. I will go to Lake county, where law and order are enforced, and stay out of Du Page county, where gangland rules. W. R. SMITH.

NOT ENEMIES OF BIRDS.

Waukegan, Ill., July 26.—Answering the letter which criticized us for having the firemen drive the birds out of our trees, I write to say that we residents of Gillett avenue in Waukegan are not bird haters and no nests and no birds have been destroyed. Any one who knows about grackles, robins, starlings, and martins knows they are through nesting long ago. All we wish to do is to scatter over a larger area the thousands upon thousands of birds that have been making it a practice to congregate in a small area of two blocks on our street during July and August, possibly preparing for migration. Few of these are locally hatched, but huge flocks come each evening from beyond the borders of our city to roost with us. The trees, lawns, sidewalks, and streets become so heavily littered that the odors are terrible, especially after a rain, and walking or parking an automobile along the street after nightfall is impossible.

The firemen assisted in scattering the huge flocks on one evening. Residents with noise makers and smoke smudges are still carrying on—not to harm the birds, but to scatter them more evenly throughout the trees of the city.

GILLETT AVENUE VOLUNTEERS.

A HAPPY COUNTY—NOW.

De Kalb, Ill., July 29.—Our county, De Kalb, is outstanding in economy and efficiency. All our county buildings are paid for. We never have had a county bond issue. Each county officer earns his salary.

Our county clerk, with years of experience, has evolved a correct, concise, and efficient system of books and blanks for use of the assessors and board of review.

Each township assessor's book is verified by the supervisor of assessments before being passed on to our board of review.

The board of review inpects every property on which a complaint is filed.

Our system is simple and efficient. Why should the state tax commission attempt to foist upon us a system of books and blanks less convenient and efficient, dictated by a university professor-theorist?

A TAXPAYER.

AN OVERCROWDED SCHOOL.

Chicago, July 27.—Two million dollars or more from the federal treasury for public school improvements in the city of Chicago. How much of this for the Patrick Henry school?

One of the oldest on the northwest side, the basement rooms have been condemned. The school is overcrowded and children from kindergarten to third grade go to school half a day. We parents wonder how long this situation will continue.

A FATHER.

HE PREFERS THE BUZZARD.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 26.—While Mr. Orr can be considered an able and interesting cartoonist, I think he has erred in connecting a black panther with the New Deal. The black panther is a beautiful, graceful animal. I would suggest the hyena, a buzzard, or a cockroach would be more fitting.

Gay Luncheons Precede Finale at Arlington

BY JUDITH CASS.

TO Arlington Park this afternoon will go all of the city's and suburbs' horse racing enthusiasts to attend the last day of races of the current season. Most of Lake Forest's week-end guests will be at the Post and Paddock club with their hosts and hostesses, and with the close of the race meeting Arlington regulars will leave on summer vacations.

Among the out-of-towners expected at the races is John Hay Whitney. If able to attend he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Niblack. The Sevier Bonnies of Kentucky and their children, who are stopping with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Connors en route to Canada; the Thomas Laughlins, and Mrs. Charles S. Payson of New York are other guests from away.

Mrs. Payson, who is the former Joan Whitney, is staying with the William H. Mitchells. Mrs. Mitchell is entertaining for her tonight at the Onwentsia's dinner-dance. The Laughlins, who live in Manhasset, N. Y., are staying with Ralph Hines.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn gave a dinner last night at their Lake Bluff home for the Laughlins. Mrs. Linn scarcely has missed a day at the races during the season. She will go soon to Charlevoix, Mich.

Mitchells Will Vacation in West.

The Mitchells and their children and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, another racing enthusiast, and her son, Leslie, are leaving next week for Jasper Park. Young Mr. Wheeler will go hunting in Canada. Mrs. Niblack will join her father, Edward A. Cudahy, at his summer home on Mackinac Island next week.

Missing at the gala finale of the races will be Laurance H. Armour, president of the Post and Paddock, and Mrs. Armour, who sailed yesterday from Quebec in the Empress of Britain for a holiday abroad. Their son, Laurance Jr., accompanied them. Sailing in the same boat were Mr. and Mrs. William S. Warfield III. and young Bill.

Among those who have made reservations for luncheon today at the Post and Paddock are Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., the Donald R. McLennans, John E. Wheeler, Bentley G. McCloud, the Thomas E. Wilsons, Mrs. Harry L. Thompson, and the Silas Strawns.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ruthven Moore Jr., who will be guests of Edward F. Wilson at the Post and Paddock today, are leaving next week for a ten day trip to Maine. Later they will spend two weeks in Oconomowoc with the Palmer Boothbys. Mr. Wilson's other guests today will be the Eugene Ketterings and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont III.

More September Debut Parties.

The first two weeks of September always are hectic ones for debutantes and their families, and the coming season will not be an exception. The week ending on the 17th will be an especially busy one, for a second supper-dance has been added to the calendar for that week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harris Barber, who already have planned to give a tea at home in Winnetka for their daughter, Maryphyllis, on the afternoon of the 16th, will give a supper-dance for her young friends on Wednesday, the 14th, at the Indian Hill club. The same club will be the scene of a supper-dance on the 16th, one Mr. and Mrs. Roger K. Ballard and Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. DeClerque are giving for their daughters, Miss Virginia Ballard and Miss Natalie DeClerque.

A second debut tea announced for the 16th is one Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Harper are giving at their Libertyville home for Miss Jane Harper. The Harpers and the Ballards will join forces to entertain for their daughters, their assistants and escorts at dinner at the Onwentsia following the teas. From the Onwentsia the group will go on to the Ballard-DeClerque dance.

Dinner and supper-dances are not as usual in September as they are later in the season. Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little are giving a dinner-dance for their daughter, Olivia, on Sept. 8 at the Glen View club.

Dr. and Mrs. Philip H. Kreuscher are making plans to entertain for their daughter, Jane. She will be introduced to her parents' friends at a tea during the short Thanksgiving holiday. During the Christmas holidays Dr. and Mrs. Kreuscher will give a party for their daughter's friends.

Dinners to Precede Concert at Ravinia.

The dinner parties that precede the concerts at Ravinia park are hurryup affairs, especially those given in town. Mrs. Edward A. Leight is giving a dinner in town tonight and taking her guests to hear Jascha Heifetz, Eugene Ormandy, guest conductor, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The Fairbank Carpenters are giving a dinner at their Lake Forest home.

Mrs. Louis Eckstein is entertaining for Mr. Heifetz and Mr. and Mrs. Ormandy following the concert tomorrow afternoon.

Burnett Shryock, the artist, arrived last night to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Langdon. This evening Mr. and Mrs. Paget K. Cady will give a small dinner in their home for him. Tomorrow Mr. Shryock and the Langdons are leaving for the east.

Mr. Shryock will go to Gloucester, Mass., to paint and Mr. and Mrs. Langdon will go to Nantucket for a two weeks' vacation. In the winter Mr. Shryock teaches art at Carbondale, Ill.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Interview with a Star.

Hollywood, Cal., July 29.—Norma Shearer was in her bungalow on the M-G-M lot, the colony of low roofed buildings tucked in behind the huge stages that look like hangars. In front of each bungalow is a neat garden of flowers, each garden so tiny that you wonder how they grew flowers in such a small place.

Norma Shearer.

She was in a white silk dress, buttoned up the front, and when she curled up on a couch her right stocking was wrinkled at the knee.

Here in the bungalow she was not the great star of celluloid. She was just a performer anxious about her career, wondering if the critics would like her as Marie Antionette; a trifle hurt at some things that have been said about her; puzzled as to whether or no she should play Scarlett O'Hara if her studio bought the Margaret Mitchell novel; a bit blue.

"I'd like to play that rôle. It is an important part in an important picture. Any actress would like to do it. But I've got a great deal of confidence in the judgment of the fans. Their letters tell me that they can't reconcile the part I played in 'Smilin' Thru' with the part of Scarlett, that they don't want to see me in that sort of rôle. What do you think?"

I told her that I'd string along with the fans.

"It would take courage to do the part," she said. I suggested that it would take more courage to turn it down, and that there was a distinction between courage and foolhardiness. "You've got everything to lose and nothing to gain." She nodded. "Every person who goes to the theater will go there, not to be entertained, but to act as a critic." She nodded.

"I'll do whatever the fans say," she decided. "They've been more than kind to me for a long time. If they don't want me to play Scarlett, that's good enough for me."

What did she want to do on the screen from this point on?

"I'd like to stay in the running for three or four more years," she said. "I'd like to get enough money together so that the children and others who are dependent upon me could have some security. You know, everybody seems to think that we are independently wealthy. I read the other day that I was the largest stockholder in Loew's. I've got 1,000 shares in the company. There are no Loew shares left in Mr. Thalberg's estate. The inheritance taxes, as you know, are pretty stiff.

"So when I read about my wealth I'm tempted to tell them the truth, so that they'd treat me like any other performer out here. But it's impossible to tell people those things, so you just take it and try to laugh it off and tell yourself that you're being too sensitive. There are other things, too.

"If I could ever get my hands on the writer who called me 'The First Lady of the Screen' I'd wring his or her neck. In the first place, I don't like the word 'lady.' It sends shivers up my back. I never was a lady. We were poor. I didn't even finish high school. You can't be a lady if you haven't finished school, can you? I've been working ever since I was 14—it's curious, but I always wanted to work. Not so much for the money in it, but because I never wanted to have to ask anybody for anything. I'd rather go without it. The only thing I've ever wanted deeply was affection; generally, the most you get is respect. Once I did win affection.

"What picture gave me the greatest fan reaction? 'Smilin' Thru.' People like great love stories most. No matter how we muddle up our own lives, we like to read stories or see plays or pictures which idealize love. I know that I do. Judging from their letters, so do the movie fans.

"I've found that most of the things you worry about never happen. That's why I don't fight much. There are parts I would have liked to play, parts I've played that I didn't want. Generally things turned out for the best. Mr. Thalberg gave me a sympathy for the problems of the front office. When they've asked me to play certain rôles I've played them because I knew that often the producers have been on the spot. I never was much for arguing or fighting or protesting.

"My chief asset? I've always been willing to work. I may be a couple of minutes late on a set, but I've never asked a director to stop shooting once we started. I've done the best I could with every part. Maybe it always wasn't the best possible performance, but it was the best possible performance I could give.

"In the silent days we didn't get much chance to get steeped in a character. They made up the script as we went along. 'Marie Antoinette' was the first completed script I ever had. I had a chance to learn the part and to reherse myself in it. In the old days performers used to say that it was dangerous to know lines too well because it spoiled the spontaneity. It was just an alibi for our own laziness."

A woman rapped on the door and was told to come in. She was a Russian. "I've got to learn to talk like a Russian girl for 'Idiot's Delight,'" explained Norma. "Do you want to learn Russian?" I asked the Russian lady how you said good-by and she told me and I said it, in Russian, and departed.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Well, our honey chile is out again in a movie that is sure to endear her more than ever to loyal American hearts.

Hokum though the story of "Little Miss Broadway" is, it's engaging hokum, replete with loopholes through which the Temple talent may pop out. The little heroine sings. She weeps. She sings. She is brave, pugnacious, audacious, baby dirl, grown up lady, and in every mood and tense utterly sincere, winsome, and believable. [Only they SHOULD give her singing voice a rest.]

After some touching opening scenes in an orphanage the action jumps to New York, for Betsy Brown has been adopted by an uncle who operates a theatrical hotel. The hotel is next door to the house where reside in frightful splendor the icy hearted landlady and owner of the hostelry, her mousy brother, and a nice, sympathetic, smart, and rich nephew.

Landlady Wendling's move to close the inn brings Betsy to her door and precipitates a meeting between the little girl and Nephew Roger. These two strike up a friendship that affects remarkably everybody who has anything to do with the pair. . . . No more of the story, but, believe you me, it has romance, singing, dancing—courtroom episodes—and a lot of other things I could tell you about but won't.

George Murphy makes a delightfully sympathetic teammate for Shirley. Phyllis Brooks is quite pleasing as the small heroine's cousin for whom Georgie Porgy falls, the while attending assiduously to Betsy's interests. Edward Ellis is splendid as Pop Shea and you'll enjoy Edna Mae Oliver and Donald Meek as the Wendlings. Jane Darwell, Jimmy Durante, et others in the production were all well cast.

The action moves rapidly, if not always credibly, and holds your interest.

I came away from the preview of "Little Miss Broadway" moved and impressed as I always am by Shirley's beautiful unspoilableness. She IS—not SEEMS!

See you tomorrow.

Sally to Announce Theater Party Winners in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Another double order of good news tomorrow, boys and girls!

I know that all the hundreds of boys and girls who wrote for invitations to "The Sleeping Beauty" theater party will dive for THE TRIBUNE first thing tomorrow morning. They will read the list of the winners anxiously. If your name is listed you can rejoice. It means you've won an invitation to our party at the Jack and Jill theater next Thursday.

The youngsters who are not winners will be consoled by news of another party—the one to be held on Aug. 11. It's something that boys and girls all over the world, including far-off countries like China, enjoy tremendously. We've had similar parties in previous years and I know how popular they are.

Details concerning this party and information about how to win an invitation will be in my column in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Watch for the paper tomorrow, boys and girls.

If Shoe Fits, Wear It and Shun Vanity

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Just because a girl wears a size four shoe at 18 or 20 doesn't mean size four will fit her all the rest of her life. Many of our foot ills come to us because we don't realize that our feet have grown or changed.

"Every time I have a baby," we heard a woman in a shoe store say, "I take a larger size."

Those comfortable heelless shoes you have been wearing during the summer months may have spread your feet. Extra weight may have made your feet plumper and in need of width B instead of A. Your feet may have grown on those long, healthful walks you have been taking.

Discourage the clerk who glances inside your old slipper and fits you accordingly. Insist on having your feet fitted to your requirements now. Don't be vain about admitting your feet are larger. Foot troubles will bring wrinkles and often a feeling of constant fatigue.

If you have made mistakes and have grown a fine crop of corns, throw mischief-making shoes away and be sure your next slippers are correct. The corns may vanish of their own accord. If not, ordinary baking soda moistened and held in place over the corn by a bit of tissue paper and adhesive tape for two or three nights in succession will enable you to lift the corn out. Epsom salts baths also are good.

One hospital recommends alum if your feet perspire profusely. Put half a teaspoonful of alum in hot water and soak the feet twice a week. Don't put in too much or it will be too drying. After one or two such treatments, the difference will be perceptible. It also heals tender and sensitive feet.

If your feet turn over, the shoemaker can insert a wedge in the heel and straighten your walking.

In your pedicure, cut the toenails square across to avoid ingrown toenails. If you already have them, a notch in the middle of the nail will make the toenail grow toward the middle away from the sore place. A line scratched down the middle also is a good influence. A very bad case should be treated by a chiropodist.

Benefit Musical.

Mrs. Hugo Dalmar will give a buffet supper and musical for the benefit of the Chicago City Opera student fund at 5:30 o'clock tomorrow at her home, 935 Edgemere road, Evanston. A program will be given by Margery Mayer, contralto; Gracia Hantelle, soprano, and Mark Love, bass.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

This time of year you need a spirit lifter. Here's one we thought was pretty special: A daring perfume. We know there is an old tradition that you must stick to sweet and simple fragrances in summer. We say it's a tradition that needs breaking right now. Get away from it yourself and see how elegant a dashing, brave new perfume makes you feel!

The perfume we like for breaking out of the summer doldrums has a wicked name and is, in its sophistication, quite unlike the refined but somewhat dull bouquets you find all over the place these days. But don't get the idea that it's heavy. It isn't. It won't lull you and all around you to sleep; on the contrary, it will give you a bit of the zip you need to carry you through warm days.

It's a perfume that is most difficult to describe. We can't detect a bit of a floral note in it. There is, however, a decided note of amber. It's very gay and knowing—and somehow it pleases us to wear a perfume like this with those cool, little girl clothes every one is wearing these days. Probably a subconscious yen for a touch of dramatic contrast.

This is a perfume people notice and ask you about and admire. Being a good scent [but NOT an expensive one] it clings very well and doesn't get muggy as you wear it. You can buy it in a small size, too—and we strongly advise you to take a flier at it.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Urbana, Ill., July 29.—[Special.]—Fifteen men and women singers have entered the central Illinois district contest for the Chicagoland Music Festival. Ormandy Picks Hard Task; Does It Handsomely

BY CECIL SMITH.

For the second of his eight concerts with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia Park, Eugene Ormandy, short, sandy haired conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, compiled a program that probably would not have occurred to any other conductor on earth.

Before the intermission he stormed the audience with equally richly scored and equally psychological parried war horses, Tschaikowsky's "Francesca da Rimini" and Richard Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration." After the fevered spirits of the audience had had twenty minutes to cool down, he devoted the post-intermission period to the Second Symphony of Brahms.

On the face of things it would seem a foolhardy procedure on the part of a conductor to place the Tschaikowsky and Strauss scores in immediate competition for the interest of the audience. Yet, even though he treated both scores in almost identical style, Mr. Ormandy made a go of it and earned thunderous applause for himself and for the orchestra at the close of the first half of the program.

Sumptuous tone is the Philadelphia conductor's first concern. Since he is, beyond argument, a master technician, he is able to conduct so that virtually every phrase and passage allows each instrument to present its allotted music with the maximum freedom of tone. He virtually breathes with the wind instruments and vibrates with the strings, and the players are aware that tempi are nicely adjusted to take care of their particular needs and difficulties.

With such free opportunity to display its manifold tonal virtues, the orchestra, of course, played with miraculous skill and unflagging enthusiasm.

The conductor's concentration upon tonal showmanship, however, is not always all to the good. In "Francesca da Rimini" there was nothing to cavil at, to be sure, and the work may as well be put on the shelf until some hypothetical future date when some one else can find a single drop of juice that Mr. Ormandy neglected to squeeze out of its dramatic pages.

"Death and Transfiguration," on the other hand, has more purely structural power than the conductor discovered in it. For all its gorgeous sound, the music was episodic and disjointed. The tempo of the long, introspective coda was too fast and too irregular, and failed to evoke the feeling of the slow, unyielding road to eternity that makes this one of Strauss' most noble flights of imagination.

I may be a stuffy blue nosed old Brahmin, but I felt that the Brahms symphony—magnificently though the orchestra fulfilled the demands of the conductor—served primarily to reveal a surprising monotony in Mr. Ormandy's expertly projected musical approach.

The continual insistence on luscious sound, on extremes of nuance and of dramatic effect, and the willingness to achieve an effect of the moment at the expense of long continuity, all made the Brahms sound like the Tschaikowsky. Since the Tschaikowsky had sounded just like the Strauss, the final impression was that the music of the entire concert all sounded alike. All gorgeous, but all exactly alike.

Duo-Pianists Are Successful in Grant Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Dorothy Crost and Bernice Jacobsen, duo-pianists who appeared in Grant park last evening with the Woman's Symphony orchestra, tried bringing the Poulenc concerto out of doors. The experiment turned out to be quite successful, for the excessive and often unmusical percussiveness of the first movement was entirely forgiven in the automatic beauty of the second.

Here, in the slow division of the work, the pianists managed to exploit to the full the lyrical side of Poulenc's too angular muse. Those exquisite, neo-Mozartean phrases were turned with glorious delicacy and, even more important than this, the movement boasted a natural unity and a cumulative power which are never absent marks of expert music making. And this applies to the interpretative as well as the creative side.

Without benefit of orchestra the pianists offered a Pattison transcription of the coronation scene from "Boris" and the Chasins version of the "Blue Danube" waltzes.

The former was quite lost in the immensity of sky and field which constitute the Grant park setting. Lost, too, in the remembered sonority of other performances of a work which cries aloud for all the bigness which massed instruments and massed voices can give. The latter rippled along very nicely.

With meticulous Rudolph Ganz on the conductor's stand, the orchestra gave a creditable performance of the Franck symphony and the first "L'Arlessienne" suite of Bizet. The more lyrical movements of the latter offered a foretaste of the superb playing the orchestra was to do later in the evening, when the turn of the Tschaikowsky Serenade came along.

This wonderful piece of music, which Tschaikowsky himself, I seem to have read somewhere, preferred to all his other works, was represented on last night's program only by the Elegy and the Waltz. These two movements, however, gave the orchestra opportunities to display both graciousness of texture and flexibility of line.

The waltz, especially, profited by the lightness of the tonal colorings which the conductor applied and by the plastic, expressive shapes into which the piece's joyful phrases were made to fall. Neither in the ballet suites nor in the waltz from the Fifth symphony is the lighter side of Tschaikowsky's genius displayed to daintier advantage than in this particular movement.

Introduce the Young Child to Good Poetry

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Perhaps summer is a truly leisurely time with you, when winter hustle and bustle subside and your life moves at a slower tempo. If it is, and especially if you have only one "chick," here is where you may discover poetry with your young son or daughter. A most enthusiastic assistant [in the family], who is also understanding and sympathetic with children, went over for this department a veritable mass of poetry books, and read and sifted. The result is the following collection recommended for the younger children:

"I Live in a City," by James S. Tippett, published by Harper & Brothers of New York, N. Y. [A book of poems for the city child.]

"The Busy Carpenter," by James S. Tippett, published by the World Book company of Yonkers, N. Y. [A book of poems for the city child.]

"A Child's Garden of Verse," by Robert Louis Stevenson. There are many editions of this book in all price ranges. [For the little child.]

"Ring-A-Round," edited by Mildred P. Harrington. An anthology published by Macmillan of New York, N. Y. [A collection of poems for children under six.]

"Mother Goose." There are large and small collections of these rhymes, illustrated in both inexpensive and in beautiful editions.

"Nursery Rhymes, Book No. 1," illustrated by Leslie Brooke, published by Frederick Warne & Co., Ltd., of New York, N. Y.

"When We Were Very Young," by A. A. Milne, published by E. P. Dutton of New York, N. Y. [Poems for children under six which have become classic.]

"A Child's Day," by Walter de la Mare, published by Henry Holt of New York, N. Y. [Poems which take a child through all the events of a day.]

"Fairies and Chimneys," by Rose Fyleman, published by Doubleday-Doran of Garden City, N. Y. [Poems for little children.]

"Sing Song," by Christina Rossetti, published by Macmillan of New York, N. Y. [Beautiful poems for children from four up.]

"Alphabet of Boys and Girls," by Rachel Field, published by Doubleday-Doran of Garden City, N. Y. [Book of verse for children around four and up.]

"The Fairy Flute," by Rose Fyleman, published by Doubleday-Doran of Garden City, N. Y. [A book of poems for children around four and up.]

"Poems by a Little Girl," by Hilda Conkling, published by Frederick A. Stokes of New York, N. Y. [These most beautiful poems of the thoughts and feelings of a little girl were set down by her mother as she said them.]

"Shoes of the Wind," by Hilda Conkling, published by Frederick A. Stokes of New York, N. Y. [Later poems by the author of "Poems by a Little Girl." Most beautifully felt and expressed.]

"Sung Under the Silver Umbrella," selected by the literature committee of the Association of Childhood Education, published by Macmillan company of New York, N. Y. [Poems for young children—an anthology.]

"Three Years with the Poets," compiled by Bertha Hazard, published by Houghton, Mifflin of New York, N. Y. [A collection of poems, particularly well chosen for the first, second and third years.]

Persian Bouquet is one of those floral applique designs which are at once striking and startling different. It combines fine stitching in the flowers as well as virtual blind stitching around the applique patches. The colors are typically Persian, rose, orange, green, and yellow, with red and blue stitching. In making a coverlet of this pattern, you must do every single patch accurately or the effect is lost completely. "Persian Bouquet" is a small pattern, measuring 11½ inches square, and set together with three inch bands between the blocks, surrounded by a three inch border and a one-half inch bias binding. The overall dimensions of the coverlet are 90 by 104½ inches.

Several families who are receiving relief foods have asked us recently about using potato flour in baking. They have received supplies of it and some of them haven't had much success with the baking in which it was used.

Potato flour absorbs liquids readily, so when it is substituted for wheat flour in a recipe only half as much of it should be used as is called for. Results will be better if potato flour is used in combination with wheat flour, but I presume that many of these families have only the one flour with which to work.

Potato flour induces a very active yeast fermentation, so when it is used in yeast breads the dough must be carefully watched so that the rising period isn't too long. In yeast breads, even more than in quick breads, the product is improved if a part wheat flour is used.

Since potato flour has a tendency to lump it usually is best to mix it with whatever other dry ingredients are used in a recipe before liquid is added.

If it's possible to use as many as four eggs in potato flour muffins a very good, delicate product may be made in this way:

Potato Flour Muffins.
[One Dozen.]

4 eggs, beaten separately
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¾ cup potato flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons ice water

Beat salt into yolks of egg, and sugar into the beaten whites. Sift flour and baking powder twice and fold into the whites. Fold the two mixtures together and add ice water, mixing as little as possible. Bake in muffin pans at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

A Chicago reader of this column who says she has hundreds of fine recipes from all over the world, collected throughout twenty-five years of pursuing an interest in foods, exchanged one of her own recipes for one of ours the other day. Her methods of cooking ham butts sounds good. She pours off the first cooking water to remove excess saltiness and adds more water. Then she puts into the kettle with the ham butts slices of orange and apple, a little pineapple, some celery and green peppers, and finishes the cooking, letting the fruit and vegetables cool in the liquid. The ham absorbs all these flavors and is delicious, she says.

We have a good many requests for recipes for barbecue sauce and our recipe files contain dozens of these. But here is one which may be made very simply from ingredients which most families have at hand and which makes a splendid meat sauce or meat spread for sandwiches:

Quick Barbecue Sauce.

¾ cup catsup
¼ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons vinegar

Let the ingredients cook gently together for three or four minutes.

Belvidere High School Addition Gets PWA Grant

Belvidere, Ill., July 29.—[Special.]—School officials were notified today that a WPA allotment of $56,250 has been approved at Washington for construction of a new high school auditorium-gymnasium. A special election will be held Aug. 2 on a $65,000 bond issue to match the grant.

The Housewife

Place mats are made of all sorts of materials. We found some extremely practical ones of thin cork with gay Mexican designs painted in the corners. Quite expensive, but stunning, are new ones of heavy, transparent plastic with hand painted designs. And you'll find other styles in raffia and Chinese matting.

Have you seen the attractive place mats that combine cellophane with colored cotton? These are both decorative and sturdy. The cellophane strips are in their own neutral, silver-white tone. You can get them combined with light yellow, with blue and with green.

Most inexpensive of all are the delightful mats of specially treated paper. They can be wiped off with a damp cloth. We liked the ones having a border of gay, Swedish figures, and the ones in soft, floral design. These mats have matching paper napkins.

Mundelein to Attend Beatification Rites for Mother Cabrini

Cardinal Mundelein announced yesterday that he would attend the beatification rites for Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini to be held in St. Peter's cathedral, Vatican City, on Nov. 13. The process toward the canonization of the noted Chicago nun, of which the November rites will be the second step, was sponsored by Cardinal Mundelein. The first step was the papal proclamation of veneration for Mother Cabrini last year.

It was announced that Cardinal Mundelein would pontificate at the beatification in the presence of Pope Pius XI. The cardinal also will read for the first time the oration in honor of the beata, who will be the first citizen of the United States to be elevated to that status. She was the founder of many institutions in America, including Columbus hospital, 2548 Lakewood avenue.

SYNOPSIS.

On board the S. S. Panama Queen, sailing from Los Angeles to New York, via Panama, are Anne Sydney, who has a part in a Broadway play, and her crippled and embittered sister, Mena; Arnold Vernon, elderly, rich English motion picture producer, and his coldly beautiful wife, Claire; Isobel Butler, who has a stateroom next to the Vernon suite, and hopes to get in pictures through him; Alex Reed, young surgeon returning to work after two years' illness; and gossipy Mrs. Panting. Isobel meets and arouses Vernon's interest. Anne and Alex are mutually attracted. Mena spitefully tells Alex that Anne is a heartless flirt. Pride causes Anne to hold herself aloof from him. Dr. Neil Andrews, a friend of Alex's, joins the ship in Mexico. He wants to get married and thinks Anne meets his ideals. Isobel and Arnold Vernon fall in love. He tries to buy his freedom from Claire. When she refuses he threatens to make a new will disinheriting her. The ship fights through a terrific hurricane. Isobel finds Vernon in her cabin, unconscious, hit by a storm tossed trunk. She sends Claire to him and struggles to find a doctor. Claire takes a loaded pistol, wrapped in a towel, from the purser's suite and shoots her husband, leaving the weapon in Isobel's wardrobe. She then tells Alex she found her husband wounded in Isobel's cabin. Flagg, the purser, reveals that the day before Vernon had made a new will leaving everything to Isobel. Alex operates on Vernon. The captain starts an inquiry. The stewardess reports that she found a towel of the purser's in Claire's room and that Claire had given her an emerald ring to keep silent. Claire charges the stewardess stole the ring. Mrs. Panting finds evidence against Isobel and Mena tries to throw suspicion on Alex. At Havana Neil takes Anne ashore.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

JEALOUSY.

Neil saw the look in Anne's face when she turned her eyes to the sea again and wisely left her alone. For she was actually considering his proposal seriously for the first time or he was very much mistaken. She was thinking—he has a strange attraction for me and perhaps when I have forgotten Alex I can come to love him.

"Must you have your answer now?" she said at last.

"Please, Anne——"

But she could not bring herself to it. Alex was on the ship. She would see him again in the next two days and the finality of this would drive even his friendship away from her. It was better to be courageous, be lonely a little while, than make what might turn out to be a dreadful mistake. She knew so well what it felt like to feel sure. "Then it must be no," she said.

Neil was violently disappointed. Her answer came as a surprise. He had been so sure she would say yes.

"Then don't settle it now," he begged. "Wait. Take time to think."

She looked at him then, the perplexity and strain gone from her face.

"That would be better. I've so many things to consider first. It's my temperament. On the surface I appear to be hasty because I'm impulsive and I have a quick temper, but with important things like this it's my nature to go slow——"

"I'd rather you did anything than definitly refuse me."

Anne waited while the waiter removed their plates and set some exquisitely delicate fish before them. The entreaty in his voice moved her. It was pleasant to have some one who needed you, who really cared for you, to whom your decision was a momentous life altering thing.

"Give me a month," she said. "Then I'll have forgotten the glamor of the trip and got into the harness of work again. Then I will know——"

"You think it's possible if I do that it may be yes?"

She did not know how fickle Neil's ardors were, nor how soon he would recover from the blow of her refusal. As yet she was still young enough to measure other people's capacity for feeling by her own. She could not deal him what she imagined would be a mortal wound. She said without looking at him—"It's quite possible that it may be yes."

Neil's spirits rose immediately.

It was now 3 o'clock and the ship was to sail at 6. After lunch they went down into an arbor in the gardens facing the sea and had coffee on the rattan table. "Too bad old Alex wasn't allowed off the ship," said Neil casually. "He's never been ashore in Cuba.

"It wasn't a question of being allowed," said Anne quickly, "he was afraid to leave Mr. Vernon. He told me so."

"Guess he was at that. But he couldn't have gone anyhow. He was under restraint."

"Under restraint?" Anne's voice was edged with horror. "What do you mean?"

"Just that. They wouldn't let him go ashore in case he disappeared. Also Mrs. Vernon herself and Miss Butler. Alex was as calm as the Sphinx, but the women are jumping."

"Poor Isobel. I can imagine it!"

"She took it badly. She's practically in custody. A stewardess dogging her everywhere she goes. I'm afraid she deepened the captain's prejudice by using some rather colorful language."

"Well, really—I don't blame her."

"I do. People don't prove their innocence by blustering and telling lies. Nor does she improve appearances for Alex."

Anne's response came hotly, "How can you mention him in the same breath with the situation?"

"What's this? A touch of that well known impulsive temper?"

"Well, you're his friend! You should know him. You should know he couldn't be capable—of—of a thing like that!"

Neil saw the gesture of her lifted chin, the angry color under the suntint on her cheeks. So she had a secret yen for Alex. He had suspected as much, and he didn't like it.

He was bitterly aware of his disloyalty to a man he knew would literally die for him, but he was ridden by his uncontrollable jealousy. No girl in his experience had ever held out against him so long. Now he wanted Anne with a consuming passion, not merely her person and her allegiance, but every glance, every feeling, every thought.

"You know nothing of the psychology of murder," he said with the deliberate intention of shocking her. "It's the quiet ones who have the guts for it. If Alex were in love it would be a profound experience for him. He wouldn't understand Isobel's double dealing. If this case runs true to form Alex will be the one——"

When he saw Anne's face go ashen and her lips shake he was afraid of what he had done. "No," she whispered, "no—and then we are his friends—we should believe in him——"

He drew close to her on the deep rattan seat and put his arm around her. "Very well, dear—we will." But he could not resist adding—"that is sentiment, of course—not logic——"

Anne shrank away from him, drawing herself into the corner of the seat. "I don't think I want you to touch me, please."

He changed his attitude instantly. "Anne, forgive me. I was wrong to let you know these things. Unpardonably wrong. I know it. Please, please forgive me. I was a jealous fool. I should have kept this to myself."

"I forgive you," she said tonelessly. "You can't help what you think——"

"And you won't let it make any difference between you and me?"

The color was coming back in her face. But he knew why she was reluctant—unattainable. She was at least half in love with Alex Reed. She shook her head and she was faintly smiling as if at some secret thought it was no use asking her to share with him. "No—it won't make any difference."

Both were silent on their way back to the ship. Neil stopped the driver at an exclusive little perfumery and begged Anne to come into the shop and choose herself some scents. With unbreakable obstinacy under her smiling charm she refused. He sensed some new defense in her now, very different from the responsible mood she was in when they started out.

He went into the perfumery alone—came out with a large parcel in striped paper tied with silver cord. She thanked him and laid it on the seat. If he had not retrieved it himself when they reached the dock it would have been left behind in the car. He gave the package to a bell boy to deliver to Anne's room. Went to his own room, had a quick shower, changed his clothes, and went down to the hospital.

He met Alex just coming out. "Hello, Neil—so you're back. Have a good time?"

"Swell. Tell you later. How's the old man?"

"No change. Miss Friggen's with him. Every one else is doing O. K. We've time for a cocktail. Let's go aloft."

For In-Between Season

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

That dreadful season, the in-between one, is with us, presenting unavoidable fashion problems. About this time of year the sheers and cool white and pastels we loved so a month or so ago are beginning to seem unattractive. The fashion world is agog over the latest things in fall styles, while the temperature still hovers around the 90 mark. What to do? Well, for one thing, you can select a style that makes up well in light weight silks and dark cottons.. The dress in our pattern today has a smart V neckline, which may be left plain or take to a narrow rolled collar. The full sleeves reach almost to the elbow, or they may be more tailored near the shoulderline and extend to bracelet length.

The waistline dips up into the bodice and the paneled skirt molds the figure. There really is nothing to this simple frock, but it's ace high in chic, especially for the woman of large figure, who has the overweight problem with which to struggle.

Style No. 2990 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, and 54 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The unkindest thing that fate can do to some players is to give them an excellent suit. The fact that they can see there is at most one loser in their own suit often blinds them to the enormous advantage of playing the contract in partner's announced suit. For example, South's bidding in the hand shown below, although very bad, was in no sense exceptional. It is my sad conviction that thousands of players would select the same faulty contract.

Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q 9 7 4 3 2
♥ 5
♦ 8 6
♣ K 9 7 5

WEST
♠ J 10 5
♥ K 6 4
♦ Q 7 2
♣ 10 6 4 3

EAST
♠ 8
♥ 7 3 2
♦ 10 9 5 4 3
♣ A Q J 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 6
♥ A Q J 10 9 8
♦ A K J
♣ 8

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 hearts	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

Even though West made the very opening lead [a low diamond] that was most favorable to declarer, there was no play for the contract. South, of course, had to concede the missing heart king and, long before a club discard could be made on dummy's spade suit, West had shifted to a club, and East had collected the setting trick.

Perhaps South was led astray by North's five heart bid, but if so, I strongly recommend that he [and others of his kind] devote more study to the four-five no trump convention! The five heart bid by North was in no sense a raise, or even an acceptance of hearts as trump. It was a forced response to the four no trump conventional bid, i. e., North having no ace and no additional values had no choice but to sign off in the lowest bid suit. My guess is, however, that South was not misled by the five heart bid but that he deliberately selected hearts as trump because of the excellence of his own suit. The fact that North had bid and rebid spades obviously had little effect on South. As a matter of fact, it is a close point whether South should have supported spades immediately instead of rebidding the heart suit. The future bidding would have gone a little smoother if he had done so, but the result would have been the same if, over North's five hearts, South had made the correct final decision of bidding six spades. Surely, as between a suit that had been bid twice by North and of which South had the A-K-X, and another suit which obviously might have a loser, there was no reason for indecision.

Normally good play by North at a six spade contract would have been successful. South's heart suit could have been quickly established by two ruffs.

Mutual Tastes in Recreation Aid Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Again and again, letters come in from wives who complain that their husbands won't take them out. Apparently the American husband, tired after his day's labor, likes to come home and just sit. The wife, bored with solitary housework and the four walls of her house, wants to go out and do things.

Their troubles should be a warning to young couples, contemplating marriage, to learn to play together and keep it up after the wedding and honeymoon.

"I have a lovely home and two nice children, but I am so unhappy," one wife wails. "All my husband cares about it going to fires. He doesn't want to dance, swim, play cards, go to a show or driving or to see people."

"I have been married thirty-two years and my wife always has gone visiting every day. When she goes out, I take a glass of beer at home and then there are arguments," a husband protests. "What can I do to make her stay home? My seven children agree with me."

"After I married, I changed," another man admits. "I didn't want to go any place because I wanted to make the best of married life. Now my wife is unhappy because she misses her good times."

Who is to blame for such an appalling lack of taste in common? No matter which partner is guilty, the wives of such men would be wise to bring amusements and good times into their homes.

After thirty-two years, there is not much chance for a husband to change a gadding wife, but he might encourage her to have the neighbors she visits in for an evening.

If wives and husbands don't enjoy things together, they are losing half the fun of married life.

KEPT FROM DYING HORLICK HEIRESS, DOCTORS CHARGE

Affidavits Reply to Effort to Block Inquest.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., July 29.—[Special.]—At the time Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress, lay dying in the home of W. Perkins Bull here last July 6, three of Canada's leading brain specialists sent by her son were denied permission to see her or enter into consultation with the doctors then attending.

This charge was made here today in nine affidavits filed by crown attorneys in the Ontario court. The documents contained the answer of the crown representatives to four of the five executors of Mrs. Sidley's will who have filed a petition for a court order to halt the inquest, begun July 26, into her death.

Doctors Engaged by Bull.

The doctors attending Mrs. Sidley prior to her death had been engaged by Bull, who was bequeathed a fortune estimated at more than $850,000 under a will which Mrs. Sidley drafted in his home here in April, three months before she died. Bull is friendly to the four executors, including Mrs. Sidley's brother, William, who opposes the inquest.

The physicians who were refused permission to see Mrs. Sidley had been summoned by Mrs. Sidley's son, William, and her second brother, Alexander J. Horlick of Racine, Wis. Young Sidley and A. J. Horlick are supporting the Canadian demands for the inquest. It has been established that they propose to contest the April will.

C. M. Huycke, counsel for young Sidley, told how he had demanded that his client's physicians be given an opportunity to examine Mrs. Sidley.

Describes Conversation.

"In the course of my conversation with Dr. R. A. Farquharson, physician in charge of Mrs. Sidley, on the night of July 4," Huycke said in his affidavit, "he told me that 'for medical reasons' he could not permit any other physician to be brought into consultation on the said Mrs. Sidley."

The following day, Huycke said, he sent a formal demand by letter to Dr. Farquharson, asking that two outstanding doctors chosen by young Sidley be permitted to consult with the physicians attending his mother.

After a delay of about four hours, Dr. Farquharson gave permission for the consultation with Drs. George Boyer and Goldwin Howland, brain specialists. Although these two doctors finally held a consultation with Dr. Farquharson, Dr. Ian MacDonald, and Dr. Trevor Owen, Mrs. Sidley's regular physicians, they never saw her until after her death.

Another Refusal Charged.

Huycke also said in his affidavit that Dr. Farquharson, presumably after a conference with Bull, had given a point blank refusal to a request that Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former lieutenant governor of Ontario and one of Canada's leading physicians, be permitted to examine Mrs. Sidley on July 4.

The other affidavits were signed by Dr. Smirle Lawson, Ontario coroner; Dr. Desmond Magner; Dr. W. L. Robinson, pathologist, Drs. Bruce, Howland, and Boyer; Dr. E. A. Linell, neurologist from Toronto university, and William S. Buenz, a friend of young Sidley from Chicago.

Coroner Lawson said he had been approached by young Sidley on July 4 and asked to conduct an investigation in the event of Mrs. Sidley's death. At no time, he declared, had he been retained in his capacity as a private doctor. This was in answer to the charge that he is ineligible to serve as coroner because he had been retained as a possible consultant by young Sidley.

Attorney D. L. McCarthy, who is representing the Sidley executors in the court hearings on the injunction, said he would confer with crown attorneys tomorrow in preparation for a court hearing early next week.

FAKE CURRENCY PLANT IS SEIZED; OPERATOR HELD

A counterfeiting plant that amazed secret service agents by its completeness and the excellence of its output was seized last evening in a raid on an apartment at 2815 5th avenue. Clinton Hurlbut, 55 years old, was arrested in the place and admitted that the paraphernalia was his.

A camera for photographing genuine bills, an etching outfit for making copper plates, and a compact printing press were found. There was also a large supply of the special paper and rare inks used in printing currency. The agents found fifty counterfeit bills and evidence that plans were under way to make $5 notes. None of the money had been put into circulation, according to Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, chief of the secret service here.

Hurlbut will be arraigned today before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

A. F. OF L. HINTS AT OPEN BATTLE ON LABOR BOARD

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—A spokesman for the American Federation of Labor hinted today at open warfare with the National Labor Relations board and possible refusal to respect board orders.

In a statement denouncing a board order issued yesterday, invalidating an A. F. of L. closed shop contract for a small group of skilled craft unionists in an Indiana auto parts plant, Joseph Padway, A. F. of L. general counsel, declared:

"One should not be amazed to find that in such a situation the order of the board will not be respected by employés whose guaranteed rights are trampled upon through biased decrees, thus encouraging war between the board and free American workers."

Tops at Twirling

Batons whirled by the dozen last night in a championship contest in Mark White square, 2900 South Halsted street. The contestants were sons and daughters of Chicago American Legionnaires. The contest was sponsored by Firemen's post, No. 667, in connection with Mayor Kelly's New Century committee.

The champions were Miss Dorothea Bradey of Forges post, No. 196, and Charles Anderson of Square post, No 232. Miss Bradey led the girls' division with a rating of 88.6, and Anderson topped the boys' division with a score of 93.5.

The judges were Maj. W. Booth, national champion baton twirler, and Anton J. Schlechta, band director of Elevator Operators' post, No. 1304, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

MODEL FOR KISSABLE PICTURES COMPLAINS; SHE GETS NO KISSES

Professional glamor girls who get paid for being kissable lead a pretty grim life in which they can't afford to take time out for noncommercial kissing. The word for this comes from a model who is used by national advertisers in kiss after kiss.

Sheila Kerry.

She is Miss Sheila Kerry, 24 years old, of New York City. She came to Chicago yesterday to add glamor to a survey of cigar dealers and told of the Spartan life a model must lead.

The kisses readers see her in are no fun, she said, and aren't even real kisses, as she has to keep her mouth in perfect photographic shape.

C.I.O. BACKS DOWN ON PACT TO END FOUNDRY STRIFE

Angry Over Failure to Deal with Court.

The Committee for Industrial Organization yesterday requested the national labor relations board to disregard its motion of Wednesday that charges against the Chicago Hardware Foundry company be dropped.

At the same time C. I. O. attorneys took the first step toward appealing contempt sentences passed in Lake county. They were imposed on ten persons who took part in the seven weeks of lawlessness that marked the recent strike at the company's plant in North Chicago. Thirty-seven other sets of charges against strikers and rioters will be fought vigorously, union representatives asserted.

Court Refuses Part in Deal.

These two moves by the C. I. O. and its affiliate, the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, followed quickly upon the refusal of Judge Ralph J. Dady, in the Lake county Circuit court, to vacate or modify the contempt sentences. He was joined by First Assistant State's Attorney George W. Field, who refused to knock out charges of conspiracy, intimidation by combination, unlawful assembly, and inciting to riot.

Because of the stand taken by law enforcement agencies of Lake county, the SWOC charged the foundry company had not carried out its part of an agreement that ended the strike July 23. The company agreed to recommend that the contempt sentences be vacated or modified and that the other charges be dropped.

Charge Company Is Lukewarm.

It was made clear by officials of the foundry, however, that they could only recommend, that they could not guarantee. Attorney Lester Collins, for the C. I. O., said Thursday after Judge Dady had ruled, that the company was lukewarm and had only gone through the motions of carrying out its agreement.

In addition to its decision to press all charges filed against the company before the NLRB, the SWOC indicated that new ones will be filed. The original allegations—which the SWOC agreed to withdraw—are: [1] that the company interfered with employés' efforts to organize, [2] that it refused to bargain collectively and [3] that it contributed to a company supported union.

Collins notified Prosecutor Field that he will produce in court today six men wanted on indictments charging conspiracy and intimidation by combination. Among these is Oakley Mills, C. I. O. organizer from West Virginia, who previously was arrested and is awaiting trial on other charges. He was released on bond.

LOYAL MAYTAG WORKERS' CARDS HELD BY TROOPS

Fear Violence if Names Are Made Public.

BY CHARLES PURVIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Newton, Ia., July 29.—[Special.]—Military authorities have taken charge of some 600 back-to-work cards which are the subject of much controversy in the C. I. O. strike at the Maytag Washing Machine company plant.

The cards were signed by men who want to return to work in the factory, the town's main source of employment. An attorney for the signers expressed the belief the peace and quiet of the community would be threatened if the names were revealed.

With the bitterness which prevails here it is feared that loyal workers might be endangered by strong arm squads if their identities were published.

The washing machine factory, one of the largest industrial plants in Iowa, has been closed since May 9 by the C. I. O. strike. For nine days the Iowa National Guard, by orders of Gov. Nels G. Kraschel, has kept the plant closed under martial law.

Impounded by Military.

Maj. Frank B. Hallagan, judge advocate, said a military commission had impounded the cards, which are in a safety deposit box in the Jasper County Savings bank. The officer said the commission is using the list of names to learn "who is who" in the labor trouble.

Military authorities also have control of the Maytag pay roll list as of May 6.

A. M. Miller, attorney for the back-to-workers, had been asked to bring the disputed cards before representatives of the national labor relations board which is investigating the strike. His refusal, except upon order of a federal court, brought an intimation that a subpena would be issued. With military authorities in control of the cards, it is believed permission would have to be obtained from them to take the cards to the hearing.

WPA Workers Involved.

The military commission is investigating reports that a call was sent out to WPA workers to appear at the Maytag plant the morning of July 22 when C. I. O. members and sympathizers engaged in a free for all fight with loyal workers. It is known some WPA workers were on the scene and took part in the fighting, for one WPA man is still under arrest as a result of his part in the battle.

It was reported that a notice was posted in Colfax, a town of about 1,000 population 12 miles west of here, instructing WPA workers to be at the plant on the day the fighting occurred. Whether WPA workmen were directed to aid the C. I. O. in the strike is being investigated by the National Guard commission.

Townspeople Criticize Governor.

Gov. Kraschel's arbitrary refusal to reopen the plant at the request of the Maytag company has led Newton townspeople to express the belief the chief executive is either receiving orders from Washington or is following on his own the national administration's favoritism toward the C. I. O. Miller, the back-to-work attorney, said it was his opinion that the governor erred gravely in sending the troops to Newton to establish martial law. That opinion is shared by virtually all of the town's business people.

Miller said the strike already has cost the employés more than $250,000 in the loss of wages and the loss sustained by the community would run far above that. He declared the strike has affected many parts of the state, including Des Moines, which normally has much Newton business, particularly in furniture and clothes.

The labor board hearing being conducted by Examiner Madison Hill is now the center of interest in Newton. People started arriving for the hearing, held in the Maytag hotel, before 6 a. m. By 7:30, two hours before the hearing was scheduled to open, about 300 persons were waiting.

CHARGE AND DENY 3D DEGREE USED ON BRICK SLAYER

CRIMINAL COURT.

Albert Paradise, burglary, sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary; Harold D. Shoemaker, crime against nature, sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary by Judge Robert C. O'Connell.

The jury hearing the murder trial of Robert Nixon, young Negro, was excluded from court yesterday while Judge John C. Lewe heard charges and denials that the police forced a signed confession from Nixon. He is charged with the brick slaying of Mrs. Florence Johnson, who was killed in her home, 4631 Lake Park avenue, on May 27. Robert Hicks, 19 years old, also colored, has pleaded guilty to his part in the crime.

Nixon, who is 18, testified that after his arrest he was taken to the detective bureau and seven policemen were introduced to him as "the seven devils." Later, he said, he was forced to stand on a box while six officers slapped and beat him.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan denied use of the third degree. His testimony was supported by other police and Assistant State's Attorney Edward Wilson, colored. Wilson, called in to see that a member of his race was treated fairly, said Nixon told him immediately after confessing that he had not been harmed. The hearing was continued until Monday, when Judge Lewe will rule on whether the confession is to be admitted in evidence.

BABS AND DANISH COUNT AGREE ON SEPARATION PACT

Father to Guide Son's Education.

LONDON, July 29.—Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow and his wife, the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, revealed tonight that they had signed a formal, legal separation agreement.

This should be the final chapter in a tale of disagreements which broke up their marriage suddenly in June and resulted in the Danish count's arraignment in the Bow Street Police court on his wife's allegations that he made threats. The count has refused, however, to consider a divorce, and the countess was said to agree to this.

In the agreement is the hint that the countess may seek to regain her American citizenship, which she renounced after her marriage to the count.

To Give Money to Son Now.

"The countess may not always preserve her Danish nationality," said an explanation of her decision to settle a large sum now on her son Lance, 2 years old. to avoid possible legal disputes over his inheritance. The count was made one of the trustees for the son.

On the surface, the count has won all the points in the settlement of their marital dispute.

FIRST—The police court charges against him were dropped.

SECOND—The idea of securing a divorce has been dropped—for the present at least.

THIRD—Though the countess will have custody of Lance for the present, the count now has a formal acknowledgment of his right to decide the "education, religion, and professional career of the son." When he reaches school age, Lance will spend half of his vacations with his father.

Count Court signed away all dower rights to the couple's common property, lawyers for both sides said in announcing the agreement. It was impossible to learn whether there was any previous money arrangement.

Still Lives in London Home.

The countess still is in her luxurious Regents Park home in London. During the discussions the count has been staying in the Ritz hotel, but it was understood he will leave soon for continental Europe.

It has been apparent since the police court case was settled that the heat of the dispute between them had died down. Some optimistic observers in London even had predicted an early reconciliation. The son, Lance, has been taken frequently to visit his father in the Ritz hotel, since the count gave a formal promise in court not to visit his wife's home.

BOOKS

A Doctor's Life Story Is Rich as Human Record

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Horse and Buggy Doctor," by Arthur E. Hertzler. [Harpers, $2.75.] Published Thursday. August choice of the Book of the Month club.

Since "The Story of San Michele," by Axel Munthe [1929], books by and about doctors have had tremendous popularity, "An American Doctor's Odyssey" by Victor Heiser and Alexis Carrel's "Man, the Unknown," rivaling novels as best sellers. To those stimulating human documents must now be added "The Horse and Buggy Doctor," the record of fifty years in the life of Arthur E. Hertzler, a Kansas physician and surgeon. It is as stimulating in its humanness as occasionally side-splitting in its humor, as salty in its philosophy, and withal as downright bludgeonly frank as any book of the year.

The "old doc" in this book fears neither God, the devil, high water, nor a subzero blizzard. He takes nobody's say-so for unproved facts, either scientific or social. He spares his tired horse but never himself. He has an unshakable belief that human beings are more complex than the sum of their bones, nerves, and tissues; that relieving suffering is a reward not always to be totaled in dollars; that studying out something is FUN, and that a sense of humor is any man's most serviceable all-round implement for tilling his estate—whether it be a Kansas prairie farm or a square block of Manhattan—into the abundant life.

"The Horse and Buggy Doctor" is in no sense literary. It is as casual, as cluttered [and as illuminated] by anecdotes as a "fireside chat" used to be before it became a political weapon. It is reminiscence without much editing and without much premeditated design. It must be of incomparable interest to doctors. To a lay reader it is fascinating, not only as a record of life in midwest America, but also as a record of how one human being has a good life himself and makes a better one for others against what seemed at times insuperable difficulties.

It is at times very funny. Dr. Hertzler has a sharp wit to point his broad humor, and the laughs [sometimes real guffaws] are as much over his swashbuckling phrases as they are over his really funny and relevant stories.

J. B. Priestley Stirs Up a Fantastic Thriller.

"The Doomsday Men," by J. B. Priestley. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published Wednesday.

J. B. Priestley, a Yorkshireman who has looked upon the American southwest and found it good, has whipped up a little mystery-phantasy out of the material left over from his very delightful book, "Midnight on the Desert," plus a fantastic idea which puts the usual scientific dime novel to shame. It's about the proposed destruction of the world by a group of crazed religionists, an objective which is not wholly understood by the reader until the crazy ones succeed in obliterating themselves.

There are three heroes, an English tennis champion, who falls in love with the daughter of the mad leader; an American scientist, who can talk the language of the leader's only slightly more sane brother, and an American world wanderer, who is set on tracking down the murderer of his brother. The author's plot is as mad as the plot his characters have for the solution of the world's woes.

"The Doomsday Men" is Mr. Priestley's least important book, but even the most minor Priestley is more entertaining than many another's major opus.

Kay Boyle Presents a Minor Piece, Too.

"Monday Night," by Kay Boyle. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50.] Published Thursday.

This seems to be a week of the minor work of major writers. Kay Boyle is one of those whom other writers envy for the beauty of her style and for the subtlety of her perceptions.

Both of her outstanding qualities are evident in this strange tale. But the fine brilliant clarity of both of them is dulled by the material which she has used in "Monday Night," a "horror story" in the sense that the horror in it is hinted at and uncovered as the book closes, but not in the sense that horrors are described. This horror is a psychological one, tragedy generated in the lives of innocent victims by a frustration in the life of a scientist, a toxicologist.

Human Understanding in a Simple Tragedy.

"Paved with Good Intentions," by Dorothy McCleary. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.]

The author of the prize winning novel, "Not for Heaven" [which glorified the American harridan until readers' muscles ached with laughter], has written a tragic tale in "Paved with Good Intentions," the more poignant because its tragedy is not spectacular. but the simple, bitter, slow dissolution of love under economic stress.

The book opens with two young people, economically poor, but rich in their love for each other, a small town girl and a small town boy, in a big city [Washington], with dreams of success to cement their happiness in their marriage. The birth of their first child is described with minute emotional detail; the long, terror stricken hours of waiting for both the mother and the father.

Their emotional values shift with the birth of their child. The young father drifts into drink and into a careless acceptance of charity at the hands of his sister. And the hell of their increasingly unhappy marriage, all through the book, is paved with good intentions. There is something truly touching in this simple, unspectacular tragedy, set down without any fine literary skill, but with a fine human understanding.

Mysteries Offer Cold Chills for Warm Evenings

BY LLOYD WENDT.

"Death Walks the Post," by Virginia Hanson. [Crime Club, $2.]

"Murder at Maneuvers," by Royce Howes. [Crime Club, $2.]

"Madmen Die Alone," by Josiah E. Greene. [Morrow, $2.]

A few cold chills down the spine are especially welcome these warm evenings, and the newest crop of mystery thrillers abounds with them. Tops among recent mystery books is Virginia Hanson's "Death Walks the Post." It is well written and lavish with plot, action, and deftly drawn characterization, the whole done up with a fine wry humor as pleasant as it is unexpected in a murder story.

Action starts quickly when the belle of an army post is shot at the service club dance. Suspicion is so nicely distributed, and key witnesses pop off so perfectly, you aren't likely to guess the murderer until the very end. Yet it's all very fair, with plenty of clews and motives. Start early with "Death Walks the Post" . . . you'll want to finish it in one sitting.

Another army murder story is "Murder at Maneuvers." Royce Howes covered the Red and Blue maneuvers a year ago for his material, and he quite obviously kept his eyes open. The book is precise and workmanlike in accepted mystery novel fashion. The murder of a Russian general, present to observe the war games, starts it off, and wine, women, and international intrigue are quickly mixed in. Wily, logical Detective Ben Lucias, known to many mystery fans, does an excellent job of plucking his man from a veritable army of suspects.

"Crime Within Crime" is a story of the London underworld fairly reeking with the odors of its locale. Slow to start, it moves swiftly once the efficient Scotland Yard detectives get into action. "Crime Within Crime" is different. Everything in it really could happen, and probably often does. An accidental murder in a fox fur robbery touches off a series of events that prove again Scotland Yard always gets its man, no matter how scant the clews. "Crime Within Crime" is thoroughly done in best English crime story manner. Especially interesting is the cockney parlance, incorporating some strange translations of American underworld slang.

"Madmen Die Alone" has plenty of action, plenty of plot, and a bit too much careless writing. A madman escapes from an asylum and murders follow, but to Policeman Prescott it does not follow that the madman committed them. The story deserves better literary execution.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Arlington Park Jocky club closes its annual summer racing season this afternoon with the tenth running of the $46,000 Futurity and the renewal of the $5,000 Arlington handicap. A crowd that will pack the plant is expected to see what may be the two year old champion of the year run his race in the Futurity.

Overnight the Futurity attracted a field of eleven. It is expected that all of the juveniles will start. The handicap also drew eleven starters.

It was the Futurity, one of America's outstanding races for two year olds since its first running in 1932, that attracted nearly all of the overnight speculation on today's final program. It will be a battle between the east and west.

Milky Way Stable Enters Four.

Rated as the most powerful western entry is that of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way farm stable of Chicago. Mrs. Mars has broken all Arlington precedents by naming four of her expensive colts for the $46,000 race. She will depend upon Up the Creek, On Location, Time Please, and No Competition.

Modern day racegoers can recall only one instance in which an owner entered four horses in a race. This was a half dozen years ago when Sylvester W. Labrot sent four to the post in the Maryland Futurity at Laurel. They finished, one, two, three, and four. One of the horses committed a foul and all were disqualified.

The odds on today's Futurity indicate that there are many who think the Milky Way stable horses can finish in that order. The entry was held at 5 to 2 last night in the betting and was mustering almost as much support as the eastern invaders, Thingumabob and Equilibrium, which will run coupled as the Greentree and Manhasset stable entry.

Arcaro Rides Thingumabob.

Thingumabob, which will have Eddie Arcaro on his back, is owned by Mrs. Charles S. Payson. Equilibrium, which will be ridden by Jack Westrope, is the property of Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, mother of Mrs. Payson.

So much money from the east rolled in to be wagered on this entry that it became a slight favorite in the Futurity last night. The odds were 2 to 1.

Third in line in the betting was the Woolford farm stable entry of Unerring and Technician. The former is a full sister of Lawrin which carried the Woolford farm racing banner to victory in the last Kentucky Derby. Both these Kansas City owned juveniles have shown much ability.

The stable has been unusually lucky this year and it is ever the policy of the seasoned racegoer to string with a winner. Thus the odds against Unerring and Technician were at 6 to 1.

Duffy Entry Handicap Favorite.

The Futurity is at three-quarters of a mile, a longer distance than any of the starters have been asked to race. The extra half furlong often means much to these young race horses.

The Arlington handicap at a mile and a quarter will find the E. W. Duffy entry composed of Grey Gold and Sir Jim James parading to the post as the favorite. It is such a wide open race, however, that the odds will not be short and the price against the favorite should be 3 to 1. Mucho Gusto was the second choice at 4 to 1 last night. Chance Ray and Safe and Sound were third in line, each held at 6 to 1.

The Arlington track still was slightly off yesterday. It was drying out rapidly, however, and will be fast by the time the Futurity is run, in the event there is no more rain.

VIRGINIA INGRAM, SHIRLEY JOHNSON CLASH FOR TITLE

Sunset Ridge Golfers to Meet Today.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Virginia Ingram and Shirley Ann Johnson will meet today for the championship of the Chicago Women's District Golf association in the 36 hole final match at the Sunset Ridge Country club.

The late George Bellows once did a striking painting of two boxers in a club bout, entitled "Both Boys Members of This Club." Today's match may well be called "Both Girls Members of This Club," for the Misses Ingram and Johnson long have been identified as Sunset Ridge's ablest gal swingers.

For Miss Ingram it will be her third consecutive appearance in the finals. In 1936 she won the championship from Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt at Westmoreland and last year she finished runnerup to Mrs. Lillian Zech at Edgewood Valley.

Wins with Birdie on Last Hole.

Yesterday she had to work the entire eighteen holes to win a semi-final match from Rena Nelson of Exmoor, 1934 title holder, who has played little but week-end golf since she competed in the 1937 western open. A neat eight foot putt for a birdie on the final hole gave Virginia a 1 up victory.

Miss Johnson, Northwestern university co-ed and former western junior winner, will be making her debut as a finalist. Yesterday she eliminated the dark horse of the tournament, Mrs. Frank Mayer of Lake Shore, 3 and 2. The cards for the semi-finals:

Par—Out	455	534	535—39
Par—In	554	553	535—40—79
Miss Ingram—Out	455	434	634—38
Miss Nelson—Out	455	445	635—41
Miss Ingram—In	556	554	544—43—81
Miss Nelson—In	555	553	535—41—82
Miss Ingram wins, 1 up.
Miss Johnson—Out	555	435	534—39
Mrs. Mayer—Out	555	535	725—42
Miss Johnson—In	456	645	5
Mrs. Mayer—In	555	654	6
Miss Johnson wins 2 and 2.

Miss Ingram was 3 up at the turn, with a 38, one under par. Rena was short at the twelfth but she won the hole when her opponent was trapped and short. Another trap for Miss Ingram at the fifteenth and three from the edge of the seventeenth squared the match. Both were on the eighteenth in 3 but Miss Nelson couldn't get down a thirty foot putt, after which Miss Ingram holed out for her winning birdie.

Miss Johnson 2 Up at Turn.

Miss Johnson scored a birdie at the ninth to take a 2 up edge at the turn. She ran down another from three feet at the tenth, but she three putted the twelfth. She holed a twelve foot try at the fourteenth, but yielded two shots to a trap on the fifteenth. Mrs. Mayer then three putted the sixteenth to end the match.

Final matches in all subordinate flights were played yesterday. The winners:

FIRST FLIGHT—Helen Peterson, Exmoor, defeated Susan Vilas, Glen View, 3 and 2. First flight consolation—Marjorie Russell, LaGrange, defeated Mrs. H. D. Duttine, Tam O'Shanter, 1 up.

SECOND FLIGHT—Eleanor Sherman, Indian Hill, defeated Mrs. D. F. Comstock, Illinois, 4 and 3. Second flight consolation—Ada Rew, Glen View, defeated Mrs. W. Harmening, Mohawk, 3 and 1.

THIRD FLIGHT—Mrs. Jack Austin, Wilmette, defeated Mrs. A. G. Atwater, Evanston, 4 and 3. Third flight consolation—Mrs. W. J. Thomas, Medinah, defeated Mrs. J. H. Buckley, Illinois, 1 up in twenty holes.

FOURTH FLIGHT—Mrs. L. E. Darr, Sunset Valley, defeated Elizabeth Paine, Evanston, 1 up, in nineteen holes. Fourth flight consolation—Natalie Barnes, Exmoor, defeated Mrs. J. M. Lahr, Edgewood Valley, 5 and 4.

FIFTH FLIGHT—Mrs. H. S. Sines, Olympia Fields, defeated Mrs. J. F. Grimes, Lincolnshire, 6 and 5. Fifth flight consolation—Mrs. C. A. Butler, Sunset Ridge, defeated Mrs. Robert Hurka, Medinah, 2 and 1.

SIXTH FLIGHT—Mrs. W. H. McKee, Sunset Ridge, defeated Miss E. Litsinger, Beverly, 2 and 1. Sixth flight consolation—Mrs. T. J. Condon, Exmoor, defeated Mrs. J. A. Duffey, Tam, O'Shanter, 1 up.

SEVENTH FLIGHT—Mrs. N. D. McCue, Lincolnshire, defeated Mrs. George Delacker, Medinah, 2 up. Seventh flight consolation—Mrs. B. C. Egan, Park Ridge, defeated Miss M. Thompson, Illinois, 3 up.

EIGHTH FLIGHT—Miss N. L. Bowes, Exmoor, defeated Mrs. W. Watts, Kildeer, 2 and 1. Eighth flight consolation—Mrs. George Haines, Mohawk, defeated Mrs. A. B. Byler, River Forest, 3 and 2.

NINTH FLIGHT—Mrs. Pat Morris, Exmoor, defeated Mrs. C. H. Warner, North Shore, 3 and 1. Ninth flight consolation—Mrs. K. G. Bauer, Skokie, defeated Mrs. C. H. Lane, Ridge, by default.

Exhibition by Jane Manske Is Added to Swim Program

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The program for Chicago's greatest exhibition of aquatic sports and contests, which has been arranged to supplement the 100 yard free style swimming finals tomorrow afternoon in Diversey beach lagoon, has been completed. Last addition to the schedule is the series of exhibition dives from the 14 foot board by Jane Fauntz Manske, member of the Lake Shore Athletic club, who won Olympic honors in 1932 in Los Angeles.

During her days of amateur competition when she competed in the Olympic games of 1928 as well as in 1932, Jane Fauntz had few peers in the diving world. Since becoming a professional she has appeared in the show in A Century of Progress and since frequently has toured the country in furthering interest of boys and girls in the sport in which she excels. Long an ardent supporter of the popular 100 yard swimming races sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, last year she wrote a series of articles on the events and also appeared in an exhibition at the finals in Whealan pool.

Ten Championship Races.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:45, at the conclusion of the 21 semi-final 100 yard races in the ten age classes for boys and girls, she will go through a brief routine from the board on the diving pier in Diversey lagoon. Each of her dives will be described over the amplifying system. At the conclusion, the ten championship races will be held to determine the gold medal winners of Chicagoland for 1938.

Thousands will be able to see the diving exhibition from the banks of the lagoon or from the outer drive. The first exhibition in the series organized by the Chicago park district will start at 1 o'clock tomorrow. The swimming races will begin an hour later, although all of the 182 contestants must report at 1:30 to receive their racing numbers. At the conclusion of the finals the remainder of the park district program will be held.

Two Parking Lots Available.

Parking will not be permitted tomorrow on Lake Shore drive or Beach drive, but two parking lots, one north of the jackknife bridge east of Lake Shore drive, and the other south of Diversey parkway between Beach drive and Lake Shore drive, will be available.

The site of the races can be reached easily by any north side bus, 34, 51, 52, or 53, which stops adjacent to the Diversey beach bathhouse. Clark street cars are the surface lines' best transportation. Walk east on Diversey after alighting at Diversey boulevard and Clark street.

In addition to the swimming finals there will be exhibitions by the Lincoln Park Boat club members in single shells, doubles, and four and eight oared shells. This section of the program has been prepared by Commodore J. A. Benson and Max Definer.

Speed Boat Races.

The Jackson Power Boat club, headed by Commodore D. R. Morrison and Vice Commodore J. C. Sarter, will offer speed boat races, surfboard, aquaplane, and water ski riding, as well as stunting in outboard motor boats. The Columbia Canoe club of Evanston, in a program prepared by Commodore S. H. Bodinghouse, will offer a series of races and exhibitions.

Demonstration of folding kayaks and races in which members of the Rainbow fleet of the Chicago park district will take part, complete the park program.

Seventy-six girls have qualified for the five championship swimming races. There will be semi-finals in all age classes except class E for girls 19 years of age and over, in which there are only ten finalists. The championship course provides ten lanes.

Mary Jane Wichser, 4843 North Paulina street, a member of the Medinah club, is the only 1937 champion entered in this year's finals. Miss Wichser won the class B title last year for girls 13 and 14 years of age. She now is competing in class C.

PHILLIES WIN AS GROUNDER GETS THROUGH JURGES

Cubs Let 4-1 Advantage Slip Away in Ninth.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 29.—The Cubs' pennant bee got its wings warped again today after an easy victory had seemed well in hand going into the ninth inning of the opener with the Phillies.

The Phillies accomplished their second victory of the season over the Cubs, 5 to 4, with two out in the twelfth when Bill Jurges let a grounder get through him, permitting the winning marker to gallop across.

Bill Lee had his fourteenth success of the season all marked up as the ninth began. The Cubs were leading 4 to 1 and Lee had held the tailenders to four hits, all singles. It had been a typically fine Lee performance though Bill, always sensitive to blistering temperatures such as prevailed today, was shedding perspiration quarts at a time.

Phils Tie Score.

In the ninth the heat got him. There was a double by Phil Weintraub, one of his four hits during the game, and a triple by Herschel Martin and a single by Spud Davis. Charley Root went in, yielded a single which put the tying run on third and a long fly which scored the tying run. Then he pitched a double which placed runners on third and second. Charley went away and Larry French entered the arena, got the side out, and remained to draw his fourteenth defeat of the year.

The Cubs had the bases loaded with one out in the tenth on French's single, an error and an intentional pass. The big chance vanished when Joe Marty gaped at a third strike and Carl Reynolds bounced into a force play.

After a while the fatal home twelfth came around. Jordan opened with a double. It was a high fly ten feet short of the fence. Cavarretta started in on the ball, then tried to retreat. The ball hit his glove but Phil could not hold on. The misjudgment did not upset French. He got some great outfield support from Reynolds on Gibby Brack's drive. Then he fanned Weintraub. Larry seemed out of the woods.

Phils Score Winning Run.

Chuck Klein was up. Chuck hadn't got the ball out of the infield. He shouldn't have at this juncture. He shot a grounder at Jurges, almost a duplicate of one of Lavagetto's which got through Jurges in Brooklyn Wednesday night to allow tying runs to score on what should have been a game-ending double play. The similarity between the grounders did not end with the way they were hit. Jurges played both balls the same way, they both went between his heels into center field. This time the winning instead of the tying runs got home. And that was that.

While the Cubs were folding, their two main adversaries, the Pirates and the Giants, were standing up in tough encounters. They both won, the Giants after overcoming a 4 to 0 handicap. So tonight the Cubs are seven games behind the Pirates and two behind the Giants.

Fifth Is Productive.

It appeared for a time in the productive fifth that Galan, first Cub to reach second, had done so in vain. Augie opened the fifth with a double to right but promptly was sunk at third on Reynolds' grounder to Young. Reynolds stole second, and, after lingering while Hartnett flied to Brack, scored on Cavarretta's double off the right field wall. Collins was given an intentional pass to give Mulcahy a whack at Lee. Instead Lee took a whack at Mulcahy a single to left which scored Cavarretta. Mulcahy threw out Jurges.

Here's the way the Phils counted a run in the seventh. Weintraub pushed off with his second and his

THREE CHICAGO ERRORS LEAD TO YANKEE VICTORY

Champions Get Ten Hits Off Lee.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The world champion Yankees did not have their old time drive and vigor yesterday, but nevertheless did pretty well for themselves, at least well enough to protect the one game edge by which they are leading the American league. They found the needed protection by spanking the White Sox in the series opener, 4 to 3, the decisive blow being administered in the ninth inning. The Sox, however, registered a moral victory by restricting the Yankee maulers to a series of cheap singles and one double.

Mr. Thornton Lee, who specializes in beating the champions or giving them a good scare, might have accomplished the former if there hadn't been certain things wrong with the fielding. He himself offended in this respect along with Boze Berger and Mike Kreevich, the errors enabling the Yanks to collect three runs classed as unearned. The only run to which the titleholders were entitled on the strength of their bat wielding was the first of the pair which went home in the final inning.

Yanks Make Mistakes.

Even the Yanks weren't guiltless of some garden variety of blundering before a ladies' day crowd of 14,000 who expected better things. A break in the enemy defense let the Chicagoans reach Vernon Gomez for a run in the fourth, but despite three errors at various stages this was the only tally the Sox got at cut rates. They exploded a couple of hits in the sixth to get back into a tie for the second time and their other run was registered legitimately in the ninth when a double by Luke Sewell came close to precipitating another deadlock.

Lee's customary bad luck cropped up in the second play of the second inning. Di Maggio led off with a scratch single and Gehrig bounced a perfect double play grounder to Berger who tossed to Appling. Appling dropped the ball and stretched himself on the ground, overlooking the fact that Di Maggio was going to third. The scorer, however, gave the error to Berger. Di Maggio then scored on Dickey's fly to Steinbacher, Powell struck out, and Gordon doubled past Owen. Gomez bounced to Lee for the third out.

Sox Waste Pair of Hits.

The Sox also came along with a pair of hits in their half of the inning but there was no run production. Radcliff opened with a single to center and was forced by Appling. Owen bounced a single to center. Gomez refused to become fluttery over this display of power. He induced Kuhel to dispatch a fly into Di Maggio's hands and shook off Sewell on a pop foul to Gehrig.

The Yanks weren't exactly proud of getting a run at cut rates so they gave it back to the Sox in the fourth. Kreevich beat out a hit to Crosetti and continued to second when the latter threw wild. Radcliff's bouncer to Gomez gave Kreevich time to reach third. On Appling's grounder toward third Kreevich charged toward the plate and Rolfe threw there with the idea of getting him, but the throw was so wild Kreevich wasn't annoyed in his scoring plans. Appling took second on the error and was left there by Owen and Kuhel.

Yanks Score on Lee's Error.

Lee's turn to be charitable in his fielding came in the fifth and it put Yanks back in front by 2 to 1. Gordon started this by beating out a bunt to Lee. Gomez also bunted and Lee fumbled. There was another bunt, this from Crosetti, but Lee picked it up and threw out the runner at first. Gordon scored while Berger was throwing out Rolfe, after which Hoag lofted to Kreevich.

The Sox tied it in the sixth with the first run not tainted by an error. Steinbacher beat out a slow hit which

WISE BARRISTER SCORES BY NECK; C-NOTE SECOND

Sprint Brings a Thrilling Race at Arlington.

One of the best stretch duels of the Arlington Park meeting occurred in the Berwyn purse yesterday when William O'Toole's Wise Barrister outgamed the Milky Way farm's C-Note to win by a neck. Knee Deep was third.

At the stretch turn Wise Barrister was on top by a length. Jocky Al Robertson then went to work and C-Note moved up, but Wise Barrister had enough left to withstand the challenge.

The Blue Ridge farm colt, ridden by T. P. Martin, sped over the seven furlongs in 1 minute and 28 2-5 seconds, creditable time for the heavy track. He paid $4.20.

After eight favorites in a row had been beaten on Thursday and the choices in the first two races yesterday had failed, Blaufuss, owned by Mrs. C. E. Dale of Chicago, broke the spell. He led almost from start to finish. Busse Trumpet railed in the stretch to get second money. Jean Cloud finished third.

Longshot dally double players had their day when Nim captured the first race and Montsin scored easily in the second. Those who used the old eenie meenie minie mo system collected $521.60 for each two dollars invested.

Jocky Basil James will do most of the riding for Warren Wright's Calumet Farm stable at Saratoga. Irvin Anderson, contract rider for the stable, has been granted a leave of absence and will ride free lance at Narragansett Park.

MALOTT BREAKS WORLD RECORD AT 500 METERS

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, July 29.—(AP)—Ray Malott of the San Francisco Olympic club, smashed a world record that had stood for four years when he ran 500 meters in one minute 1½ seconds on the second day of a two day international meet here. His time bettered Ben Eastman's performance at Oslo in 1934 by a half second.

Outside of Malott's feat, the United States track team got only an even break in four events today. Fred Wolcott of Rice institute won the 110 meter high hurdles in 14.2 seconds and George Varoff of Oregon took the pole vault at 4 meters [13 feet 1 5/32 inches]. On an extra trial he cleared the bar at 4.22 meters [13 feet 9 13/16 inches].

NIM, rushed into command on the inside but taken out gradually for better footing after reaching the turn, was strongly shaken up soon after reaching the stretch and, continuing well, held sway to the end. BEREIT, away slowly and raced wide, bettered her position gradually and, holding on well, wore down SILVER BRAID.

MONTSIN, rushed into command from the outside and steadied around the turn, rallied to pressure soon after reaching the final quarter, but tired badly in the late stages, yet held her company safe. MISS BAKER, well up from start, also weakened in the closing stages, but stalled off ELMA H.

BLAUFUSS, away fast and raced a trifle wide throughout, was stoutly restrained for three-eighths, took command with a rush and maintained a wide advantage without need of strong riding thereafter, but probably had little left. BUSSE TRUMPET, taken back several lengths and raced wide, closed resolutely under only mild urging.

LITTLE YVONNE began to move up fast after being steadied until in good stride, came around the leaders approaching the final eighth and, continuing strongly, drew out thereafter. GAY JANE, away poorly, worked her way up gradually and weakened in the final stages, but held FAIR HASTE safe.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

GALLANT STROKE raced wide and rather slow to settle into good stride, started to move up after running a quarter, dropped back on the turn, but rallied with much energy after reaching the stretch and came away fast after wearing down ISOLENE. Latter displayed the most speed from the start, did not rally as her rider slapped her with his right hand after having lost his whip.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Allowance. Three year olds. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

WISE BARRISTER took command under a good hand ride while racing on the inside, increased his advantage after reaching the turn and, holding on well after swerving to the inside in the stretch, outstayed C-NOTE in a hard drive. Latter, taken in hand after about three-sixteenths, raced to the leader gradually when under strong urging, but weakened after nearing the lead in the last fifty yards.

Mel Ott and Bob Seeds Hit Home Runs.

New York, July 29.—(AP)—The Giants came to life at bat today and beat the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 4, for their second victory in a row after five consecutive losses.

Stymied by Johnny Vander Meer with one run for six innings, the Giants and the heat landed on the no hit sensation at the same time in the seventh to score three runs on homers by Bob Seeds and Mel Ott. In the ninth, with Gene Schott pitching, the bases loaded and two out, Gus Mancuso singled the winning run across. Score:

REUTZ BACK HOME AFTER LONG HIKE IN SOUTHWEST

South Bend, Ind., July 29.—(Special.)—Joe Reutz, Notre Dame guard of 1937 and member of the Chicago Tribune All-Star squad this year, returned to his home here today after a 400 mile hiking trip through southern Utah and northern Arizona. He was accompanied by his cousin, Louis Miller of Racine, Wis., who is studying for the Catholic priesthood in Washington, D. C.

The pair left from Blanding, Utah, and went into the natural bridges country, thence down the Moki canyon to the Colorado river. Reutz suffered a heat stroke and their rations ran short a hundred miles from Blanding. They lived for three days on rice and dried fruit until they found a cowpuncher's cabin, where they replenished their stores.

Reutz will enter the University of California this fall to take graduate work in anthropology. He hopes to get into museum research.

Gomez wasn't able to run down. Kreevich rolled into a force of Steinbacher. Radcliff touched off an important hit. He singled to center, Kreevich getting to third. This put Kreevich in position to score the tying run a moment later on Appling's fly to Hoag.

The Yanks' winning ninth opened calmly. Gomez fanned. Trouble started immediately. Crosetti singled to left and Rolfe walked. Hoag plastered a single into center, Crosetti scoring and Rolfe heading for third. Kreevich threw to that corner but the ball bounced off the grand stand so Rolfe also scored, although he might have been nailed if Lee had remembered that one of the primer lessons for pitchers is to back up all throws.

Sox Threaten Again.

A pass and a hit enabled the Sox to kick up a slight fuss in their half of the ninth. With one out Gomez walked Owen. He also started to walk Sewell but the latter instead of playing out the string belted a two bagger to left, Kuhel scoring. Walker was asked to bat for Lee and Rosenthal to run for Sewell. Rosenthal didn't have to do any running because Walker flied to Di Maggio and Berger did the same.

As a warmup for their doubleheader tomorrow the White Sox and world champion Yank

PICNICKERS' CAR HITS TRUCK; 2 ARE KILLED, 4 INJURED

Couple Crushed in Wreck Near Justice Park.

A picnic jaunt ended in death for a husband and wife and injury to four others, two of them children, yesterday afternoon. The automobile in which they were riding crashed into an empty cattle truck at Harlem avenue and 79th street, near Justice Park.

The truck was knocked into the ditch. The automobile rebounded against a concrete culvert. Lawrence Lundy, 618 North State street, Marengo, the truck driver, told Sergt. James Allegretti of the county highway police that the driver of the automobile, traveling west in 79th street, failed to halt for a stop sign.

Pinned in Front Seat.

The dead were identified as Fred West, 48 years old, 6919 Normal boulevard, and his wife, about 45 years old. They were pinned inside the car by wreckage.

The injured are Robert Gracia, 1525 St. Lawrence avenue; his wife, Mildred, and their two sons, Robert Jr., 5, and Wayne, 2. The children and their parents were hurled from the car. The four were taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital, where their injuries were termed serious.

Lundy and his two helpers, Arthur Piske and Elmer Seeth, both of Marengo, escaped injury although the side of the truck cab was crushed.

Pedestrian Fatally Injured.

Felix Balut, 49 years old, 4737 South Karlov avenue, was fatally injured by an automobile at 48th street and Pulaski road last night. He died while being taken to a neighborhood doctor's office. The driver of the car was Gordon Maypole, 28, of 4101 North Meade avenue.

Raymond Prochnow, 18 years old, 2256 50th street, was thrown from the rumble seat of an automobile last night while riding in 57th street, near Ingleside avenue. He suffered a skull fracture and was taken to Billings Memorial hospital. Albert Nowak, 18, of 5254 South Hermitage avenue, the driver, said the accident occurred when he struck a hole in the street. The two boys had been swimming.

Child Injured in Crash.

Jane McCarthy, 14, of 6751 Artesian avenue, was seriously injured in a collision at the intersection of Grub Hill and Nippersink roads in Lake county, a mile west of Round Lake. Three others suffered less severe injuries, including Lester Neumann, 2807 Harrison street, Evanston, with whom Miss McCarthy was returning from a vacation at Fox Lake.

The driver of the other car was Charles Deser, director of Camp Wooster. He and Betty Neumann, 16, Neuman's daughter, were injured.

Police were searching last night for the driver of a hit and run ambulance which slightly injured Mrs. Martha Troyke, 70 years old, 835 Williams street, River Forest, at Palmer street and Cicero avenue.

Chicago's 1938 auto death toll remained at 358, unchanged from Thursday, at 4 p. m. yesterday. But the number killed in Cook county since Jan. 1 rose from 464 to 466. During the same period 10,736 were injured in Chicago motor accidents.

PARENTS PROTEST MEASURING OF 2 CHILDREN BY WPA

Girls Stripped Without Consent, They Say.

Two fathers charged yesterday that their young daughters had been stripped and their physical measurements taken without consent by women workers on a WPA project in Portage park.

The children disappeared for two hours Thursday from a church picnic. Their frantic mothers called police and scores assisted in the search for them. Divers even probed the bottom of the park pool in the belief they might have been drowned.

The two little girls were located in the fieldhouse of the park where WPA employés were measuring children in connection with a nation-wide clothing size study now being conducted by the bureau of home economics, department of agriculture.

Mother Collapses from Shock.

There, according to the girls, they were told by a woman who came from the park fieldhouse to "follow me." They did, and after standing in line for some time were stripped and measured.

Gehlert returned to the park with his daughter yesterday, but was unable to find the worker who had told the girls to go with her.

Get Data for Manufacturers.

WPA officials explained that the measuring project was started recently in Chicago. Children between the ages of 4 and 14 are being measured for height, weight, arm length, and other specifications. The results will be correlated and the data made available to clothing manufacturers.

It is known that children of the same age take different sizes in ready-made clothing in different localities, WPA spokesmen said. The study will be of value to buyers of that type of garment.

They added that workers on the project, which employs about 90 persons throughout the city, had been told to take no measurements without the permission of parents. They expressed the belief that the two girls had fallen into line with other children at the pool. They admitted, however, that an overzealous worker might have been at fault.

G. C. WIELAND, 63, DAIRY COMPANY FOUNDER, DEAD

George C. Wieland, president of the Wieland Dairy company from 1890 to 1929, died of a heart attack yesterday at the Dairymen's Country club, near Boulder Junction, Wis. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Wieland was born in Germany and came to the United States when he was 12 years old. With his five brothers he founded the dairy company, which was consolidated with the Borden company in 1929. Since then Mr. Wieland had been retired. His home was at 3240 Lake Shore drive. He was a thirty-second degree Mason.

Surviving are his widow, Amanda; a daughter, Margaret; a sister, Mrs. Rose Marling, and his brothers, Charles, Robert, Christian, Jacob, and William. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in St. Paul's church, Orchard street and Kemper place.

FOUR RELIEFERS GET JAIL TERMS FOR CHEATING

Four relief cheaters, all colored, were sent to the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Eugene Holland in South State street court. They were convicted of defrauding, or attempting to defraud, the Chicago Relief administration [CRA].

Henry Lear, 3438 Prairie avenue, and Mrs. Ruth Washington, 4922 Vincennes avenue, were each sentenced to six months and fined $300. Raymond Hilliard, attorney for the CRA, presented evidence that they had conspired to collect the relief check of the woman's husband, who is in the County hospital.

George Lloyd, 5716 South Calumet avenue, was sentenced to 120 days, and Henry Boney, 4014 South Dearborn street, to 40 days. Both were convicted of obtaining relief under false pretenses.

VOTE NEW RULES TO COVER STATE RELIEF SYSTEM

Uniformity Is Believed Aim of IERC.

New rules for the administration of relief throughout the state have been approved by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission [IERC]. The rules, not yet made public, will be sent to downstate relief administrators early next week.

The rules, it was reported, will seek to make uniform the administration of relief and eligibility requirements for reliefers.

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC, announced the changes yesterday after a commission meeting. He said some technicalities in the rules remain to be worked out.

Plan to Eliminate Waste.

The IERC also announced that plans are being drawn for a master file of relief recipients in each downstate county. The commission said such a file will eliminate waste and duplication in the granting of relief.

Most of the downstate direct relief administration is in the hands of township supervisors. At present there is no master record of the relief being given in the various townships and there is little correlation of the information on the books of different types of relief agencies.

Lyons, in his capacity as commissioner of the Chicago Relief administration [CRA], issued orders that approval of applicants for WPA jobs who are not receiving relief from the CRA be stopped. For the last month persons who were not receiving relief from the CRA have been approved directly for WPA jobs if they could meet regulations set up by the IERC.

21,000 Unassigned to Jobs.

In his order to CRA employés Lyons said that there were 21,000 persons who have been approved for WPA, but not assigned to WPA jobs. In addition, Lyons said, there are 13,000 applicants whose eligibility will not be reviewed before Aug. 15.

The IERC approves applicants for jobs, but the applicants must await assignment to a job from WPA. H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA administrator, said all available WPA jobs here are filled. In addition, Seltzer said, WPA has a pool of 3,000 approved persons who cannot be assigned to jobs at present.

Lyons estimated that those already approved and those yet to be interviewed will provide a pool of 30,000 persons waiting for WPA. The size of this pool, Lyons continued, will be a major factor in determining when approval examinations will be reopened.

The IERC allotted Chicago $2,581,942 to meet the city's relief needs for August. This amount, combined with $156,068 listed as available in local funds, leaves a deficit of only $269,126 as against the CRA's estimated needs for the month.

All told the IERC allotted $3,800,000 to meet estimated needs throughout Illinois of $4,166,274. Thus the state met 90.56 per cent of the total needs of local communities. E. E. Ferebee, IERC statistician, said this was the highest percentage since local administrative units began administering relief in July, 1936.

The IERC was notified that S. L. Mitchell, supervisor of New Haven township in Gallatin county, had resigned. The commission refused to allocate any state funds to the township until Mitchell resigned his office. He admitted misuse of state relief funds at an earlier IERC meeting.

U. S. JUDGE HOLLY AND TWO OTHERS INJURED IN CRASH

Judge William H. Holly of the United States District court and two other persons were injured last night in an automobile collision at Howard street and Asbury avenue, Evanston. Judge Holly is 68 years old and lives at 7301 Sheridan road.

The two others hurt are William H. Odlum, 55 years old, manufacturer of automobile products, and his wife, Rose, 53, of 831 Michigan avenue, Wilmette.

Judge Holly and the Odlums were taken to St. Francis' hospital, Evanston. Attendants there said that Judge Holly suffered minor knee injuries, but that Odlum suffered head injuries and was in a serious condition. Mrs. Odlum's back was strained. X-rays will be taken today to determine the extent of her injuries.

The Evanston police report shows only that Judge Holly was driving west in Howard street and that he drove into Odlum's car, which was northbound in Asbury avenue. It was reported, however, that the judge was taking his second lesson in driving his sedan. A garage attendant was instructing him.

SOLDIERS SAVED AFTER 5 DAYS ON CANYON LEDGE

Marfa, Tex., July 29.—[Special.]—Two soldiers, hoisted by block and tackle from a narrow canyon ledge on which they were marooned five days after attempting to ride flood waters of the Rio Grande on automobile inner tubes, agreed today that they were near the end of their endurance.

Private Clarence Hansen of Santa Fe, N. M., his feet blistered, remained last night at the top of the cliff to which he and Sergt. Clyde Ryberg of Minneapolis were hauled from the shelf 1,500 feet below. Ryberg went to Fort D. A. Russell.

He told how he, Hansen and Private Harry Buckman of Paris, Tex., were caught in a whirlpool just after they entered the canyon mouth. Buckman drowned. He and Hansen struggled their way to safety on a ledge 1,000 feet up the canyon wall.

Rules City Can't Order Out of Town Cars Tested

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes ruled yesterday that the Chicago vehicle license commission cannot force motorists from out of town to have their cars and trucks tested at the city safety lanes. Illinois law and the city ordinance provide only for testing of vehicles of resident motorists, Hodes said. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt had suggested that many accidents could be avoided if visiting drivers were forced to get safety stickers as soon as they entered the city.

IT'S LAUGH FOR SOME; LICENSES IN 1939 YELLOW

Drivers of Yellow cabs were pretty much downcast last December when they found that the 1938 automobile license plates were going to be green —and match the rival line of green cabs.

"Green always did look punk on our cabs," they said.

But yesterday they were mollified when Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes announced at Springfield that he had ordered 1,900,000 sets of plates for 1939 and that they will be canary yellow on black. Secretary Hughes also stated that the contract had gone to the Kemp Manufacturing company of Macomb for $165,000. The Yellow drivers didn't care about that part.

"Won't those Checker drivers bust?" they said. "Yellow on black. Haw, haw!"

DAVID L. FRANK, FORMER LEADER IN POLITICS, DIES

David L. Frank, a native of Chicago and a former Republican leader here, died suddenly of a heart attack Thursday night in his home near Croton on Hudson, not far from Peekskill, N. Y., it was learned yesterday. He was 67 years old.

He was stricken shortly after his return from a stormy meeting of the Cortland township Democratic committee, of which he was a former chairman.

Mr. Frank was Cook county campaign manager in 1908 for Richard Yates when the latter ran for governor. He was county manager for William Lorimer's senate campaign and Len Small's 1912 campaign for governor. He is believed to have originated the pledge card system in the Yates campaign. In private business Mr. Frank dealt in real estate and insurance. About eighteen years ago he moved east where he carried on real estate developments and engaged in the cement business.

He continued his interest in politics, but became a Democrat. He ran twice for the New York state assembly and once for the national house of representatives. He was a widower. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Lillie F. Rosenthal and Mrs. Daisy F. Foreman, and a brother, Charles S. Frank, all of Chicago.

RAILWAYS FALL VICTIM TO ILLS OF REGULATION

Carriers Broken by Political Control.

(This is the sixth of a series of articles on the factors hindering genuine business recovery. The seventh will appear tomorrow.)

BY HOWARD WOOD.

What part does regulation of industry by political agencies play in holding back business recovery?

When you dip into the subject of "public regulation" you immediately find yourself in a sea of controversy. The bookshelves of libraries are weighted with tons of books, tracts, and magazine articles on the subject.

Most of this literature is new. It has to do with what the self appointed remodelers of our economic system think could be accomplished in the future by the adoption of this or that new and untried theory for curing business ills by the injection of additional political controls. Many of these writers want to change the nation's whole economic setup. But they say strangely little about what has happened in the past.

Most Americans Conservative.

If you believe that the American system of free enterprise is wholly bad and that it should be completely changed—then that is a totally different subject of argument. Any individual has the right to prefer a system of national socialism on the German or Italian pattern—or a bolshevist setup like Russia's.

The object of this series of articles, however, is to discover, if possible, the influences that are holding back the restoration of prosperity on traditional lines. The assumption is that the majority still wants the American system of free enterprise and believes that the hope of reemployment and restoration of profits depend on the maintenance of that system.

This diagram shows how the earnings of American railroads have declined during the last ten years. Figures are those for "net railway operating income," meaning income before any provision for interest on bonded debt, of the Class 1 roads. The interstate commerce commission designates railroads with operating incomes above $1,000,000 as Class 1.

Thus, at a time when scores of new attempts to shackle business concerns with additional political "controls" are being made, it may be well to see what has happened in the fields where "public regulation" has operated the longest.

Results of Rail Regulation.

Take the case of the railroads. They have been under political domination since 1887. What are the fruits of that domination?

1. The railroads as a whole are now in worse financial condition than the rest of American industry.

2. Thirty per cent of all railroad mileage is in bankruptcy or receivership.

3. Unable to sell their securities to the public, the railroads owe 406 million dollars to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Public Works administration, and more such loans will be required if additional bankruptcies are to be avoided.

4. They are able to employ not many more than half the number of workers they employed in either 1916 or 1926.

5. Financially hard pressed, they recently have been forced to raise freight rates and passenger fares and demand wage reductions.

Early Purposes Exceeded.

Government regulation of the railroads started on a firm enough foundation. The original idea was that the government should police the railroads—not that it should manage them. When the act creating the interstate commerce commission was passed in 1887 the railroads possessed a virtual monopoly of transportation, except where ships or barges could be used. The motor truck and the bus had not even been dreamed of. It was realized that because of their monopolistic character the railroads were in a position to charge the public exorbitant rates and make exorbitant profits.

Originally intended merely as a protection for the public against excessively high rates, government regulation of the railroads gradually developed to a point where every detail of their operations became subject to the whims of the regulating body.

This body also developed the theory that the way to prevent exorbitant rates was to restrict railroad earnings to the barest minimum which the courts would not hold to be confiscatory.

The jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission was extended in 1906 to include express companies,

Rock Island Makes Better 1938 Showing

More efficient equipment and strict control over operating costs have enabled the Rock Island railroad to improve its financial position somewhat. This was disclosed yesterday by E. M. Durham Jr., chief operating officer of the road.

E. M. Durham Jr.

Despite the sharp decline in revenues the Rock Island has been able to keep its operating results about on a level with last year. This year's operations also have been handicapped by increased labor costs resulting from the wage increases made last year. Most railroads' positions this year have been worse than a year ago.

The road continues to be sick financially, Durham explained, but the management has been encouraged by the fact that it has been able to arrest the downward trend. The Rock Island is in reorganization under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act.

June Earnings Up.

Gross revenues of the road in June were 6 per cent below gross revenues for June 1937, but the road was able to show a net operating income for the month of $76,941, compared with $59,639 in June, 1937.

Contributing to this increase, Durham said, has been the good showing made by Diesel-electric power, both in freight switching use and in the new streamlined Rockets. The road has 21 Diesel switching locomotives in service and is planning to lease 16 more. Use of this equipment, he said, has enabled the road to cut its yards switching fuel bill 20 per cent, although a small part of this reduction is due to the reduced amount of business. The entire train fuel bill has been cut 12 per cent. This was due to the operation of the Diesel-electric powered Rockets and to the reduced number of trains handled.

Diesels Cost Less.

"Our Diesel-electric locomotives are operated at less than half the cost of our steam power," Durham said, "and they do more work. The Diesel-electric locomotives in both freight switching and passenger service have been available for service more than 99 per cent of the time—a remarkably good record."

Durham pointed out that since the road's five Rockets were placed in operation last September up to June 30 they had traveled 832,206 miles. And of that distance Diesel-electrics were out of service for only about 300 miles. The operation of all five trains has been profitable, he said, with the Des Moines Rocket being currently the most profitable.

New Equipment and Track.

In the last two and a half years, Durham said, the road has laid 630 miles of new 112 pound rail and has relaid 340 miles of old rail. It has installed 600 miles of block signals and has laid over 1,000 miles of ballast. Capital expenditures have totaled about $17,000,000, including tracks and new equipment.

Expenses also have been controled by retirement of unnecessary buildings and tracks. Plants have been modernized. Obsolete equipment has been retired. And a money saving improvement has been the installation of a rail reconditioning plant at Silvas, Ill. In this plant old rail is straightened, worn ends are cut off and the rail is otherwise made satisfactory for use.

NEW FINANCING DROPS SHARPLY IN LAST WEEK

New York, July 29.—(AP)—New financing for the week amounted to $10,848,875, the lowest since mid-June, and compares with $22,204,954 the preceding week and $37,947,669 the corresponding week last year, Poor's Publishing reported today.

Virtually all the issues during the week were in the municipal field. The comparative table showed:

Chandler Act.

The Chandler act, passed at the last session of congress, provides for the first general revision of the federal bankruptcy statutes since 1898. One of the most important provisions of the measure is that giving the Securities and Exchange commission power to intervene in corporate reorganizations.

In cases in which the schedule of indebtedness exceeds $3,000,000, it is mandatory, under the law, for the federal court to refer any reorganization plan to the SEC. The SEC examines the plan and reports back to the court on its merits. In smaller reorganization cases the court at its own discretion may ask the SEC to pass on reorganization plans.

The theory of the provision is that the SEC will safeguard the interests of various groups of security holders. Under the present method of procedure minority groups may be slighted because they do not have adequate representation, proponents of the new law asserted.

The act also provides that the court shall select a trustee who is independent of the debtor management in cases where the liabilities are more than $250,000. An officer or employé of the debtor company may be named as additional trustee should circumstances warant.

RAILROADS EARN LESS THAN 1 PCT. ON INVESTMENT

6 Months' Operating Net Drops.

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today that class one carriers had net railway operating income of $70,289,305 in the first half of this year. This compared with $299,466,034 in the first six months of 1937, and $369,416,250 in the same period of 1930.

The association said the net railway operating income in the first half of this year was at an annual rate of return of 0.67 per cent on the property investment. This compared with 2.84 per cent in the corresponding 1937 period and 3.46 per cent in the first half of 1930.

June Return Slightly Better.

Class one railroads in June had net railway operating income of $25,000,803, or 1.18 per cent on the investment. In June, 1937, the income was $59,354,317, or 2.8 per cent, and in June, 1930, it was $67,683,471, or 3.27 per cent.

Gross operating revenues for June totaled $282,139,794, compared with $351,651,222 in June, 1937, and $439,377,170 in June, 1930. Operating expenses in June amounted to $218,192,353, compared with $265,521,794 in June, 1937, and $330,732,585 in June, 1930.

6 Months Gross.

Gross operating revenues for the first six months of 1938 totaled $1,636,408,495. This compared with $2,086,873,083 in the same period last year and $2,658,254,307 for the first six months of 1930.

Operating expenses for the six months' period amounted to $1,331,962,329, compared with $1,558,569,773 in the same period last year, and $2,048,678,522 for the corresponding 1930 period.

Sixty-one class one railroads failed to earn expenses and taxes in the first six months of 1938, the association said.

FREIGHT TRAFIC CUT BY DROP IN GRAIN MOVEMENT

Lowered grain shipments and a sharp drop in loadings of miscellaneous freight caused a decline of 3.6 per cent in railroad freight trafic during the week ended July 23 compared with the preceding week. The Association of American Railroads report yesterday, showed total loadings for the week of 580,820 freight cars. This was 21,418 less than in the week ended July 16.

Freight trafic in the week ended July 23 was 24.3 per cent lower than in the corresponding period last year. It was 20.5 per cent below the same 1936 week. These declines were greater than those of the preceding week, when car loadings were only 21.4 per cent under 1937, and 16.4 per cent below two years ago.

DENY INSULL CREDITORS PART PAYMENT NOW

A petition for payment of an immediate liquidating dividend of 3 per cent to holders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., debentures was denied by Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday. He ruled that partial payment now would be an unnecessary expense because a larger payment can be made this fall after fees and expenses in connection with the settlement are determined.

Attorney Charles H. Hamill, representing the company's bankruptcy trustee, presented the petition for the immediate payment in behalf of some of the large creditors. At the same time Hamill said the petition was presented against the receiver's better judgment because of the expense involved.

Judge Holly commented that the partial payment can be made this fall if there is further delay in determining fees and expenses.

Melvin B. Ericson, son-in-law of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, was elected president of the Pettibone-Mulliken corporation by the board of directors yesterday. The company makes railroad equipment, castings, and pumps.

PRICE OF COPPER BOOSTED FIFTH TIME IN MONTH

The domestic copper price in the spot market was boosted another ⅛ cent a pound by big producers yesterday to 10¼ cents, after a rise in copper prices abroad. It was the fifth increase in domestic copper quotations in July and brought the price to the highest level since Jan. 28. On that day it was lowered from 10¼ to 10 cents a pound, where it held steady until May 19, when it was dropped to 9 cents.

Scrap copper prices were advanced ⅛ cent a pound to 8¾ cents and manufacturers of wire cable stepped up their fabricated quotations accordingly. Export copper sold in the morning at 10.27½ cents and ranged up to 10.37½ in the afternoon.

Steel Scrap Advanced.

Another development in the cash metals market yesterday was a markup of 25 cents a ton in steel scrap. Sales to mills were reported at $13 for No. 1 heavy melting scrap, with the quoted range $12.75 to $13.25.

In commodity futures trading yesterday metals, influenced by the copper advance, were higher. Other contracts were irregular. Hides, rubber, cocoa, and sugar declined. Coffee advanced. Wool tops were irregular.

Copper futures advanced 0.02 to 0.15 cent a pound. Nominal prices for tin contracts were 0.75 cent a pound higher, although no sales were reported. Lead was steady to 0.02 cent higher. Zinc contracts finished up 0.01 to 0.11 cent a pound.

Hide Futures Lower.

Hides were off 0.15 to 0.17 cent a pound at New York. On the Chicago Mercantile exchange losses ranged up to 0.25 cent a pound. Prices for spot hides were steady, with trading quiet.

Rubber futures broke 0.13 to 0.20 cent a pound, with the closing September quotation at 16.10 cents. The price of smoked ribbed sheets in the spot market slipped to 16.12 cents from 16.30 on the preceding day.

Ward's Places Week's Auto Output at 30,390 Units

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—(AP)—Ward's automotive reports today estimated output of the motor car factories for the current week at 30,390 units. This compared with 32,070 last week and 86,403 in this week a year ago. The survey said automobile sales in June in the "corn belt" reflected the "best comparative showing made by any portion of the country."

Chicago's Business in June Less Active than Year Ago

June business in Chicago, as measured by most indices, continued to lag behind the corresponding month last year, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. All indices showed marked recessions from year ago levels except telephones in use, activity on the Chicago Stock exchange, electric power production, and live stock slaughtered.

One of the significant reversals, according to the association, was the drop in passenger travel over the air lines opearting out of the Chicago municipal airport. June was the first month this year during which travel by plane was below the volume of the same 1937 month.

Postal Receipts Lower.

June postal receipts were below June, 1937, levels, although the decline was not as large as in May. June pig iron production was down about 70 per cent. About five million fewer passengers were carried by the Chicago Surface lines than in June, 1937.

June department store sales, as measured by the association's index, were off more than 14 points from June, 1937. Pay rolls of Chicaga factories were down about one-third.

More building permits were taken out in June than in the corresponding month last year, but the total cost of the work involved was much lower.

Several Indices Improve.

There were 944,060 telephones in use in Chicago on June 30, compared with 926,323 on the corresponding date a year ago. June electric power production totaled 656,403,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 589,902,000 in June last year. Trading on the Chicago Stock exchange in June was nearly three times greater than in the same month last year.

WHEAT FUTURES RISE ON BUYING BY EXPORTERS

Buying of wheat futures which brokers attributed to exporters lifted prices yesterday in American markets. Closing prices on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net gains of ¼ to ½ cent a bushel. All deliveries except the September future sold at a new low level for the season in the early trading.

Corn futures declined early in sympathy with wheat and generally favorable weather for the development of the new crop. They rallied later to close unchanged to ⅝ cents lower, the latter on May. Rye was off ½ cent a bushel and in new seasonal low ground.

Brokers who were in the wheat pit all day estimated purchases of wheat futures by exporters as high as 1,000,000 bushels.

May corn sold at a new seasonal low level. Recent rains over a large part of Illinois and Iowa have improved corn prospects which were already good in the two states.

BANK CLEARINGS 14.6 PCT. LOWER THAN YEAR AGO

New York, July 29.—Bank clearings in twenty-two leading cities for the week ended July 27 dropped below the corresponding volume a year earlier for, with one exception, the thirty-seventh consecutive time, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday.

Turnover in the latest period totaled $4,651,240,000, or 14.6 per cent under $5,446,318,000 in the like week last year, and was $714,421,000 under the preceding week.

New York volume contracted to $2,853,828,000 from $3,321,633,000 in 1937, a drop of 14.1 per cent. Outside cities reported a total of $1,797,412,000, a decline of 15.4 per cent under $2,124,685,000 last year.

Except for a 4.5 per cent increase in New Orleans, all outside centers showed percentage declines from a year earlier. Clearings at Chicago totaled $258,800,000, a dip of 19.2 per cent from $320,300,000 in 1937.

CHICAGO BROKERAGE HOUSE PAYS BONUS AS BUSINESS RISES

Taking a step which is probably unique in La Salle street for 1938, a brokerage house declared a bonus for its employés yesterday. J. S. Bache & Co. announced that activity in July has been so encouraging that its clerical staf will be paid a 10 per cent bonus on monthly salaries. The extra payment applies to those who have been employed more than six months.

"We ask the staf to keep in mind," the announcement said, "that while July was an active month, in the final analysis it means just a partial reduction of our loss for the year to date."

The company also authorized one week's vacation to employés with salary, "if offices can be efficiently run with no additional employment." It was announced, however, that replacements could be made for telegraphers or printers in their absence.

The firm has offices in New York and Chicago, and branch offices in more than forty cities in this country and abroad.

EDISON PROFIT IN 2D QUARTER TOPS YEAR AGO

Net in Six Months Is $1.22 a Share.

Commonwealth Edison company's income in the second quarter of this year amounted to 52 cents per share of capital stock, compared with 48 cents in the second quarter of last year. This was indicated yesterday in the company's semi-annual report to stockholders by James Simpson, chairman. In the first three months of this year the company earned 70 cents a share.

James Simpson.

Simpson reported profits for the first six months equal to $1.22 a share against $1.28 in the first half of 1937. He said that earnings in the first six months of last year would have been $1.32 per share had not certain charges been made in that period which were applicable to previous periods.

The Public Service company of Northern Illinois, Edison subsidiary, showed lower profits for both the first six months and the June quarter, compared with earnings in the same 1937 periods. For the first half, per share profits were $2.76 against $3.25 in the like 1937 period. Indicated second quarter earnings were equal to 97 cents this year against $1.28 in 1937.

Income Figures Adjusted.

Commonwealth Edison's consolidated net income on an adjusted basis was $9,505,587 in the first six months of 1938 against $9,989,278 on the same basis in the 1937 first half.

These figures have been adjusted by adding back to the earnings certain nonrecurring deductions. The deductions represent dividends paid on subsidiaries' stocks which were later acquired or retired. Because the stocks are no longer outstanding, no dividend payments on them will be required in the future. Indicated profit for the second quarter on an adjusted basis was $4,008,508 against $3,775,997 in the like 1937 quarter.

Before the adjustment, consolidated net income was $9,487,422 in the first half, against $7,831,954 in the like 1937 period.

Gross Revenues Dip.

Gross operating revenues in the first six months were $69,768,048 against $69,808,641 in the 1937 half year. Indicated operating revenues in the second quarter totaled $33,223,055, compared with $33,829,048 in the June, 1937, quarter.

Although total sales of electricity on a unit basis in the first six months declined 8.9 per cent to 2,829,628,742 kilowatt hours, total electric dollar revenues increased 0.3 per cent. Commenting on the lower volume, Simpson said:

"Increases in residential and commercial consumption were more than offset by decreases in industrial usage and sales to electric railroads and other electric utilities."

Total gas revenues were 2.8 per cent lower in the first half of this year.

Public Service Net Lower.

Public Service of Northern Illinois' net income in the first half was $1,844,995. This compared with $2,690,115 in the first six months of last year. Indicated profit for the second quarter slumped to $650,207 from $1,114,018 in the second three months of 1937.

Total operating revenues decreased to $20,061,860 in the first six months from $20,990,078 in the first half of last year. Sales of electricity in kilowatt hours were down 18 per cent and were 4.6 per cent lower on a dollar revenue basis.

Public Service had indicated operating revenues in the second quarter of $9,459,824 against $10,141,615 in the second three months of last year.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 29.—Stock market prices closed irregularly lower today. Losses in the leaders ranged from fractions to 2 points, caused by selling in the last two hours. Earlier the list had met moderate support and some active stocks were bid up 1 and 2 points. Turnover was 1,204,000 shares.

After the largest declines were established absence of further pressure and some support whittled the losses in many instances. But closing prices were barely above the lows of the day.

Automobile shares, which were active and higher Thursday, again assumed early leadership of the market today. Chrysler and General Motors contributed good gains for a time. However, in the afternoon, they sold off with the general list. Chrysler finished with a loss of 2 points. General Motors dropped a large fraction.

Steels also started higher, but also gave ground in the late dealings. United States Steel common dropped nearly two points and Bethlehem lost one point. An exception was Republic Steel, which gained a fraction.

Aviations were under pressure for most of the session. The close found Douglas off 2 points and Boeing down 1¼.

New York Bonds.

New York, July 29.—(AP)—The bond market stepped ahead today, although there was profit taking near the close, particularly in the speculative rails, the list generally closed higher.

Chief strength was among industrial issues. There were reports in Wall street that the tone of industrial activity had improved during the last week, with the prospect the improvement would be reflected in general trade.

Rail bonds were irregular. New Haven 6s of '40, were up 2½ and Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s of '62 gained a point. Nickel Plate 4½s were off 2⅛; Southern Railway 4s, off 1½; Illinois Central 4¾s, off 1½; Erie 5s of '75, off 1⅜, and Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, off 1¾.

U. S. governments were 4-32ds of a point higher to 2-32ds lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Late selling sent Chicago stocks down yesterday, wiping out many earlier gains. Thirty-two issues of the 89 traded closed lower, 28 were higher, and 27 unchanged.

Hupp Motor stock, which led in volume, Bendix Aviation, Middle West, Marshall Field, Chicago corporation, and General Household closed unchanged. Utah Radio and Central and South West common dipped fractionally.

The Tribune average of 20 stocks reached a peak at one time of 11.57, but closed at 11.42. This compared iwth a close of 11.35 on Thursday. Volume yesterday was 32,000 shares, against 29,000 on the preceding day.

Bank Stocks.

Trading in Chicago bank stocks continued light yesterday, investment houses reported. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company shares declined $1.50 to close at $70.50 bid, $72 asked. First National stock advanced $2 to $222 bid, $226 asked. Other leading issues closed unchanged. Dealers disagreed on nominal quotations for stock of the American National Bank and Trust company and Chicago Title and Trust company.

ENOCHS WILL ASK MEDIATOR TO END RAIL PAY DISPUTE

Says Talks with Labor Leaders Have Failed.

Negotiations between railroad managements and labor regarding the railroad proposal to cut the wage of its 914,000 workers 15 per cent moved closer to an end yesterday. At the end of a two and a half hour session with the Railway Labor Executives association at the Palmer house, H. A. Enochs said that he is preparing documents asking that a federal mediator step in. Enochs is chairman of the carriers' joint conference committee, which represents the managements.

Enochs said that his group will meet again Tuesday morning with the labor group whose chairman is George M. Harrison.

"Must Cut Wages."

"We will probably have a couple of meetings next week," Enochs said, "but we are getting nowhere. We stand where we stood at the start of the negotiations. Nobody would like better to raise wages than railroad management. But the situation now is that our revenues are down so much we simply do not have the money to meet our expenses. We must cut wages."

Enochs disclosed that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, headed by A. F. Whitney, already is on record as having asked the services of a federal mediator.

At the meeting yesterday Harrison concluded his answers to the six reasons given by the railroads for their decision to ask a wage cut. These reasons are: [1] Less business. [2] Competition. [3] Debt. [4] Obsolete equipment. [5] High taxes. [6] High wages. At the Tuesday session Harrison will devote the time to direct reply to the roads.

Answers Road's Arguments.

In answer to the railroads' arguments Harrison declared that the workers had nothing to do with the causes and could not be held accountable for them. The only thing the men can argue about, he said, is wages.

Harrison said the railroads have been saying that the cost of materials they buy has added greatly to expenses. He compared 1938 prices with 1937 prices, using 1926 prices as an index at 100. He said they were obtained from the Annalist. He gave the prices as follows:

Building materials	70.5	65.5
Chemicals	98.8	87.4
Finished steel	$2.60 cwt.	$2.30 cwt.
Bituminous coal	$2.14 ton	$2.02 ton

Harrison also declared that average wages paid railroad labor are below the average wage of the many industries from which the railroads buy materials. He said that the average wage of railroad employés in May, 1938, was 72.79 cents an hour.

Enochs will meet with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at 10 a. m. Monday at the Stevens hotel.

J. I. Case.

Investors' Guide: Please give me the facts concerning the J. I. Case company.—N. L. A.

Answer: The J. I. Case company makes a complete line of agricultural machinery, implements, and equipment. Products include tractors, combines, grain and corn binders, tractor plows, manure spreaders, cotton and corn planters, disc and tooth harrows, rakes, balers, and many other articles needed by farmers. Sales of tractors provide the largest single source of revenue.

The company was established in 1842 by Jerome I. Case, one of the pioneers in the middle western farm machinery and implement business. In 1880 the company was incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin as the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company. The present title was adopted June 1, 1929.

The company's present line of products was rounded out by buying a number of other concerns. A number of important products also have been developed. In 1935 the company introduced a general purpose tractor suitable for small farmers. Last year a small combine was introduced.

Plants are located at Racine, Wis.; Rockford, Ill.; Rock Island, Ill.; Burlington, Ia., and Dixon, Ill. Worldwide distribution is carried out through fifty-five branch and subbranch houses and through numerous dealers and agents.

Last year the company changed its fiscal year to end Oct. 31—instead of Dec. 31—to coincide with the end of the selling season for farm implements. For the ten months ended Oct. 31 net income was $4,275,574, equal to $19.20 a common share, before appropriation of $1,000,000 for possible losses on inventories. After this appropriation net income was $3,275,574, or $13.98 a share. Net income for all of 1936 was $3,083,281, or $12.37 a common share.

The company lost money in 1932, 1933, and 1934. No interim reports have been issued so far this year.

The company has no funded debt. Stock outstanding consists of 101,825 shares of 7 per cent cumulative $100 par preferred and 191,788 shares of $100 par common. The common paid $6 last year, but nothing has been paid so far in 1938.

Total assets were $44,903,572 on Oct. 31. Current assets were $32,259,516, of which $7,979,945 was cash and $14,745,120 was inventories, carried at the lower of cost or market. Current liabilities were $4,696,220. The company has consistently maintained a strong financial position.

Their total tax bill increased from 157 millions in 1916 to 320 millions in 1936. This bill is still rising. New pay roll taxes, for example, totaled 92 millions in 1937, compared with only 18 millions in 1936.

Low Return on Investment.

In none of the last seven years has the rate of return on their property investment been more than 2.57 per cent.

Their net income available for dividends in 1937—a fairly good year for most lines of business—was only 2.2 per cent.

In 1913, when the commission began the task of valuing the properties of the railroads, it was estimated that the cost to the railroads would not exceed $7,500,000. Since 1913, however, the expenses of this job have totaled about 200 million dollars, of which the railroads have had to pay 150 millions and the taxpayers the rest.

This valuation job proved to be merely boondoggling. By the time the officials making an appraisal of the properties of any railroad finish compiling their figures years have elapsed and conditions have so changed that the figures mean practically nothing.

Carriers Can't Help Selves.

And so government regulation of the railroads goes on, with the carriers gradually congealing into bankruptcy and their managements so completely fettered that they are unable to work out any program for their own salvation.

Originally set up to keep the railroads from charging rates that were too high, the commission now even will not permit them to reduce rates to meet competitive situations.

Legislation has been pending in congress for several years which, if enacted, would permit the railroads to charge lower rates to the Pacific coast to get back some of the business lost to ships operating through the Panama canal. The interstate commerce commission has always been authorized by law to permit the railroads to lower such rates, but will not do so.

Regulation in other fields will be discussed in the next article in this series.

pipe lines, and sleeping car companies. It was further enlarged by the Panama canal act of 1912 and the transportation act of 1920, which gave the I. C. C. the power to prescribe intrastate rates. Finally, in 1935, the motor carrier act spread the I. C. C. blanket of regulation over commercial motor transportation.

As political regulation expanded the railroads began to wither. They managed to keep pace with other industries until about 1910, when the present system of regulation began to be applied more vehemently. Since that time the percentage of their return on the investment in the property shown in their books has gradually gone downward.
